METROPOLITAN CASH TO THE POLITICIANS

Payments Frequent and Never in Anything but Bills, Mr. Vreeland Told Grand Jury.

DIVIDENDS OUT OF CAPITAL

Why Directors Settled with W. N. Cohen's Client — Payment to Morse Which Latter Doesn't Remember.

Throughout the Grand Jury testimony of H. H. Vreeland in the recent traction inquiry there are repeated references to the pool in the stock of the Electric Storage Battery, which was operated, according to Wall Street history, in the joint interest of some of the traction financiers and various Tammany politicians during the year 1899. There was one check, for instance, for $123,000, drawn on Dec. 19, 1899, in connection with an Electric Storage Battery account in the office of Moore & Schley, of which Mr. Vreeland had little information.

"And your understanding subsequently, or at the time and subsequently, was while nominally those accounts were in Mr. Whitney's name they were being carried for the benefit of the company to take care of certain persons?" Mr. Vreeland was asked.

"Yes, Sir," said Mr. Vreeland.

There was one check for $200,000, drawn on Dec. 19, 1899, payable to C. W. Morse.

"That was for taking up stock," said Mr. Vreeland. "I don't know the details of it; it was handled by Mr. Whitney."

"Well," said Mr. Jerome, "at that time Mr. Van Wyck was the Mayor of the City of New York?"

"I think he was, yes, Sir," said Mr. Vreeland.

"And Mr. Morse and John F. Carroll, then a power in Tammany Hall, were intimate friends?"

"That is so."

C. W. Morse said last night of President Vreeland's testimony in regard to the $200,000 check, that he knew nothing of the transaction. Asked if he could not recollect having received a check from the road such as Mr. Vreeland had testified was made out in his name, Mr. Morse said he had never heard of any such check.

Political Contributions Paid.

Mr. Vreeland was interrogated at some length on the general subject of political contributions, and Mr. Jerome asked:

Q.—Well, in these corporate ventures that you have been connected with of a large character, have you found that the favors to politicians, contributions to political parties, election expenses, have been of value or were commonly esteemed to be of value to the corporation? A.—I have found that they were esteemed to be of value.

Q.—Is it necessary for the Metropolitan Street Railway to open the streets of New York a great deal? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—Whenever they want to open a street they have to get the permit countersigned by the Borough President and the Commissioner of Gas, Electricity, and Water Supply? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—Each of them has got to sign a permit before it is opened? A.—Yes, Sir, and whenever the property is adjacent to a park property it has to be signed by the park official.

Q.—An antagonistic water, gas, or electricity official could impede somewhat the work of the railroad company in the city here? A.—Very materially.

Q.—Did you ever have any experience with being impeded in that way? A.—Yes, Sir; I had a number of instances.

Q.—And afterward were those impediments withdrawn? A.—They were.

Q.—Withdrawn without legal process? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—Was the method of securing those withdrawals such that led you to believe that it had been by cultivating in some way the favor of these officials? A.—There was no action of any kind that would give me any impression on it, because a permit would be in the office and under the best endeavor we could not get it, and all of a sudden it was signed and sent up to the office.

Somebody Evidently "Seen."

Q.—You have no doubt in your own mind as to why the permit was given—somebody was "seen," and therefore the permit was given? A.—I would have a very strong idea that something had been done.

Mr. Jerome took up the same line of inquiry with respect to State legislation, and Mr. Vreeland said it was correct that of all the bills which the railroad company considered antagonistic to its interests very few got through.

Mr. Jerome came across the check to the order of Charles A. Conant for $25,000, dated Aug. 26, 1904. This check, it has already been testified to, was for the purpose of making a loan to Thomas Quinn, then the publisher of The Daily News, and Mr. Vreeland explained, as had the other witnesses, that it was deemed advisable thus to obtain the support of The Daily News on account of traction matters affecting the east side population reached by that newspaper.

Mr. Vreeland explained some of the other utilities of Mr. Charles A. Conant in the traction organization.

He was a Director, a member of the Executive Committee, of the Metropolitan Securities Company. He was a man with a National and international reputation as a monetary expert, was appointed by President McKinley as a representative of the United States Government in fixing the money system of Cuba. He had access over his own signature to any of the newspapers of the company. Mr. Conant was acting or had been for some time acting for the company in connection with newspapers, special articles in connection with subways, and in favor of construction and addition to the system.

At a conference of the Executive Committee I was directed to furnish Mr. Conant with this amount of money to be used by him in securing support, what he considered the best support, in this peculiar territory, where these proposed improvements or the movement for the proposed improvements was under way, and it was done. He was furnished with this money.

Mr. Jerome sought to get from Mr. Vreeland some general information as to the payment of money for political purposes, and in so doing drew out Mr. Vreeland' version of the payment of $36,000 to Odell and the Tammany organization in 1903.

Q.—In a general way, from time to time, did it become necessary, in order to meet what was esteemed the exigencies of the political situation, to draw out sums of cash? A.—Very frequently.

Q.—And when these political—or what was esteemed political—exigencies arose, the money was never drawn in checks? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—The money was drawn in bills, and the bills were put in the hands of an agent to deliver to the respective political parties or their leaders? A.—Yes, Sir.

Politics On a Cash Basis.

Q.—And this class of transactions, whether it concerned the Congressional election, the Presidential election, State election, or the Mayoralty election, was always done on a cash basis? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—The ordinary course was for you to procure the cash in the first instance on a check and turn it over to the agents to be delivered to the proper parties? A.—The only instance that I ever turned over money myself direct was in connection with that $38,000.

Q.—When you sent the $20,000 to Odell by Quigg and the $16,500 to Murphy? A.—Yes, the general method of handling everything political during Mr. Whitney's life was, it was turned over to him. Some time in October, 1903, we secured from the Morton Trust Company $20,000 in one instance and $16,700 in another instance. The $20,000 was sent to the Chairman of the Republican State Committee. The $16,700 went to the Democratic organization of the City of New York.

Q.—That $20,000 was sent to Mr. Odell through Mr. Quigg, was it not? A.—It was.

SAGAN WIRES MME. GOULD.

Suggests Plan for "Avoiding Espionage of American Correspondents."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, April 22.—Prince Helie de Sagan, who entered Italy yesterday on the way to Naples to meet Mme. Anna Gould, declared to-day he could not have believed it possible that a man could be so chased and harassed and persecuted by newspaper reporters as he had been by American correspondents.

He had found them, he said, scattered along the whole of his route—in the trains, at stations, in restaurants, and even in his dreams.

At last he had lost patience and had sent a wireless message to Mme. Gould on board her steamer suggesting a plan, not discovered yet by anybody on shore, by which he believed they would be able to frustrate the espionage of the American press.

NAPLES, April 22.—Prince Helie de Sagan arrived here to-day. He registered under an assumed name at a hotel, and then drove to the steamship office, where he learned that the Friedrich der Grosse, on which Mme. Anna Gould is a passenger, was not expected to arrive here until Friday morning, owing to a storm.

BROKERS FIGHT TO A FINISH.

Two Curb Traders Settle a Dispute in a Vacant Room in Broad Street.

The Curb market was excited yesterday over the story of a finish fight between two of the brokers which was fought after the market closed on Monday afternoon in a vacant room overlooking 39 Broad Street. There had been ill-feeling between the men, and when neither of them showed up on Tuesday the story went around that each had given and taken such punishment that neither was able to come down to business.

One broker appeared yesterday morning, however, with a well-developed black eye and a patched-up nose. The other did not show up, and is said to have gone out of town until nature heals the bruising he got.

One broker has an office at 39 Broad Street, where there is a large, well-lighted room vacant on the second floor. It was here that the fight took place, according to the story. There were seconds and a referee, Curb brokers agreed yesterday, but no one could be found who would confess to having witnessed the fight.

The traffic police who have the Broad Street Curb market under their special guardianship scoffed yesterday at the idea of a real fight having been pulled off just over their heads on the second floor of 39 Broad Street.

"The boys have a set of old gloves over there," the Curb Roundsman explained, "and in these dull times there is a little boxing once in a while, but a finish fight —tell that to Sweeney."

OBJECTS TO WASHINGTON.

Hotel Belmont Diner Protests Against His Presence in the Flemish Room.

While J. B. Vandever, a New York business man, was entertaining J. W. Davis of Newport News, Va., in the Flemish room of the Hotel Belmont on Tuesday night, he saw two white men and a colored companion enter and take a table next to them. Mr. Vandever and Mr. Davis recognized the colored guest as Booker T. Washington, founder and head of Tuskegee Institute. Mr. Washington presently, like others in the room, began to smoke.

Mr. Vandeved complained against admitting Mr. Washington to the dining room, first to the head waiter, and then to the management of the hotel. He was courteously heard, but no action was taken

Booker T. Washington is stopping at the Hotel Manhattan. At the Belmont, just across Forty-second Street, it was said last night that he had been lunching and dining there more or less frequently of late

"Has the hotel any regulations as to the entertainment of negro guests?" the head waiter of the Flemish room was asked.

"Oh, yes," he replied. "When negroes come here we entertain them in a room separate from the whites, but that is not the case with Prof. Washington. We allow him to use the tables with the whites. He was here yesterday."

HOSPITAL DOCTORS STRIKE.

Six of Them Quit the L. I. College Because of the Food They Got.

Nursing a grievance, which from time out of mind has been voiced by jackies of the navy when they come ashore after long cruises, that of "poor grub," six physicians and surgeons of the staff of the Long Island College Hospital, in Brooklyn, walked out on "strike" yesterday afternoon, and last night Dr. Richard E. Shaw, the Superintendent, was having troubles of his own meeting the demands of the 250 patients in the institution.

The doctors who have "struck" are Arthur L. Carroll, Franz E. Soller, Grover C. Elder, Francis L. Guarino, George S. Wilkes, and Francis J. McMinami. For some time the physicians have been informally complaining about the food served to them. Yesterday what they called the "last straw" came on the table in the form of creamery butter.

"Oleo!" they hissed through clenched teeth.

As one man the six left the table and went into executive session in the operating room. Obtaining samples of the butter which had fallen under suspicion, they marched with them to the office of Dr. Shaw. The Superintendent heard their tale of woe in silence. One of the leeches, more bold than his fellows, assured Dr. Shaw that if the butter were confined in a dungeon deep it would require no writ of habeas corpus to get it out. Dr. Shaw dismissed them from his room.

The disgruntled doctors went out and dined at a near by restaurant, and there hatched up an ultimatum to be served upon the Superintendent. The Superintendent would take back "them cruel words" he had uttered and lay in a supply of butter such as should properly be released from quarantine or they would "walk out."

Dr. Shaw declined to "swallow" anything he had said, and, packing their duds, the six rebels marched out. All the doctors declared they would not return unless they received an apology and things to eat which they could get down without having first to spray their palates with cocaine.

STRAUSS TO CONDUCT "SALOME" HERE

Hammerstein Arranges with the Author for Its Production at the Manhattan.

MARY GARDEN IN TITLE ROLE

"Strauss Pining for Such an Interpreter Since He Wrote the Opera"—No Fear of Adverse Verdict.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 22.—Oscar Hammerstein, who returned to Paris to-day after visits to Brussels and Berlin, announced that he had closed a contract with Richard Strauss for the production of "Salome" in New York, Mary Garden to take the title rôle and Strauss himself to conduct the opera.

"Strauss and I talked over the matter while dining together in Berlin Saturday night," said Mr. Hammerstein to THE NEW YORK TIMES's correspondent. "I told him I was eager to produce the opera at the Manhattan, but the decision must rest with Miss Garden, who was appearing in Brussels.

"I went to Brussels yesterday and saw Miss Garden. I found her willing to undertake the great work. She not only will sing the rôle, but dance it as well, and thus give full play to her marvelous powers.

"Strauss is delighted at the prospect of Miss Garden's interpretation of his opera. Ever since he wrote the opera he has been pining for just such an interpreter. Hitherto, you know, two artists always have been required for the rôle of Salome, one to do the singing, the other the dancing. This always has been a disappointment to the composer.

"Miss Garden will first appear as Salome in Brussels, then when she knows she is perfect in the rôle she will go to New York, where probably she will appear in November.

"I already have ordered all the scenery and costumes for the production from Prof. Roller of Vienna, who produced 'Salome' in the Austrian capital. Everything will be magnificent.

"I haven't the slightest fear of arousing the susceptibilities of New Yorkers by the production. It will be such a performance as never has been seen. Everything, you know, depends on the atmosphere.

"I found Strauss still hurt at the attitude New Yorkers assumed when 'Salome' was produced at the Metropolitan. He was quite ready, however, to adopt a different set of impressions, and already is looking forward with pleasure to his visit to New York."

Mr. Hammerstein also tells me he has secured the first option on Strauss's new opera, "Elektra," which will be produced for the first time in Dresden in the Fall.

"If," said Mr. Hammerstein, "the new opera proves to be everything which I believe it to be, I shall make arrangements for its immediate production in New York."

The only performance of "Salome" in this city was given at the Metropolitan Opera House on Jan. 22, 1907. Mr. Conried, whose illness prevented his being present at this performance, had planned several repetitions of it. Before the second performance could be given the Directors of the Metropolitan Opera and Real Estate Company protested against the opera being presented again, on the ground that it was detrimental to the best interests of the Opera House.

In an interview when she was about to sail from this country, Miss Mary Garden, who had been one of the leading sopranos at Mr. Hammerstein's Manhattan Opera House, said that she had been engaged to give several performances of "Salome" in Brussels. She spoke of having dined with Mr. Strauss, the composer of the opera, and of his having told her that, although he had given the singer of the leading rôle ten minutes to recover after the dance, he could find no one who would undertake to do both the singing and the dancing that belong to the part.

Miss Garden said that after her talk with Mr. Strauss she resolved that when the time should come to appear in "Salome" she would do the dancing as well as the singing. She further said she had arranged with Mme. Maraquita of the Paris Opera Comique to teach her the "Salome" dance.

HARDER TO BECOME A VOTER.

Aliens Must Apply for Naturalization Papers Six Months Before Election.

Naturalization officials say that, because of a new law, not a politician has been seen around the naturalization office, and that none of the foreigners applying for naturalization papers was sent, so far as the officials have learned, by politicians.

April 16 was the last day on which application for naturalization papers could be filed with a chance of becoming an American citizen in time to vote next November. Although in most States a declaration of intention three months only before election is necessary for an alien to become qualified to vote, six months are required here. The State law stipulates that a man must be a citizen three months before he can cast a ballot at a State election. The Federal law requires that he must file a petition of naturalization three months before naturalization papers are granted him. The Federal law, which established the Bureau of Naturalization of the United States District Court, became operative June 29, 1906, and prior to that time, when the State law only was operative, the usual rush for naturalization in this city was around August. Under the present system each court has a hearing for naturalization petitions on stated days, usually twice a month. July 16 is the last day when the court can pass upon applications of those who have qualified for naturalization and make them eligible to vote in November.

The number of foreigners wishing to become naturalized has been greater than could be attended to. J. B. Cartwright, in charge of the bureau, has only one assistant. Out of the seventy-five or more foreigners who appear at the bureau every day only twelve or fifteen get in their applications. Most of the applicants are small business men or venders who intend going into business here.

AGREE ON CURRENCY PLAN.

Aldrich and Cannon Formulate a Scheme for a Law.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—When Senator Aldrich emerged to-day from the Speaker's private room the matter of adjournment, the legislative programme, and possibly a few other things were settled. The conference was the final one of three held between the leader of the Senate and the Speaker of the House.

The judgment of the conference was that the programme lately decided on can be put through. This programme calls for a caucus of the Republican members of the House, probably next week or the week following, to determine the passage of a bill creating a commission to investigate thoroughly the currency subject and the financial situation of the country in general and to report on remedial legislation at the next session of Congress.

It is further the desire of the House Republican leaders to put through the Vreeland bill, which embodies what are thought to be the best features of the Aldrich bill and eliminates the provisions to which most objection has been made.

The programme is then to have the Senate strike out everything after the enacting clause in the House bill and to insert the Aldrich bill. This will have the effect of throwing the amended bill into conference, and care will be exercised both in the House and Senate to appoint as conferrees members who favor some legislation at this session.

It will be the task of the conferrees to patch up from the Aldrich bill and Vreeland bill and the Commission bill a modified act embodying such provisions as the leaders feel sure of putting through the two houses.

MRS. FARNUM ASKS DIVORCE.

Actor Was Named by Howard Gould in His Suit.

Following closely on Howard Gould's charge against his wife in answer to her suit for a separation, in which Dustin Farnum, the actor, was named, it became known yesterday through the appointment of M. Linn Bruce by Supreme Court Justice Dowling as referee in the action of "A. Johnston Farnum against D. Lancy Farnum" that the actor's wife is suing him for a divorce.

The case came before the court with the presentation of the papers by D. Frank Lloyd, an Assistant United States District Attorney, counsel for Farnum, and Ernest K. Coulter, attorney for Mrs. Farnum, with a joint request that ex-Supreme Court Justice Bruce be appointed referee. This was agreed to by the court. Neither lawyer would talk about the suit last night, while Referee Bruce said he was not familiar with it and did not know who the persons named were. On the other hand, a close relative of Farnum's said he was not surprised to hear of it, as the actor and his wife had been in strained relations for some time.

On inquiry at the Hotel Somerset in West Forty-seventh Street, where Mrs. Farnum has been living for some time, it was said last night that she had been out of town for some days visiting friends. Both at the York Hotel, Seventh Avenue and Thirty-sixth Street, where Farnum lives, and the Lambs Club inquiries for Farnum were met with the reply that he was not there.

In Mr. Gould's answer he charged his wife with following Farnum about the country when he was touring in "The Virginian." In a statement made subsequently by Farnum he denied the charges made by Gould, and said that his friendship with Mrs. Gould was of the most casual kind.

It is said that Mrs. Farnum's action was not decided on as a result of the Gould suit.

THEATRE IN HOTEL ASTOR.

Plans for New Addition Also Include a Grand Ballroom.

The enlarged Hotel Astor will contain a theatre. The plans for the addition to the hotel, to be built on Forty-fourth and Forty-fifth Streets, filed yesterday by Architects Clinton & Russell, show a grand ballroom, with mezzanine floor and balcony which will make it available for theatricals.

The addition will cost $1,000,000. It will be similar in design to the main structure and will occupy the plot now covered by the ten old-fashioned dwellings at 207 to 215 West Forty-fourth Street and 206 to 214 West Forty-fifth Street. This will give an increased frontage of 106 feet on each street, thus exactly doubling the area covered by the hotel. The enlarged building will occupy 42,500 square feet of ground.

The structure will be of brick, with limestone trimmings, and have an ornamental top story mansard decorated with rows of pillars with electric lights. The roof garden, part of which is to be inclosed in glass, will be extended over the entire building.

Building Supt. Murphy has issued to John Downey, representing the Astors, a permit to tear down the old houses.

ILLINOIS FOR BRYAN.

Roger Sullivan Says There Is No Possibility of Contrary Instructions.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 22.—Party leaders unite in saying that the Democratic State Convention to-morrow will instruct for Bryan.

Roger C. Sullivan of Chicago arrived to-day and declared that there was no possibility of anti-Bryan instructions. The rumored contesting delegation from Cook County, said to be headed by Robert E. Burke and Carter H. Harrison, is not believed likely to materialize.

Much opposition developed to-day to the adoption of a platform at the present convention. This is due to the wording of the planks which the United Societies or liquor interests are urging for adoption. One of these censures the Church for interfering with political matters and demands in effect that clergymen be respectfully advised to attend strictly to the laws relating to things spiritual and to leave alone the statutes dealing with things spirituous.

There is a strong feeling among delegates that resolutions of this character should be left out of the platform.

BOMB FOR BOODLER.

Explodes Under House of Member of Confessed San Francisco Supervisors.

OAKLAND, Cal., April 22.—A dynamite bomb was exploded to-night under the residence of James L. Gallagher in East Oakland. The entire front of the house was destroyed.

Gallagher was a member of the confessed boodling Board of Supervisors of San Francisco, and is an important witness for the prosecution in the bribery trials now pending in San Francisco. There is no clue to the perpetrators. No one was hurt.

BI-PARTISAN PLAN TO ELECT DEMOCRAT

Woodruff and Sullivan Said to be Trying to Carry Niagara for Race Track Betting.

SUDDENLY GO TO ALBANY

Mysterious Conferences Held and Pledge of Support Said to Have Been Given to Democrats.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 22.—By a bipartisan combination of bosses an effort is being made here to-night to compel the nomination of a Democratic candidate for Senator in the Niagara-Orleans district, where the Governor has called a special election for May 12 to fill the seat left vacant by the recent death of Senator Stanislaus P. Franchot.

The situation in the Niagara-Orleans district and the forthcoming election is fraught with particular interest on account of the recent defeat of the Governor's anti-race-track gambling bills. The Governor called the special election with a view of making race-track gambling the issue in the preliminary campaign, in order that by chance a Senator might be elected who by his vote would break the deadlock in the Senate and carry the Governor's reforms to success.

Since the election was called the big Republican bosses whose influence aided in the defeat of the measures have bent their efforts in the opposite direction. The Democratic leaders of the two counties composing the Senate district, after conferring among themselves and with Democratic State Chairman Conners, came to the conclusion that nothing could be gained by nominating a candidate either to aid in carrying reforms of a Governor of the other party to victory or an alternative by helping to defeat again the race track bills, thus aiding the Republicans to pull their chestnuts out of the fire and placing the blame for the ultimate defeat of the bills on the Democratic Party.

Sullivan and Woodruff Appear.

The situation stood thus as recently as this morning, when Deputy State Treasurer George W. Batten, who is the Democratic leader of Niagara County, and Barry Murphy, who is the leader in Orleans County, both told THE NEW YORK TIMES's correspondent that there would be no nomination. To-night the situation underwent a lightning change, following the sudden and unheralded appearance here of "Big Tim" Sullivan and Republican State Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff.

After they had appeared the report became current among the insiders that the Democrats would name a candidate for Senator. Immediately after the appearance of Woodruff at the Capitol, Senator Gilchrist of Brooklyn, who was one of the eight Republican Senators that took a hand in the defeat of the Governor's race track reforms, took Assemblyman Charles F. Foley of Lockport in tow, and invaded the sanctity of Mr. Batten's private office.

Senator Gilchrist is regarded as Tim Woodruff's man. Assemblyman Foley, who is a Democrat, was talked of as a possible candidate for the vacant Senatorship after the special election had been called. To-night Mr. Batten and Mr. Foley are in close conference at the Hotel Ten Eyck, while Mr. Woodruff and William Barnes, Jr., the Republican boss of Albany, who bludgeoned his Senator, Mr. Grattan, to vote against the bills against the latter's own inclinations and the pleadings of his family and his friends, were in close touch with the conferrees.

Free Field to Democratic Candidate.

As an upshot it was said that the most positive assurance has gone out from Mr. Barnes, State Chairman Woodruff, and Senator White of Syracuse, who represents ex-State Superintendent of Insurance Francis Hendricks of Syracuse, one of the Republican leaders most violently opposed to the Governor, that a free field will be given to the Democratic candidate, not only at the special election, but next Fall, when a Senator must be elected there for a two-year term.

The pledge, according to a version which comes from an apparently well-informed source, was made to Senator McCarren, who virtually assumed the leadership of the fight against the race-track reforms in the Senate, to see the Democratic candidate through, with the understanding that his vote would be delivered against race-track bills.

The move to have a Democratic nomination forced by the Republicans and the scheme to elect him by Republican votes is a proposition so novel that it has taken some of the conservative Democrats in the Niagara-Orleans district completely off their feet.

Woodruff at the Capitol.

State Chairman Woodruff came to the Capitol shortly before midnight, after a conference with Mr. Barnes. He admitted that they had discussed the Niagara-Orleans situation, but declared that Mr. Barnes had professed no knowledge of what was going on there, except from newspaper dispatches. Mr. Woodruff professed ignorance regarding any arrangement between the Democrats and Republicans to elect a Democratic Senator.

"Will you as State leader use your influence to have a Republican pledged to the race-track reforms nominated?" Mr. Woodruff was asked.

"I have nothing to do with that," was his reply. "The Governor called the special election without consulting me, as he had a perfect right to do, thereby practically placing me in a position where I cannot help him, even if I were desirous of doing so, and I do not say I am."

FIVE CYCLISTS IN SMASH-UP.

One Man Severely Injured and Two Are Fined for Reckless Riding.

Three bicyclists speeding up Broadway at 9 o'clock last night and two men coming through 110th Street on motorcycles collided at the corner. All were thrown from their wheels, and two of the men lay unconscious on the pavement. One of the bicyclists and one of the men on motorcycles picked themselves up and, jumping on their wheels, made off.

Policemen Martin and O'Keepe called Drs. Rubell and Weingarten from the J. Hood Wright Hospital, and they found that William Scoffus of 364 Sixth Avenue had a very bad cut extending from his forehead over the top of his head. They hurried him to the hospital, fearing that his skull was fractured.

Emil Corbiel of 149th Street and Broadway, a motor cycle rider, was able to go home. Scoffus and Marcius Dupries of Broadway and 139th Street were taken to the Night Court, where Magistrate Walsh fined them $10 each for reckless riding.

WIRELESS FROM BRIARCLIFF.

Bulletins to be Flashed to The Times Tower and Promptly Posted.

Marconi wireless telegraph bulletins noting the progress and results of the Briarcliff automobile race will be received on the tower of THE TIMES Building tomorrow morning, and promptly posted on THE TIMES's bulletin boards.

OLYMPIC AND TITANIC.

Names of White Star Leviathans, to be More Than 840 Feet Long.

LIVERPOOL, April 22.—Two new White Star Line steamers, which will be larger than any vessels ever before built, will be laid down at Belfast next June.

The exact measurements of the steamers have not been given out, but the boats will be over 840 feet in length and more than 78 feet in breadth, and will have a gross tonnage of 45,000 to 50,000. The ships are to be fitted with combination turbine and reciprocating engines guaranteed to maintain a minimum speed of 21 knots.

The names of the vessels are to be Olympic and Titanic.

SKULL IN MISSISSIPPI.

Also Ancient Clay Bowls Are Found Below the Bed of the River.

ST. LOUIS, April 22.—Workmen engaged in sinking a caisson for a pier off the foot of Salisbury Street in the construction of the McKinley Bridge that is to span the Mississippi River, came upon the skull of an Indian 20 feet below the bed of the river. The top of the skull is flat.

The workmen also found ancient clay bowls, petrified trees, and walnut knots, unrotted and hard as iron.

NINE KILLED IN WRECK.

Runaway Car Rushes Down Incline Into a Work Train.

RALSTON, Penn., April 22.—A work train on the Susquehanna & New York Railroad, near Laquin, Penn., was wrecked this morning by a runaway log car, which dashed into the train after descending a steep grade.

Eight lumbermen were killed outright, one died later after being taken to a hospital, and fifteen were seriously injured. The men were riding on the log train, which was being pushed up the steep ascent by the engine.

PRICE OF PRUNES TO GO UP.

Reports from California Indicate That the Crop Has Been Badly Damaged.

CHICAGO, April 22.—Prunes threaten to become a real luxury and disappear from the menu cards of many restaurants and boarding houses. Reports from several counties in California indicate that late frosts have damaged about 50 per cent. of the growing crop.

Last year about 75,000,000 pounds were produced, and this year merchants say the crop is not expected to total over 50,000,000 pounds. The deficit is expected to send prices skyward.

TAWNEY HURT IN COLLISION.

Riding on a Trolley Car Which Was in Collision—Mr. Chaney Also Hurt.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Representatives James A. Tawney of Minnesota and John C. Chaney of Indiana and nine other persons were hurt in a collision of surface cars at the foot of Capitol Hill this morning.

Mr. Tawney and Mr. Chaney continued their way to the Capitol and attended meetings of their committees. Mr. Tawney complained of pain in his back, and spent most of the afternoon on a lounge in his committee room. Mr. Chaney said he was bruised all over.

SKENE'S AUTO UP A BANK.

State Engineer Thrown Out on Way to Stop Briarcliff Races.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., April 22.—While State Engineer Frederick Skene, Deputy Engineer Jackson, State Committeeman Michael Watts of Yonkers, and County Attorney Frederick Hughes were on their way to this place this afternoon to confer with Sheriff Charles M. Lane about the Briarcliffe races, their automobile lost a tire, became uncontrollable, and dashed up a bank. Only the quick work of Chauffeur Duneen in applying the emergency brake prevented a bad spill. The machine was making fast time through Scarsdale when the accident happened.

Mr. Skene was thrown out, but was not even scratched. His mission to the Sheriff's office was to serve an official notice on Sheriff Lane to stop the Briarcliffe automobile race.

SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY ROW.

Vote of Trustees to Dispense with Dean Kent Causes Discussion.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 22.—Acting in accordance with the wishes of Chancellor James R. Day, the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees of Syracuse University have voted not to retain William Kent as Dean of the College of Applied Science. This decision becomes operative if ratified by the Board of Trustees at their June meeting, which will be presided over by John D. Archbold of New York.

Chancellor Day is said to have requested this action on the part of the Executive Committee on the ground that the Dean had, during the Chancellor's absence in New York recently, overstepped his authority in making inspections of the university buildings in order to prevent a recurrence of any such disaster as the Collinwood fire.

NO ACTION ON VENEZUELA.

Firms with Interests There Advise Against Punitive Measures.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Administration officials have practically abandoned expectation that the Senate will at this session of Congress authorize the President to take punitive measures against Venezuela for refusal to refer to arbitration the disputed claims of American citizens and corporations against that country.

All the papers in the case are before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations. Persons or firms having commercial interests in Venezuela which would be adversely affected by punitive measures have urged that nothing be done.

No action was taken to-day by the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations in reference to the situation.

The gunboat Dubuque, now at Port au Prince, Haiti, will be utilized by American Minister Russell at Caracas in carrying dispatches from Venezuela.

ROOSEVELT, JR., FLIES IN ARMY BALLOON

Theodore Narrowly Escapes Spill as Wind Slams Bag Against a High Embankment.

MRS. LONGWORTH WOULD GO

Wished to Make Ascension with Capt. Chandler, but Husband Dissuades Her—Landing Made in Delaware.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—President Roosevelt sent his eldest son up in an army balloon to-day, and then nervously grabbed for bulletins during the rest of the afternoon, for it was a long trip. However, there are to be no mollycoddles in the Roosevelt family. The President said so to some Princeton men who were here recently, and Theodore, Jr., is making good his boast. Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth wanted to go, but backed out at the last moment. Her husband had a hand in keeping her on terra firma.

Capt. Charles De Forrest Chandler, the Signal Service officer, who is the army balloon expert, initiated the President's son into aerial mysteries. But for Capt. Chandler's presence of mind there would have been a nasty spill at the start. The balloon basket had been too heavily ballasted. As the bag was released in the inclosure at the local gas works, a stiff breeze caught it, and, after tripping the basket over some telegraph and electric light wires, slammed the balloon against a high embankment.

But Capt. Chandler tossed sandbags with both hands, and the balloon shot straight up toward the blue. Another wind caught it there, and whirled it away to the northeast. The start took on all the airs of a first night at the horse show, for society had a hint that Mrs. Longworth would go up, and turned out in force. Automobiles and smart traps came fairly flocking to the dismal neighborhood of the gasworks before the start. The crowd cheered loudly when the ascent began.

Mrs. Longworth was present, escorted by Capt. Fitzhugh Lee, one of the President's aides. Miss Roosevelt was reported as ambitious to make a flight, which would be a companion adventure to her recent exploit in running a locomotive, but she had to stay on the ground and watch her brother reap the fun.

Capt. Chandler has made a hit with the President through his balloon work, in which the head of the Nation and the army has taken great interest. The President is suspected of a strong temptation to try a flight on his own account. He went down beneath the waters in a submarine boat once, during one of his Oyster Bay vacations. Nobody knew about that, however, until it was over. He could not very well get away on one of Capt. Chandler's balloon trips without Loeb or the Secret Service men catching him at it, and they'd probably bring him back to the White House in disgrace. He is waiting to hear what it is like from his son and heir, however.

Theodore, Jr, bids fair to be as strenuous as his father. Already he has hunted big game in the West, been battered up at football, and he will ride anything that will let him up. He took his first courses in cross-country riding and fence jumping under the personal direction of the President. It was expected here that Capt. Chandler, with such a distinguished passenger, would be content to make a short flight and then drop to earth. Instead he remained in the air several hours longer than he and the other signal officers have been doing in the experimental trips out of Washington.

Evidently the Roosevelt spirit would not be satisfied with anything short of the gas bag's staying power.

At 10 o'clock to-night a dispatch was received from Capt. Chandler at Wilmington, Del., announcing that the balloon had landed safely four miles north of Delaware City at 5:15 P. M.

ANTI-GAMBLING BILLS' LOSS.

Senator Foelker's Illness Precludes Reconsideration of Racing Measures This Session.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 22.—Senator Otto G. Foelker of Kings, one of the twenty-five Senators who voted for the passage of the Anti-Race Track Gambling bills, was excused to-day from further attendance the present session on the ground of illness. It was said that Senator Foelker had suffered a sudden attack of ptomaine poisoning and had gone to his home in Brooklyn.

Senator Agnew said that the absence of Senator Foelker would render it useless to move the bills under the motion to reconsider the vote by which they were defeated. This motion now lies on the table.

The date of the extra session has not been definitely settled, but May 11 or 12 is the probable date when it will be convened.

Gov. Hughes and Bishop Doane will be the principal speakers at a mass meeting here on Sunday afternoon to protest against the action of Senator Grattan of Albany in voting against the Governor's Anti-Race Track Gambling bill.

YOUNG ROE ESCAPES JAIL.

Mother Says She Is Forbidden to Assist Him Further.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 22.—Livingston Roe, Jr., who was arrested here last night as a "vagrant," to-day escaped going to jail for ten days because of the arrival of C. Ludlow Livingston, a distant relative, who is a prominent attorney of this city.

When Livingston heard of Roe's predicament, he hurried to Central Station and got a temporary stay. He then telephoned to Roe's mother at Morristown, N. J. Mrs. Roe declared that her husband would not permit her to assist their son, but promised that if Roe was released and sent to New York, she would take care of him.

Roe's sentence was changed to a fine. Livingston paid it and purchased a ticket to New York. He sent an escort with Roe to Altoona. Livingstone had never seen his relative before to-day.

LEGISLATURE PUSHES THROUGH LAST BILLS

Measure Extending Power of Utilities Board to Wire Companies Killed.

5-CENT FARE BILL PASSED

City's Finances to be Investigated—State Department of Highways Created—Central "Grab" Defeated.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 22.—Within a few hours of final adjournment the Senate to-night rushed through a long calendar of bills on the order of final passage. This followed all-day sessions in both houses, during which a hundred or more bills were disposed of.

When the Senate adjourned to-night the Legislature had practically declared itself upon all the important matters submitted to it. To-morrow morning the legislative work will be largely by unanimous consent, and the regular session of 1908 will close about noon.

The Rules Committee of the Assembly gave the death blow to the Governor's bill by placing telephone and telegraph and ferry companies under the supervision of the Public Service Commission. When the committee adjourned at midnight Speaker Wadsworth, its Chairman, said the vote against reporting the bill had been unanimous.

The committee reported favorably and without amendment the Cassidy anti-bucket shop bill, which passed the Senate to-day, and the Agnew bill, providing for the protection of New York harbor and tributaries against pollution.

In the final rush of legislation to-day many measures affecting New York City were disposed of. The Senate passed a resolution providing for a legislative investigation of the city's finances. It also passed the Robinson bill, the effect of which will be to attract private capital for the construction of subways. The same body placed itself on record in favor of the bill for a five-cent fare to Coney Island, and amended the election law affecting New York City by providing for the identification of occupants of lodging houses.

In the Assembly the New York Central "grab" bill, under which the city authorities could give the railroad company perpetual franchise rights on streets in the Bronx, was killed by a vote of 90 to 36.

Senator Cassidy finally decided to move the passage of his Anti-Bucketshop bill, and it was passed. He said it was of more importance than the race track bills. Mr. O'Brian introduced a companion bill in the Assembly. There it was virtually killed by protest against its substitution for the Assembly bill.

There was no objection to the joint resolution providing for an examination of the methods of accounting in New York City departments. A committee, to be composed of three Senators and five Assemblymen, will be appointed to examine the books of the Controller and other officials and to inquire into the administration of Government in the city.

The resolution declares that the city's debt is close to $1,000,000,000.

The Francis bill providing for a commission to make an inquiry into the administration of justice in the inferior courts of criminal jurisdiction in New York City was passed.

Automobile Tax Bill Abandoned.

There was some surprise when Senator Armstrong abandoned the Automobile Tax bill, which was favored by the Automobile Association.

By a party vote, except for Senator Hinman, who voted in opposition, the Robinson bill amending the metropolitan elections district law, as to the identification of lodging house inmates, was passed by the Senate.

"You compel the owner of a lodging house to identify a guest," Senator McCarren said, "and the bill is not worth the paper it is written on. This bill simply makes it difficult for a certain class of voters to vote."

"That's just the point," Senator Page declared. "It will put a stop to the voting of floaters."

Senators representing the canal districts and New York members supported the bill which sets aside 1,000 feet of dock in New York City for canalboats from up the State. This bill emphasizes the need of inquiring into the possibility of converting Jamaica Bay into a harbor. There were only ten votes against it.

Five-Cent Fare to Coney Island.

Senator McManus had passed out of its order the bill reducing the fare to Coney Island to 5 cents. Those who voted against the bill were Senators Agnew, Cassidy, Davis, Dunn, Hinman, McCarren, White, and Wilcox.

The bill permitting the extension of the Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, through Cypress Hills Cemetery to Forest Park, in Queens, making a continuous driveway connecting all the parks, was passed.

At the night session the Senate by a vote of 26 to 16 passed the Greene bill providing for the inauguration of the Torrens method of recording real estate transfers.

The Senate also passed the Smith bill, making Oct. 12 a public holiday in the schools only in commemoration of the discovery of America by Columbus.

Senator Armstrong's bill, making an appropriation for a new hospital for the insane in Rockland County, was defeated.

The Senate, by a vote of 36 to 1, passed the Frawley bill, authorizing the Public Service Commission with the consent of the Board of Estimate to enter into negotiations for the purchase of the Steinway Tunnel.

New York Central Bill Killed.

The Owens bill giving the New York City authorities the right to turn over to the New York Central in perpetuity surface and sub-surface right in several streets in the Bronx in the vicinity of 149th Street and Third Avenue, where the railroad contemplates the erection of a new suburban terminal, was defeated.

The Assembly passed a bill for a hospital for the insane on the Creedmoor rifle range and the Whitney Pure Drug bill.

Wanted Salaries Cut.

Minority Leader Palmer, when the appriation bill came up for consideration, attacked the Republicans for wasting the people's money, and especially assailed the large salaries of the Public Service Commissioners and their counsel. He offered an amendment reducing the salaries of the former from $15,000 to $9,000, and the salary of counsel from $10,000 to $5,000.

The amendment was voted down by a party vote of 87 to 40, and then the Appropriation bill was passed by a unanimous vote.

The bill sets aside $21,000,000 for the support of the State Government. With the appropriations made in the so-called "Supply bill," a supplementary measure, the appropriations for the State this year will reach the total of about $30,000,000, as against $29,000,000 last year. Experts have estimated that the increase in revenues will more than offset the excess amount.

TAFT TALKS WITH MANAGERS.

Vorys Afterward Says He Is Certain to be Nominated.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—There was a conference of Taft managers at the home of the Secretary of War this afternoon, attended by Secretary Taft, his brother, Charles P. Taft, Arthur I. Vorys, from the Columbus headquarters, and F. H. Hitchcock, in charge of headquarters here.

Mr. Vorys afterward said that so far as the nomination of Secretary Taft was concerned the campaign was practically over. There were in sight, he said, more than 500 votes for the Secretary on the first ballot, without counting anything from the Southern States outside of Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, and Texas. They do not count on anything from New Hampshire, but rely on having votes from Massachusetts and other New England States.

Malby's District Not for Hughes.

MALONE, N. Y., April 22.—At the Republican Congressional Convention to-day George R. Malby of Ogdensburg was unanimously nominated for Congress for the Twenty-sixth District. Delegates to the National Convention are Mr. Malby and Wallace T. Foote. Resolutions indorsing the Administrations of President Roosevelt and Gov. Hughes were adopted, but the delegates were not instructed.

CALL FOR LONGER PIERS ON HUDSON

Dock Department Asks Harbor Line Board for Extension North of 23d Street.

OCEAN TRAFFIC NEEDS IT

River Interests Oppose the Plan on the Ground That It Would Cause Congestion.

A proposal was submitted yesterday to the Harbor Line Board, of which Col. Daniel W. Lockwood, U. S. Engineers, is President, which, if approved by the War Department, will make it possible for the largest of ocean liners to dock in the North River, north of Twenty-third Street.

The application was made by the Dock Department, which asked that the pier head extension lines be increased between Twenty-second and Seventy-second Streets. A similar application asking for an extension of the pier head lines was received also from New Jersey, the steamship men over there asking for more room in Hoboken and Weehawken.

At the hearing before Col. Lockwood practically all of the maritime interests in New York, both local and foreign, were represented, and many speeches in favor of and against the proposed extensions were made. Most of the transatlantic interests are in favor of the extension, the Hamburg-American Line in particular making a strong plea for increased pier facilities.

Some of those who spoke were Emil L. Boas, Resident Director of the Hamburg-American Line; Dock Commissioner Spooner, Eugene F. Moran, representing the National Board of Steam Navigation; F. W. Standiford, Chief Engineer of the Department of Docks; J. G. Todd of the Anchor Line, S. V. V. Huntington of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation, W. H. Fletcher of Hoboken, and E. E. Olcott of the Hudson River Day Line.

Mr. Olcott was one of the opponents of the proposed extension. He said that if New York got the extension Hoboken would ask for it also, and that the North River would soon become as congested as is the East River, where, he said, the tide is so strong as to be a cause of frequent accidents. Other opposing interests contended that the extension would greatly hamper harbor traffic, some of these representatives contending that even now the sailing of ocean liners causes much trouble to harbor traffic.

For the extension Dock Commissioner Spooner and Mr. Boas made the principal arguments. Mr. Spooner said that if granted he did not think it would retard navigation to any serious extent.

"It is needless," said Mr. Boas, "to enlarge upon the great importance which the water-borne traffic in general and the foreign trade in particular have for our city, and how intimately they are connected with its prosperity. The terminal facilities on our river front are, however, entirely insufficient to accommodate the traffic.

"There are not enough piers either for ocean steamers or river and canal boats, and the existing piers are overtaxed and cannot accommodate the traffic. The usefulness of all transportation lines is conclusively determined by their terminal facilities."

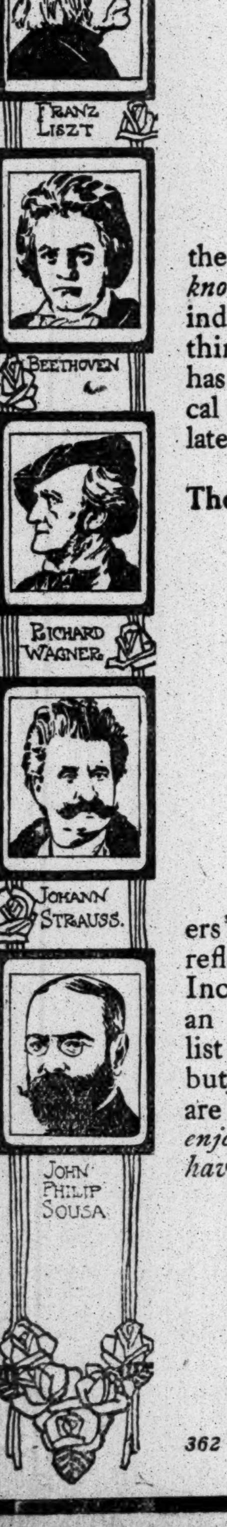
The Swedenborgian Church of the New Jerusalem of this city has received as a gift from Mr. and Mrs. Charles Duggin, the owners, the building at 423 West Forty-third Street, which the church has rented since November, 1906, for a settlement home. Mr. and Mrs. Duggin's gift was announced last night at the annual meeting of the Society of the Church of the New Jerusalem.

The 50 "Best Sellers" In Music



How the universal use of the Pianola reflects the world's musical taste

In the first place, the catalog of Pianola rolls is the most complete music catalog the world has ever known. Over 15,000 compositions are listed. No individual publisher of sheet music offers anything to compare with it. The Pianola owner has a free, unfettered choice of all classes of musical composition, from the earliest classics to the latest topical song or waltz melody.

The Pianola a REPRESENTATIVE Instrument

It is bought by the most intelligent, well-to-do, progressive element of the population. The people who order Pianola rolls may not be professional musicians or even profound students of musical theory, but they ARE representative and intelligent music-lovers.

The orders for Pianola rolls reflect the musical taste of the entire world. Unlike other Piano-players the Pianola is known TO EVERY CIVILIZED NATION. We fill music orders not only for America, but for England, France, Germany, Russia, Japan, Australia, New Zealand, South America, etc.

The accompanying list of our "fifty best sellers" is therefore an interesting human document, reflecting the musical tastes of the world to-day. Incidentally it also gives the non-Pianola owner an idea of how much pleasure he is missing. This list may not be exactly what YOU would choose, but somewhere in the Pianola's enormous repertory are certain to be found just the pieces that you would enjoy owning and being able to play whenever you have the inclination.

The possibilities of the Pianola for home entertainment and for education are so tremendous that it is no wonder its success has encircled the globe and made it the most revolutionary musical factor of modern times was sent to Mr. Murphy, or the organization, whoever got it? A.—I do not.

"How did that payment come to be made; what conferences, if any, were had?" asked Mr. Jerome finally.

"Mr. Ryan, Mr. Cravath, and I were together," said Mr. Vreeland. "This matter was brought up of making a contribution or contributions—talked over. Mr. Cravath, Mr. Ryan, and myself were Directors and members of the Executive Committee of the company, and Mr. Cravath, not as the counsel of the company, but as such member of the Executive Committee and Director, said that he did not consider any value was secured to the company by making contributions. His instinct was rather against it, but Mr. Ryan said it should be done, and that we did, and the money was gotten and distributed."

The Suit of Judge Cohen's Client.

An examination of the testimony of ex-Supreme Court Justice William N. Cohen before the traction Grand Jury in regard to the purchase for $32,000 of 200 shares of Metropolitan Street Railway stock belonging to a client of his by the Metropolitan Securities Company in 1906 for the purpose of staving off a lawsuit, threw a very different light upon the transaction from that in which it has been regarded ever since it first came up in the investigation by the Public Service Commission. This testimony is among that filed by the Grand Jury in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court.

When the purchase of the stock belonging to Mr. Cohen's client first came up it was explained that suit was about to be brought against the Metropolitan Street Railway. On this theory, seemingly, the Grand Jury dismissed the matter with the explanation that many corporations purchased shares of stock which were likely to be made the basis of legal actions against them, and that in this instance it would have been particularly uncomfortable for the traction corporations to be sued.

Mr. Cohen on the stand, however, stated explicitly, and later amplified his statement, that he explained to Paul D. Cravath, attorney for the Metropolitan Securities Company, that he intended to sue the Directors of the Metropolitan Street Railway to recover for that corporation's dividends alleged to have been paid out of capital stock instead of out of earnings. He declared that the stock had cost his client about $160 a share, and was selling forty or fifty points lower when he approached Mr. Cravath.

Mr. Jerome asked him whether there was anything wrong or criminal in the transaction. Mr. Cohen said there was not, and then he proceeded to explain that his client, who happened also to be a personal friend, had been after him to bring the suit for two years, and that finally he had called up Mr. Cravath on the telephone and apprized him that he was going to turn the case over to an attorney and act in it himself as advisory counsel. Mr. Cohen continued:

Dividend Unlawfully Paid.

He then said to me, "What theory are you going to sue upon?" I said, "I have been examining the Wormser record and I was satisfied the Directors of the company had paid dividends out of capital, instead of out of earnings, and I was going to make them repay to the corporation all of the dividends so unlawfully paid. That was the theory of my suit." He then said, "Well, I will look into the matter and let you hear from me." Then my memory is not clear whether I rung him up in a few days, but I think I did and he said: "Well, we are looking into the matter and you will hear from me in three or four days. Can't you do better?" I said no, there wasn't any desire to make any money and there wasn't any desire to make any profit, but he wanted to get his money back or else he would pursue the course I had advised, and thereupon, I think five of six days afterward, he again said, "Was that the best I could do?" and I said yes, and he said, "Well, we will send you a check," and I said to him, "Of course you know, Mr. Cravath, I am not in the business of hunting up claims against railway companies; when I have settled this one that will be the end of my connection with similar litigation for anybody," and he said "Yes, he understood that was so," and thereupon a check came to me for the amount promised, the exact amount that my client had paid for his stock, and I turned it over and that was the end of the transaction.

Q.—Litigations of that character are rather expensive aren't they? A.—They have proved to be, yes.

Q.—Is it unusual for a corporation of that kind to buy stock even when they were of the opinion that there was no valid cause for action, on the basis that it is more economical to take it than it is to stand suit? A.—Depends on the whole situation. If the thing is a small claim it would cost more to fight than to settle, and corporations generally settle unless they regard it a holdup or a strike or something like that. A man that is in the business they would fight it out—

Q.—Your character would show it wasn't that. A.—You were asking me what the corporations did.

One of the Grand Jurors asked Mr. Cohen if it were correct that he had told Mr. Cravath that he was about to begin an action for the payment of dividends out of capital.

"He asked me for my theory of my action, and I told him that was my theory," replied Mr. Cohen.

Q.—On what did you base your theory? A.—I based my theory on the fact that I had examined the record in the Wormser case and their—I don't remember what officers, but some—officers in testifying to the advantage of the lease with the 7 per cent. guarantee had tried to show that that 7 per cent. had not been earned. Therefore—well, I know it had been paid and everybody else knew it had been paid, and therefore it must have come from some place other than earnings.

"How would your client have recovered his money on such a theory?" a Grand Juror asked.

Would Have Sued Directors.

"Well," said Mr. Cohen, "he could not have recovered his money, Mr. Juror, but what he would have done would be that he would have some Directors who have declared the dividends improper pay them back to the corporation and the corporation would have been so much richer by the big amount recovered. You see it was an enormous amount. His judgment might not have been satisfied."

On Feb. 17 Mr. Cravath was asked to tell the Grand Jury what he knew about this Cohen transaction. He said:

Judge Cohen came to me and said that he had been urged by a number of people to undertake suits against the Metropolitan system. The only thing he was interested in particularly was 200 shares—the name I have forgotten; that the man was very litigous and he would be compelled to bring the suit. He strongly advised that his client be settled with. After becoming satisfied that unless that stock were bought we would have a very troublesome litigation, I decided to advise the company to comply with Judge Cohen's terms and buy the stock, especially because Judge Cohen said if that stock were bought he would not enter into any other litigation of that character against the Metropolitan Company.

"Was there good ground for the suit?" asked a juror.

"No," said Mr. Cravath, "I think not. We corporation lawyers many times have to advise the purchase—the sacrifice of a few dollars to avoid a lawsuit at a critical and dangerous time."

The matter of paying dividends out of capital rather than out of earnings came up again before the Grand Jury when William F. King, Chairman of the Metropolitan Street Railway Stockholders' Committee, was called. District Attorney Jerome at that time explained to Mr. King why he did not go into it when the Amory charges were made in 1903. These charges included one that dividends had been paid out of capital. Mr. Jerome was explaining what his accountant, Charles Teale, reported to him from his examination of the books and said:

"There was a large number of cross loans, just before dividends were paid, and you would see a great transfer of money from construction account to operating account and apparently on its face it would look as if they were paying dividends out of its capital.

"I asked Teale what his judgment was, and he said that the operating expenses were very high, and that he expected that they were paying dividends out of capital, and not out of income. I asked him if he had any evidence of that, and he said he had not; that the only way we could get it would be to go into the Auditor's office and examine the vouchers. I asked him how much it would cost, and he said it would cost $50,000 and take his office force six months."

RECEIVER PRESTON RESIGNS.

David H. Hyman Named as Successor to Wind Up Building Loan Company.

On application of Charles M. Preston, receiver of the New York Building Loan and Banking Company since it went into enforced liquidation in September, 1903, Supreme Court Justice Dowling accepted yesterday his resignation and appointed in his place David H. Hyman, a real estate broker, of 313 East Fifty-seventh Street. Mr. Preston resigned on account of ill-health.

THAW BEGINS FIGHT FOR HIS FREEDOM

Signs Petition for Writ and Demands a Commission to Inquire Into His Sanity.

HEARING FIXED FOR MAY 9

Wife's Marriage Annullment Suit Put Over Until After This Action Is Disposed Of.

The fight to realese Harry K. Thaw from the Matteawan Asylum for the Criminal Insane was started yesterday. Application was made to Justice Morschauer in the Supreme Court at White Plains for a writ of habeas corpus calling for the presence of the prisoner in court. Thaw himself signed the writ. It is returnable on May 9.

At the same time counsel for Thaw and his wife agreed before Referee Deyo in this city to postpone the hearing of the marriage annulment proceedings until May 11.

Mrs. Thaw's suit for an annulment of her marriage was to have started before Referee Deyo two weeks ago. But when it was called yesterday the referee found that neither side was ready. The postponement was by agreement and the date set goes beyond that on which Thaw will make his fight for freedom.

The beginning of the annulment suit put an obstacle in Thaw's way to freedom, for with the fact established in his two trials that he was of weak mind in youth and insane at the time he killed Stanford White, his chance of getting out of Matteawan would be lessened by the establishment of insanity at the time he married Evelyn Nesbit. This barrier has been set aside by the postponement of the annulment proceedings.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw is still at Atlantic City in a cottage to which she sought refuge when asked to leave the Prince George Hotel. She is receiving funds from the estate of her husband through A. Russell Peabody.

District Attorney Jerome, who fought hard for a conviction of Thaw, has frequently declared that he would oppose any effort to get Thaw out of Matteawan. He admitted yesterday that he would probably take no part in the legal controversy.

The timing of the fight for Thaw's freedom is such as to give the prisoner every chance. When the writ of habeas corpus is returned to the court on May 9, Mr. Jerome will be tied up in fighting the charges against him, hearing of which will begin anew next Monday.

"The papers were wrong to-day," said A. Russell Peabody, personal counsel for Thaw. "Thaw has not engaged counsel to fight for his release against the wishes of his mother. His mother wants him taken from Matteawan. She knows of all the procedure and I engaged James C. Graham to bring the proceedings for Thaw."

Mr. Peabody said it would not be necessary for Thaw to face another lunacy commission.

Mr. Peabody denied reports that Thaw had been given to violent outbreaks in Matteawan.

"The only time he has refused to obey the keepers," said the lawyer, "was when they wanted to take his photograph for a record. He objected to this, and I was called to Matteawan. I looked up the law and found they had no right to subject him to this indignity, and served formal notice on them to that effect. The picture was not taken."

Thaw believes he will be free within a month, and has already ordered wearing apparel from his tailors in New York for the Summer.

In his petition Thaw contends that when Justice Dowling sent him to Matteawan without a hearing as to his mental capacity, he deprived him of his constitutional rights, and in the petition he asks to be examined as to his sanity.

KNOX ON FEDERAL LAWS.

Railroad Owners Responsible for Government Control, He Says.

Railroad officials were flayed last night by Senator Philander C. Knox, former Attorney General, in an address before 1,500 members of the Civic Forum in Carnegie Hall. Senator Knox spoke on "The People, the Railroads, and the National Authority," and said that railroad officials have only themselves to hold responsible for the legislation which the present Administration has effected in curbing railroads.

He said that railroad officials in the past have shown a flagrant disregard for their obligations to the public and for their duties to security holders. He also said some complimentary things about the present Administration in securing remedial legislation for some of the railroad ills which, he said, had afflicted the public.

Senator Knox began by saying that what the great inter-State railroads have demanded of the people in the past, and what the people are now demanding of them, constitute two distinct phases of American economic and legal policy.

He said that the inter-State railroads of the country have been the wards and beneficiaries of the Federal Government, and that, from the beginning, State control over them has gradually been progressively lessened and National control progressively increased to the point where the last vestige of local authority, except in matters comparatively unimportant, has been swept away.

"And so far as this has been brought about it has been accomplished by legislation solicited by the railroads themselves and through judicial doctrines for which they contended and by executive action which they invoked," said Senator Knox. "The people looked on and approved this rapid development of Federal control with a full realization of the fact that a single control was necessary for the highest efficiency in railroad service."

Senator Knox said that the present Administration found a deficient and discredited body of laws under which all sorts of commercial and social tyrannies boldly flourished, effecting and undermining the National well being. He said, too, that when the record of its achievements is closed it will reveal a compact body of constructive, sympathetic, and effective legislation, remedying defects, supplying omissions, and covering new phases in the field of National authority over inter-State commerce.

Senator Knox was introduced by Marcus M. Marks, who presided.

FIND MORRIS'S BODY.

Floating Near Atlantic City Pier—Baltimore Man Vanished Nov. 23.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 22.—Mystery concerning the disappearance of Albert Morris, head of the Wauborden Fishing Trust of Baltimore, who disappeared from a hotel on St. James's Place, this city, where he and his wife were visitors, last November, was cleared away to-day, when his body was found floating in the Thoroughfare by Smith J. Albertson. Mrs. Morris, who has been living near Somer's Point ever since her husband's disappearance, identified the body.

The body was found a few feet from a small boathouse owned by Mr. Morris on Sunset Avenue, and the supposition is that he went there immediately from the hotel and deliberately drowned himself while mentally deranged.

GREAT BANK GROUP TAKES THE NEW BONDS

Rothschilds, Baring Bros., Kuhn, Loeb & Co. Buy $40,000,000 Pennsylvania Issue.

SHARP RISE IN THE PRICE

Significance of New Banking Connections Abroad—Way Paved for Same Bankers Taking Other Issues.

The formal announcement yesterday of the Pennsylvania Railroad's $40,000,000 bond issue revealed the fact that associated with Kuhn, Loeb & Co. in the purchase of the bonds are the Rothschilds and Baring Brothers & Co. of London, which, with the affiliations of these several firms, represent one of the strongest aggregations of banking capital ever brought together for the purpose of floating an issue of American railroad bonds.

The formal announcement of the issue was made yesterday afternoon, but before the close of the day the subscriptions received were more than enough to cover the entire issue. The bonds were quoted in the open market at 98¾ bid, or 3 points above the subscription price, which was fixed by the bankers at 96, less a commission of one-quarter of 1 per cent., on large allotments. The great success which attended the issue was attributed, not only to the improvement in the general bond market recently, but to the fact that these three houses had lent the use of their names to the flotation of the issue.

The proceeds of the loan are to be used, according to a formal statement issued by the Pennsylvania Railroad, "to meet the expenditures upon the New York tunnel extension and its terminal station in the centre of New York City and for the completion of other construction work and facilities already under way and necessary for the economical handling of this traffic."

Official Announcement of Loan.

This was the official statement of the terms of the issue given out by the bankers:

Kuhn, Loeb & Co., jointly with N. M. Rothschild & Sons and Baring Brothers & Co., Limited, of London, have closed a negotiation with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company covering $40,000,000 of consolidated mortgage forty-year 4 per cent. bonds. The bonds are part of an issue of $100,000,000 authorized in 1873, of which, in round figures, $12,500,000 bonds are now outstanding. The mortgage is a first lien, subject only to $20,000,000 general mortgage 4 per cent. bonds, due July 1, 1910, (for which consolidated mortgage bonds are reserved,) on the main line and branches of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company between Philadelphia and Pittsburg, and on the terminals in Philadelphia and Pittsburg; it also covers the lease of the United New Jersey Railroad and Canal Company, which is the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company from Philadelphia to Jersey City. A simultaneous issue of these bonds will shortly be made in London and New York.

The Pennsylvania consols are a legal investment for savings banks in New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut.

It is understood that the issuing price will be 96 per cent.

This is the first time in about twenty-five years that the Rothschilds have floated an issue of American securities. About that long ago they placed an issue of St. Paul Railway bonds, but while they have since made investments in American securities, it is the first time in a quarter of a century that they have offered an American security for public subscription. It was also pointed out that so far as is known in the financial district it is the first time in fifty years that the Rothschilds have made an American investment except through the firm of Belmont & Co. Much significance was attached yesterday to this fact as indicating possibly the establishment of new connection between New York bankers and the Rothschilds.

More Flotations Probable.

Whether this same group of bankers will join in further flotations of American securities was said yesterday to be an open question, although the chances favor similar operations by this powerful banking combination. It was surmised that the forthcoming financing by the Union Pacific, which also proposes to issue a first mortgage on part of its main line, may be underwritten by the same bankers.

In the present instance no syndicate was formed, the issue being taken direct by the three banking houses engaged in the negotiations with the Pennsylvania Railroad. The allotments of the bonds as between this market and those abroad will depend upon the amount and the substantial character of the subscriptions received in New York and in Europe. There was said to be little doubt, however, that more than half of the entire issue will be placed in Europe.

It was conceded in banking circles that the entrance of the Rothschilds into American financial operations will have a favorable effect upon European sentiment toward American bonds, doing away with much, if not all, of the prejudice which has been entertained abroad recently even toward American securities of the highest class.

In reference to the present status of the New York terminal work, upon which a large part of the proceeds of this issue of bonds will be used, so far there has been expended on the work about $70,000,000. While it is not so stated officially, it is believed that the part of the present loan to be devoted to this work will suffice to complete the New York terminal and its approaches.

Astor Appeals His Case.

John Jacob Astor and other property owners on the Bowery near Houston Street filed an appeal yesterday with the Appellate Court against the condemnation proceedings passed upon by Supreme Court Justice Newburger for the erection of two stairways at the elevated railroad station at Bowery and Houston Street. The proposed stairways necessitate the condemnation of 279, 280, and 282 Bowery.

BRYAN AND KNOX TALK TO PUBLISHERS

Both Candidates and Roosevelt's Name Heartily Greeted at Newspaper Men's Dinner.

SPEAKER CANNON ATTACKED

Publishers Arraign Chairman Payne and Mr. Dalzell for Protecting Paper Trust by Blocking Tariff Abolition.

The members of The Associated Press and of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, some 500 strong, joined in a dinner last night at the Waldorf-Astoria. They and the women, who filled all the boxes, heard Rabbi Stephen S. Wise talk about the power and the responsibility of the press; heard William J. Bryan respond to the toast, "Know the Truth," and Senator P. C. Knox of Pennsylvania talk about the power of the press for good.

Gov. Charles E. Hughes, who was expected to make a speech, sent a telegram of regret, saying that owing to the press of official duty in Albany he could not be present.

The invocation was said by Bishop Burgess. In the name of Frank B. Noyes, President of The Associated Press, and on behalf of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, Herman Ridder, its President, introduced as the toastmaster Gen. Charles H. Taylor, editor of The Boston Globe.

In addition to those already named the following were among those at the guest table: Charles H. Grasty, manager of the Munsey newspapers; Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, Melville E. Stone, manager of The Associated Press; George Thompson of The St. Paul Dispatch, Medill McCormick of The Chicago Tribune, H. N. Kellogg, Labor Commissioner; Rufus N. Rhodes of The Birmingham News, and Patrick F. Murphy.

Mr. Bryan walked into the big ballroom when the dinner had almost been served. When he reached the Speakers' table the diners rose up and cheered him.

Gen. Taylor, the toastmaster, said that he did not want to congratulate his audience upon being self-made men. There was only one self-made man in this country, he went on, and that was Dr. Mary Walker.

The Growing Size of Newspapers.

Gen. Taylor wanted to defend the editors and managers of the newspapers of this country from the charge of a tinge of commercialism. He recalled the time when eight-page dailies were sold in New York for from 2 to 4 cents; when Sunday editions of only twenty or thirty pages were sold for a nickel. And now the Sunday editions were selling from forty to sixty pages for the same 5 cents, and some of the dailies were giving from sixteen to twenty pages for 1 cent. The journalistic conundrum of the age was where this tendency was to stop, he said.

And not only were the newspapers giving more for less money now than a comparatively few years ago, but it was of a better quality.

"I consider these men here in front of me real philanthropists," he said, whereat the audience gave itself up to applause.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise told a story or two to get himself in good shape for his speech, and they related mostly to Mr. Bryan. He said that Mr. Bryan was not now so good a speaker as in 1896; for then he was speaking on his metal. He recalled a man, however, who thought that a celebration one Lincoln Day was in honor of Lincoln, Neb., where William Jennings Bryan lived.

Rabbi Wise said that it was a popular idea that the most powerful man in this country was the President of the United States. He started in to say that this was a mistake, since the man of the press is the most powerful, but the audience, seeing a chance to applaud Roosevelt, almost drowned his voice in that applause.

"These are out-of-towners, evidently," murmured Rabbi Wise, as he waited for the applause to die down so that he could go on with his speech.

The Power of the Press.

In pointing out instances of the power of the press the speaker recited the case of Dreyfus, who had been rescued by the newspapers of the world, he said, and the more recent instance of the reporters in the Reichstag, Berlin, Germany, who refused to report any of the doings of that body until one of its members had apologized for calling them "swine" or something like that. The member did make a full and public apology, and then the reports were resumed.

"The press is the people's university," he declared, "and it never closes its doors nor takes a vacation."

He pleaded against what he called "the dollarization of the press," saying that the real yellow journal was the one based on gold. He asked the editors and newspaper managers not heed the cry of the multitude when it was thoughtless, and quit obeying the dictates of political parties. He told them that they should dictate to the political parties at all times. And he would have his hearers "free themselves from the idea that the majority is divine."

Rabbi Wise said that if he had the awarding of the Nobel Prize he would make the awards for several years to the American editors who were doing so much for international peace.

Mr. Bryan was introduced and warmly applauded. He said that it was worth coming all the way from Nebraska to hear the money power get what was coming to it. Mr. Wise had been so radical that he was afraid he would appear conservative by comparison. Mr. Wise, being a minister of the Gospel, could say so many things without being misunderstood. As for Mr. Bryan, whenever he preached a sermon it was charged that he had injected politics into it, and if he made a political speech it was charged that he had been making a sermon.

Mr. Bryan sorrowed that if he had made the speech that Rabbi Wise had just made 100 men would have regarded it as a personal attack on them.

Bryan and the Tariff.

The speaker was glad that he was getting closer to all the newspaper publishers—at least with regard to one matter. They were working for a let-up of the tariff on paper and pulp; he was working on a let-up of the tariff all along the line. The newspapermakers had not always been with him unanimously even on one point.

After referring in a complimentary manner to the management of The Associated Press Mr. Bryan said:

"I take this opportunity to express my appreciation of the treatment that has been accorded me. The association has asked me for advance copies of a great many more speeches than I have been able to give to it, and in asking for an advance copy it has furnished the best proof that it wanted to treat me with fairness. Through The Associated Press I have been able to get my ideas and my arguments before the readers of Republican papers, and I have been less concerned about the editorial comments of Republican papers than about the correctness of the news reports.

"It occurs to me that this is a good place to present a thought which I believe to be worthy of consideration. The metropolitan newspaper is becoming more and more a business enterprise, and less and less a political organ. The advertising columns of the big newspapers are non-political, and where the circulation is large the readers are so divided politically that the paper is by this very fact restrained from aggressive partisanship. Then, too, the owner of a big newspaper is seldom able to do the editorial work, and as he must depend upon others to write the editorials, the paper becomes less and less the representative of the personal opinions of any one. As the years go by, and as the circulation and advertising patronage increase, the papers show an increasing inclination toward political independence.

A Bi-partisan Newspaper Plan.

"In view of this tendency in modern journalism it seems to me that the time is ripe for an experiment. It is much easier for a paper to be bi-partisan than non-partisan; that is, easier to represent both sides than to discuss public questions without taking either side. If the proprietor really wants to conduct a non-partisan paper, and if the readers really want to subscribe for a non-partisan paper, why would not both proprietor and reader be better satisfied with a paper which represented the news impartially in its news columns and then gave to each party representation on its editorial page? If, for instance, a big metropolitan paper wants to become really independent, why should it not employ a representative of each of the parties to furnish signed editorials on political questions? Such a paper would appeal to all parties, and especially to those who are anxious to know both sides of every public question. Is it not an experiment worth trying?

"The so-called independent paper is very apt to become partisan just before the election. This may suit the proprietor if he is anxious to make his paper a party organ. But it is sure to disappoint those who differ from him and who have become subscribers because of the claim of independence. If the proprietor honestly desires to take his paper out of politics and make it purely a newspaper, the bi-partisan plan enables him to carry out his purpose. No paper can be entirely neutral in a campaign, and no editorial writer can conceal his own bias when he writes upon political subjects. If a man can write equally well on both sides, he cannot write very well on either.

"If, on the other hand, the editorials are signed by men who frankly avow their intention of presenting questions from a party standpoint, the reader can make allowance for partisanship and weigh argument against argument. Such an editorial policy would be entirely in harmony with the news service which The Associated Press was organized to give, and for that reason I present the suggestion at this banquet."

Speech of Patrick F. Murphy.

Patrick F. Murphy talked about "Time and Chance—The Uncontrollable Twins." He said in part:

"It is always interesting to meet and study men eminent in journalism and politics. What we admire about great men is their resemblance to ourselves; we are Caucasians and members of the same sex.

"His Excellency, Gov. Hughes, has had a brilliant and phenomenal career. The high and respectful consideration entertained for him by the people is due to one principle of public conduct—do what you think right and take position and power as an accident.

"That distinguished American, William Jennings Bryan—with apologies to Emerson—'hitched his band wagon to a star'—a silvery star—and the golden apples of life had no charm to deflect him from his path; twice he was the leader of a great party. When the Abbé Sevier was asked what he had done during the French Revolution, he thought it sufficient to reply that he had lived through it. In American political life the interviewer is a tyrant more ruthless than Robespierre, and more deadly than the guillotine is a Presidential campaign, with its cartoons that may be seen by an indignant wife, and to have lived through two Reigns of Terror is an achievement worthy of a monument.

"Every speaker and some newspapers are affected by two impulses—one is to tell the truth, and the other is to be agreeable. Sometimes these two impulses coincide—sometimes they conflict; then comes diplomacy—which is the art of seeming to tell the truth and to do it without lying.

"Many strenuous men and earnest workers make mistakes; they fall from truth in climbing toward it. The Almighty intended it; it is mistakes that keep men humble. If a man were successful and satisfied what else would there be to live for? So truth, after all, is the best goal. It forever lures us on, and, like the horizon, forever flies before us.

"To men of skill recognition is sometimes tardy. A statesman is a politician who is dead. Politics has two ways of crushing a man. One is by denying him office, the other is by giving it to him. So defeat is not so terrible. One hundred years from now it may be some consolation to their ghosts to slip from their forgotten graves, and in a Henry Clay-like attitude make midnight attempts to smoke a cigar that may be named for them.

"To be great is to be misunderstood; if there were no critical press, who would the great men have to misunderstand them? As a tennis ball is kept in elevation by successive blows, so public men have become macadamized to the fact that it is better to be abused into prominence than forgotten. It is one of the injustices of fate that a public man is measured not so much by the good he has accomplished as by the blunders he has not committed. One swallow does not make a Summer, but one swallow of an indiscreet cocktail has caused a Winter of political discontent.

"History, we are told, is past politics—a record of the failures of Government; it is noticed most every Government makes history. Perhaps it may be true that the happiest nations—like the happiest women—are those who have no history."

Two Candidates at Dinner.

Senator Philander C. Knox came in toward the end of the dinner. He was greeted with a spontaneous burst of applause. Toastmaster Taylor referred to the two Presidential possibilities who sat at the guest table, and the audience let it be known that there were those among them who appreciated both of the "possibilities."

Senator Knox's Speech.

After paying a tribute to the press Senator Knox said:

"The great need of our country to-day is peace between all interests and confidence in ourselves. With these, the financial convulsion of the last year will soon pass away, and the American press, even more than any other class of public servants, can, by calming popular passion and promoting confidence, bring back again in even greater measure the prosperity of our common country.

"The relation of the press to the people and the ethical standards by which it should be governed was never more accurately set forth than by Mr. Samuel Bowles. He said:

> The newspaper is, perhaps, the most important agent in modern life, and its honest and intelligent service is vital to progress. The community suffers when the individual neglects his civic duties, but when the newspaper is derelict or corrupt the effect is momentous. The newspaper maker on one hand is a manufacturer, but on the other his work is like that of the learned professions, law, medicine, the ministry, and should be conducted in conformity to the standards which are supposed to rule in those callings.
> The journalist has one client, one patient, one flock—that is to say, the whole community. He should let the honors and emoluments of public office go to other people. His own office, if properly administered, is more important and powerful than any that his fellow-citizens are likely to confer upon him.

"I believe this [illegible]ment of the scope of the influence of the press and its real relations to the public is accurate. The press should lend its influence to strengthen the power of the States in matters over which they have and should exercise exclusive control, and to strengthen the Federal Government in matters committed to it exclusively. Its preachments should be a stimulus to the energy and courage of the people, and it should be quite as keen to discourage unnecessary and vexatious interference with the daily affairs of the ninety and nine who are seeking their own happiness and building up our country by diligently pursuing their accustomed avocations as it is keen to hunt down the buccaneers sailing under self-created letters of commercial marque and reprisal and preying upon the commerce of the world."

Attacks Cannon, Payne, and Dalzell.

The following resolution was passed yesterday afternoon at a business meeting of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association:

The American Newspaper Publishers' Association, comprising representatives of daily newspapers printed in every section of the country and gathered in annual convention, protests against the subterfuge just designed by Speaker Cannon and Representatives Payne and Dalzell, creating a Committee on Paper Inquiry, and thereby blocking the Stevens bill for free paper and free pulp.

We charge that this device was inspired in bad faith. Since early in December, 1907, a committee of this body has been clamoring at the doors of the Ways and Means Committee for an opportunity to show the power of illegal combinations of paper makers to raise paper prices, and the effect thereon of existing tariff restrictions. Messrs. Payne and Dalzell have repulsed all such efforts. The Speaker of the House has turned away his face whenever any member tried to raise the issue on the floor of the House. We are now amazed to find that Messrs. Cannon, Payne, and Dalzell have changed their tactics and avow a desire to study the tariff phases of this paper question. They say they want the whole matter investigated thoroughly, though they know that such inquiry will carry over the entire proposition to the next session of Congress. They now pose as champions who have been eagerly asking for that which for four months they had the power to refuse and which they did refuse.

The Committee Mistrusted.

"With the utmost respect and deference for the authority of Congress, we respectfully state that we mistrust the committee just appointed. We challenge the intentions of those who have thus far succeeded in side-tracking the Stevens bill. We charge that action on the Stevens bill has been delayed to the advantage of a combination of paper makers who, in a desperate effort to maintain artificial prices upon a declining market, have shut down nearly 50 per cent. of their mills, and who, by throwing into idleness a considerable number of their employes, have shown the insincerity of their professions that the tariff duty on paper was needed to protect that paper.

A resolution was also adopted at the afternoon meeting thanking President Roosevelt for "his kindly and courageous message in favor of free pulp and print paper."

The souvenirs last night at the dinner were two daintily printed volumes bound in Japanese vellum, one containing a history of newspaper printing from the earliest times, and the other a list of the members of The Associated Press and the American Newspaper Publishers' Association. The little books were in a case.

TO SAVE THE EYES OF SCHOOL CHILDREN

Women Principals Recommend Better Light and Improvement in Paper and Pictures.

WERE ADVISED BY OCULISTS

Board of Education Asked to Consider a Woman Candidate for Associate Superintendent.

Suggestions for the protection of the eyes of the pupils in the New York public schools were made yesterday afternoon to the Board of Education by the Association of Women Principals. Members of the Principals' Association recently called into consultation with them these oculists: Drs. Charles S. Bull, Frank J. Blodgett, Peter A. Callan, A. Edward Davis, Alexander Duane, Walter Eyre Lambert, Henry S. Oppenheimer, Thomas R. Pooley, Edgar S. Thomson, Frank Van Fleet, John E. Weeks, and David S. Webster.

With the advice of these specialists it was decided to recommend to the Board of Education that hereafter no text book be used in the schools printed on calendered paper, which casts a glare; that none of the illustrations in the books or elsewhere be printed from half-tone cuts; that no electric globes except frosted ones be used in the schools; that all lights in night schools be provided with green shades; that each pupil be required to hold his book when studying at an angle of 45 degrees, and that when reading aloud he be required to look up frequently from the page; that the seats in all the schools be built to suit the size of the children using them.

A petition was presented from the Association of Women Principals, which read:

"Resolved, That the Board of Education be petitioned to consider a woman candidate for the vacancy existing in the Associate Superintendency due to the appointment of Mr. George S. Davis as President of the Normal College."

It is understood that the friends of Miss Julia Richman and Miss Grace C. Strachan, District Superintendents, are actively working for them.

Alfred Mosely, the English philanthropist, addressing the board, made a plea that fifty teachers instead of twenty be permitted to go to England next Fall, declaring that the smaller number could not adequately represent the city.

He expressed the hope that some American philanthropist would contribute toward the expenses of the New York teachers, recalling the fact that when the Welsh teachers left for this country David Davis, a wealthy Welshman, gave each $150 to spend on the trip. The board then passed a resolution increasing the number of teachers to fifty.

The matter of disciplinary schools was referred to the Board of Superintendents.

LOOK OUT FOR YOUR NOSE

If the nasal douche were to be found on every washstand with the cake of soap—and the human nose were to be cleansed—aseptically cleansed—every day, Catarrh, mouth-breathing and many of the preventable, contagious, death-dealing diseases that blot our civilization would cease to be.

SCHENCK'S ANTISEPTIC NASAL WASH AND GARGLE

is good for the nose, the throat and the mouth. It is a powerful antiseptic, yet so harmless that it may be taken internally for stomach disorders. It cleanses thoroughly. It heals and strengthens sore and tender surfaces. It drives away Catarrh. It is bland, non-irritating.

It leaves the nasal passages, the throat and the cavity of the mouth in cool, clear, clean and sanitary condition, fortified against contagion; used regularly it makes one contagion proof.

It is economical to use and it comes in plain bottles, 25c, 50c and $1.00 sizes, and in SCHENCK'S BOTTLE (pat.) Traveller's size, 50c.

THOUSANDS CHEER ALFRED VANDERBILT

Great Enthusiasm Aroused by His Trial Coaching Trip to Brighton.

OVATION OF SEVEN HOURS

Road from Reigate to End of Journey Almost Blocked with Spectators —Coach 50 Minutes Late.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 22.—Alfred G. Vanderbilt met with a veritable ovation today practically all the way from the Berkeley Hotel in London to the Metropole in Brighton while he was making his first trial trip with his four-in-hand coach over the old Brighton Road.

As I stated in my wireless message to THE NEW YORK TIMES last Saturday, Mr. Vanderbilt made a trial trip over the road with a tandem last week. On that occasion he practically succeeded in covering the distance from London to Brighton and back without being recognized. To-day, however, enthusiasm at the appearance of the American millionaire and his smart coaching turnout was the signal for almost continuous enthusiasm.

Mr. Vanderbilt's American-built coach Venture, not having been brought from the steamship docks, the English coach Meteor was substituted for to-day's trial. Mr. Vanderbilt, attired in a heavy, fawn-colored coaching coat, with pearl buttons and regulation silk hat, climbed up on the box in front of the Berkeley at 11 o'clock sharp. A brief moment later Walter Godden, the famous old-time coaching guard, who was with Jim Selby when he broke the London-Brighton record with the "Old Times" coach, sprang from the leaders' heads and the coach was off, with Mr. Vanderbilt driving.

Several thousand persons, who had heard of the projected trial, all but blocked the traffic as the coach, pulled by the famous grays at a spanking trot, bowled along Piccadilly toward Hyde Park Corner. Waiting crowds, together with cabmen, 'bus drivers, and even chauffeurs, set up great cheers as the coach rolled along, and Mr. Vanderbilt took off his hat in response to the demonstrations, which were repeated at intervals along the entire road to Brighton.

The coach took a fresh relay of horses at each of eight inns, already referred to in my dispatches, and finally reached the Metropole in Brighton at 6:08 o'clock this evening, some fifty minutes later than the scheduled time.

At Reigate, the last stop before Brighton, the coach was met by hundreds of vehicles of all description, and from there on a cheering mass of people lined both sides of the road so densely all the way to Brighton that there was barely room for the coach to pass. The passengers in the coach to-day consisted of a few of Mr. Vanderbilt's English friends.

The Vitall Benguiat Collection

FROM THE TRIBUNE.

"The American Art Galleries are filled with antique textiles, laces, and so on belonging to Mr. Vitall Benguiat. The collection, which runs to nearly eight hundred pieces, is to be sold on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday afternoons. The gorgeous brocades and velvets it contains do most, of course, to make the rooms brilliant, but even greater interest attaches to the extraordinary body of lace that is shown. This embraces beautiful examples from the historic periods, for which there will doubtless be energetic competition amongst feminine bidders. There are pieces, too, which will interest collectors, and which in more than one instance would go well into the Metropolitan Museum. One of the things that it would be gratifying to have placed in that institution is the rare Gothic vestment of Spanish origin, No. 727a. In design, in workmanship, and in color this piece of lace is nothing less than a masterpiece. Mr. Benguiat's collection also includes some fine tapestries and a number of picturesque sanctuary lamps made by old Italian, Spanish, and French craftsmen."

KURDISH TROUBLE SERIOUS.

Rising Against Russia Spreading—Anxiety at St. Petersburg.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 22.—The situation on the Persian frontier is considered here to be becoming steadily more serious despite the check to the Persian brigands on April 20, when the Russian forces drove the bandits back with heavy losses. The rising is gradually spreading, other mountaineers now flocking to the assistance of the tribes against which the operations are being conducted.

Col. Konovalosef, the Russian Chief of Staff of the Frontier Guard, believes the struggle will not be terminated until the Persians have received a lesson like that of fifteen years ago, when a Russian punitive expedition crossed the frontier, and, after extended operations, killed over 1,000 tribesmen and compelled two tribes to sue for peace.

The tribesmen are intensely hostile to the Russians, and mutilate savagely the wounded Russians that fall into their hands. They are well armed and the operations against them consequently are most difficult for the troops. The frontier guard is inadequate to cope with the situation, and a military expedition is required to assist them. No aid is expected from Persia.

The Foreign Office has not received confirmation of the dispatch from Urumiah, Persian Armenia, to the effect that bodies of Turkish troops are advancing on the disputed districts on the frontier in the neighborhood of Tergevar. The Russian officials are loath to believe that the Turks will venture to reassume the aggressive on the eastern frontier just when the Powers are approaching a settlement with regard to Macedonia and the conclusion of the Anglo-Russian accord, which it is expected will be announced within a few days.

Foreign diplomats, however, are convinced that Turkey means to occupy the disputed territory in Western Persia at any cost short of war, and they doubt the accuracy of the Foreign Office officials' prognosis.

CONGRATULATES CABRERA.

Roosevelt Cables Guatemalan President Whose Life Was Attempted.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—President Cabrera was congratulated by President Roosevelt to-day on his escape from death at the hands of assassins. The congratulatory message was sent after the details of the attack had been received officially from United States Minister Heimke, whose dispatch came by cable last night. The details of the affair differ somewhat, according to the official account, from the story told in the press dispatches. The official dispatch says:

"At two o'clock yesterday (Monday) afternoon, as the President of Guatemala entered the palace to receive me in public audience, five cadets of the military academy—forming a part of his body guard—attempted to assassinate him, and in the mêlee he received a bayonet thrust through his left hand, while an officer of his staff is said to have been killed.

"At the same hour, when I was about to take a carriage to proceed to the palace for my reception, the Under Secretary of State came with the message from the President, who advised me that in consequence of what had happened my reception would be postponed for a few days more. Just after the attack I sought and, with great difficulty, obtained an interview with the President at the palace, where he has chosen to remain, heavily guarded.

"It is said that the five cadets have been shot. The authorities immediately ordered the stores closed and the cessation of street traffic. The city is quiet; the populace is astounded and condemns the attack."

TCHAYKOVSKY'S CASE DRAGS.

Intimation He May Be Expelled from Empire and Not Go to Siberia.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 22.—It is almost certain that the fate of Nicholas Tchaykovsky, the Russian revolutionist who now is in the Fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul, will ultimately be settled by administrative order, and it is intimated that the most his foreign friends can hope for is the substitution of expulsion from the empire for exile in Siberia.

The second American petition, asking for a speedy trial and the release of Tchaykovsky, has been referred to the Department of Police, which still has charge of the case.

AMERICAN FAIR IN PARIS.

Art Association Raises Funds by Conducting Latin Quarter Kermess.

PARIS, April 22.—A unique event, which was attended by a large number of Americans this afternoon and evening, was a "Latin Quarter Kermess," or bazaar, given by the American Art Association to raise funds for its treasury.

The affair was held in the Galerie de la Charité, the beautiful hall in the Rue Pierre-Charron, which was built by Mme. Anna Gould as a memorial to the victims of the great fire of 1897. The gallery was converted into a medieval street, with booths and representations of Oriental scenes.

The attractions were varied. There were a concert and an up-to-date American minstrel show. The patronesses included Mrs. White, the wife of the American Ambassador, and Mrs. Mason, the wife of Consul General Mason.

LIABILITY BILL SIGNED.

Bonaparte Says It Is Not an Unconstitutional Act.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—President Roosevelt to-day signed the Employers' Liability bill upon receiving an opinion from Attorney General Bonaparte that the measure was constitutional.

The bill makes railroads or other common carriers, while engaged in inter-State commerce, liable for the injury or death of an employe if the injury or death res [illegible] whole or in part, from the negligence of any of the officers, agents, or employes of such carriers, or by reason of any defect or insufficiency in equipment.

FOOD.

BUILT RIGHT

Brain and Nerves Restored by Grape-Nuts Food.

The number of persons whose ailments were such that no other food could be retained at all, is large and reports are on the increase.

"For 12 years I suffered from dyspepsia, finding no food that did not distress me," writes a Wis. lady. "I was reduced from 145 to 90 lbs., gradually growing weaker until I could leave my bed only a short while at a time, and became unable to speak aloud.

"Three years ago I was attracted by an article on Grape-Nuts and decided to try it.

"My stomach was so weak I could not take cream, but I used Grape-Nuts with milk and lime water. It helped me from the first, building up my system in a manner most astonishing to the friends who had thought my recovery impossible.

"Soon I was able to take Grape-Nuts and cream for breakfast, and lunch at night, with an egg and Grape-Nuts for dinner.

"I am now able to eat fruit, meat, and nearly all vegetables for dinner, but fondly continue Grape-Nuts for breakfast and supper.

"At the time of beginning Grape-Nuts I could scarcely speak a sentence without changing words around or 'talking crooked' in some way, but my brain and nerves have become so strengthened that I no longer have that trouble." "There's a Reason." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

RIVALS MUST WAIT FOR AMERICAN CAR

Contestants in New York to Paris Auto Race Will Leave Vladivostok Together.

A GOOD RACE IN SIBERIA

72D DAY OF THE RACE.

Car.	Reported.	Distance.
*Thomas.	Valdez	6036
†Zust	Seattle	4836
†De Dion	Seattle	4836
‡Protos	Pocatello, Ida.	2966

*Found Alaskan trails impassable and returned from Valdez to Seattle, arriving there Friday. Sailed April 21 for Yokohama, en route to Vladivostok.

†Sailed for Yokohama April 14 en route to Paris via Vladivostok. Due Yokohama April 29.

‡Shipped to Seattle. Took steamer from there April 20 for Vladivostok.

The New York to Paris racers now en route across the Pacific to Vladivostok on three steamers will start out from that port on the ten-thousand-mile journey across Siberia and Europe together. They will have every opportunity to race on their merits through the desolate and undeveloped country between Vladivostok and Irkutsk, and then over the better roads of Eastern Siberia into Moscow and Nijni Novgorod and on through St. Petersburg, Berlin, and Aix la Chappelle to Paris.

This decision was reached yesterday by those having the conduct of the race in charge, and a cablegram was immediately sent to the contestants to that effect. Notice was also sent to the representatives of the various firms entered in the race, so that instructions might be sent by them to their drivers as well.

The decision was a result of the departure of the De Dion and Zust cars from Seattle in advance of the Thomas car. After the Americans had gained a material lead in the race across the United States, that lead was thrown away by reason of their inability to cross Alaska. The machine, upon its arrival at Valdez, found the trail impassable and immediately turned about and came back to Seattle with the intention of going to Paris via Vladivostok. The Zust and De Dion meantime were en route from San Francisco to Seattle. On arriving at Seattle and learning that the Thomas was on its way back, the two took passage to Yokohama on the Japanese steamer leaving the next day. They were gone three days on their way across the Pacific when the Thomas reached Seattle again.

The Thomas planned to go direct from Seattle to Vladivostok, but on reaching the former place found it necessary to have the passports for the crew viséd by a Russian official before entering Russian territory. Accordingly they were unable to sail on the direct steamer, but were forced to go by way of Yokohama, where there is an official to take action on behalf of the Russian Government. The steamer on which the car sailed is a slower one than that which took the foreign cars to Japan, and the Thomas will accordingly arrive at Yokohama ten days behind the De Dion and Zust. It is not expected that the foreign cars will wait in Japan for the Thomas to arrive, but will probably go direct to Vladivostok, and await the Americans there.

The road which the cars will probably follow across Japan is to Tsuruga, where they may get a regular line of steamers operating to Vladivostok. The run across Japan is not expected to take longer than two or three days at the outside, while the trip across the Sea of Japan should take two days. Allowing eighteen days for the passage of the Pacific, the Thomas car should arrive at Vladivostok on May 12 or 13, and all should be ready to leave Vladivostok after complying with the customs formalities on May 15. It is expected that the trip from Vladivostok to Paris will take upward of two and a half months, so that they should arrive in Paris, barring accident, about Aug. 1.

The progress of the very unusual race across Siberia will be watched by automobilists with the greatest interest, especially in view of the remarkable demonstration made by the cars in their crossing of the United States.

BRITISH TREATY RATIFIED.

Senate Acts on Arbitration Convention, Ignoring Many Irish Protests.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—In opposition to protests from every section the Senate to-day in executive session ratified an arbitration convention with Great Britain. The protests came from Irishmen and Irish organizations throughout the United States.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians, Clanna-Gael, Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, and Robert Emmet Societies bombarded the Senate with yards of names, attached to warnings that England's word was no good, and that the "oppressor of the Emerald Isle" wanted the convention drawn so that she might lull to rest the suspicions of the United States and jump this country's shores when the Government was not looking.

A similar treaty with Spain also was ratified.

BRYAN GOES HOME TO-DAY.

Afternoon and Evening of Speeches and Talks on Ryan's Testimony.

Although William Jennings Bryan did not retire until 3 o'clock yesterday morning, after a night of exhaustive speechmaking, he started right in again on another speechmaking programme, which was not finished until late at night. He addressed a meeting of business men, later a body of law students, and in the evening spoke at the joint dinner of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association and The Associated Press at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Mr. Bryan will leave town early this morning for his home in Lincoln, Neb., with his family. He will not return to the East until after the Denver Convention, when he hopes to enter New York as the Democratic nominee for the Presidency.

Mr. Bryan spent a busy day yesterday. He didn't get up until late, rushed off to pay a visit to ex-Senator Charles A. Towne; at the latter's office was interviewed a couple of times, received a delegation of bricklayers, and a set of resolutions. In the course of his interviews he had something to say about the Ryan testimony before the Grand Jury, and he acknowledged that Lieut. Gov. Chanler was among those being considered for the Vice Presidential nomination.

The Nebraskan was asked whether he had read the Ryan testimony, and he said he had. He agreed that it carried out his assertion of some years ago, when he said that money was being used to defeat him.

Mr. Bryan asserted also that the captain of industry was entitled to a reward for his work "when that reward is not excessive." He said, too, that organized labor had helped to bring about many political reforms.

In the course of the day Mr. Bryan was asked point blank whether any local Democrats had asked his advice as to the holding of a second State Convention.

"Not that I recall," he answered. "Of course, they would understand that that was something on which I would not give advice."

ALBANY, April 22.—Senator McCarren said to-day that he would attend the conference of Democrats to be held at Utica on Saturday, but would advise against holding a second State Convention. Said he: "The Murphy-Conners matter can be taken care of through the regular channels."

BRYAN TO LAW STUDENTS.

Discusses Public Speaking and Ideals and Is Roundly Cheered.

Before starting on his evening round of speeches William Jennings Bryan delivered yesterday an address to the students of the New York University Law School. About 1,000 young men and women were present and cheered Mr. Bryan lustily when he entered the room. He chose for the subjects of his discourse public speaking and ideals.

"In public speaking," he said, "you must first know what you are going to talk about and then mean what you say. When you find a man that on account of pecuniary reasons will not accept the truth do not waste your breath on him.

"For example, if you tell a man that it is wrong to steal, and he replies, 'Oh, I don't know,' don't argue with him—search him. [Laughter.] A clear, brief statement of the truth is the best method of public speaking. I have tried for years to reform the habit of long and tedious public speeches.

"We are the victims of circumstances as they frequently change plans—my plans have been changed by circumstances." [Laughter.] He added that as a boy he had three ambitions, to be a preacher, to be a farmer, and to be a lawyer.

In answer to a question as to what he had done in Congress the speaker gave a brief synopsis of his life, but flatly refused to discuss the Presidential nomination. He also gave his views on the income tax, which he said should be adjusted so that the rich did not put their burdens on to the poor. He repeated his views on what to do for the unemployed. After his speech the students cheered Mr. Bryan and crowded around him to shake his hand.

BRYAN TO BUSINESS MEN.

Excoriates the Money Devil and Monopoly—Says He's No Demagogue.

William Jennings Bryan spoke to the members of the Business Science Club in the rooms of the Aldine Association, 111 Fifth Avenue, last night. The keynote of his remarks was furnished by a story he told of an elevator man in a big office building and a corporation lawyer agreeing in a casual conversation that their respective jobs were good ones, and they probably could keep them for life.

"But what's worrying me," they both agreed, "is what is to become of my children?"

Mr. Bryan said that he desired to leave his children something better than money. He also said that President Roosevelt and leading Republicans in their suggestions for expedients to check present tendencies were far more radical than he himself had ever been.

In referring to Secretary Taft in this connection Mr. Bryan seemed to show by inference that he believed that Mr. Taft would receive the nomination.

Mr. Bryan began his speech with a comparison of the two parties. The Democratic, he believed, was nearer to the hearts and interests of the people, while the Republican Party was the aristocratic party.

Referring to monopoly Mr. Bryan said: "When you have a monopoly you can discharge the best man you have, and put a son-in-law in his place.

"Some of you have heard me called a demagogue," Mr. Bryan continued, "but I do not want the man who has called me that to do it again or take it back.

"If you have ever called me a demagogue I want you to take it back. I want nothing from the American people. The fact that I was a candidate twice gives me a position that I could use anywhere. I don't need any office or any honors, but I wan't to leave my children something better than money, than the reputation of one who has run for office. My children will live after me, and afterward my grandchildren. I cannot protect them with money. There is a richer legacy—good government is the best legacy a father can leave a child. I am more proud of my boy when he puts on overalls to help around the farm than when he puts on a dress suit to go to a party."

BATTLESHIP MONEY OR VETO.

President Threatens to Disapprove Naval Bill as Passed by House.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Should the Senate, as did the House, fail to make any appropriation for the two battleships which are authorized in the Naval Appropriation bill, President Roosevelt will veto the measure.

After the President had made this statement to the Senate leaders to-day, Senator Hale announced that he would propose an amendment appropriating $7,000,000 for the construction of these ships.

The President stated his position with equal emphasis and suddenness to-day upon learning that the bill as passed by the House was simply a "paper" provision for naval increase. Authorization of the ships was made, but no money carried to make the provision effective. Such legislation as this, the President made known to his numerous Congressional callers, was a travesty as to effectiveness as well as bearing all the earmarks of legislative legerdermain, intended to make rediculous his campaign for the greater navy.

Japanese Tourists at Wild West.

The fifty-seven Japanese tourists now in town visited Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show last night as the guests of J. K. Imanishi, the manager of the Yokohama Specie Bank in New York. They applauded wildly when twenty of their countrymen came on in a juggling act with an equal number of Arabs. The party sail for England to-day on the Cedric to continue their tour through Europe and Siberia to Japan.

MAGNIFICENT BALL FOR FLEET OFFICERS

Over 1,200 Couples in Grand March in Shriners' Hall at Los Angeles.

SAILORS HAVE A WET DAY

Outdoor Entertainments Planned for Them Postponed—School Children Visit the Connecticut.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 22.—A magnificent ball brought to a close the fifth day of the stay of the American battleship fleet at the Port of Los Angeles. It was given in the immense Shriners' Auditorium in honor of the Admirals and officers of the fleet, and it is estimated that more than 1,200 couples took part in the grand march, which was led by Rear Admiral Thomas and Mrs. Adna R. Chaffee, wife of Gen. Chaffee.

Heavy showers caused a postponement of most outdoor celebrations planned for to-day, including the boxing bouts, the barbecues, and Wild West shows. More than 8,000 bluejackets and marines came ashore in the early morning, and while disappointed that the principal features of the day had to be abandoned, they had a good time, despite the rain, galloping through the city on horseback, riding about in automobiles, and attending the theatres.

To-day's storm put an end to many entertainments afloat as well as on shore. A stiff breeze from the southwest piled up a heavy sea at the beaches, where three of the four divisions are anchored, and made boating too dangerous to be attempted during a greater part of the forenoon and until well along toward evening.

The first of the ship launches sent away to the shore in the early morning made safe journeys, but they danced about in a fashion too lively for inexperienced navigators, and orders were sent out that no visiting parties would be allowed on board any of the ships at Long Beach Redondo and Santa Monica. The ships of the first division, the Connecticut, the Kansas, the Vermont, and Louisiana, anchored in the lee of the long protecting breakwater at San Pedro, did not feel the effects of the blow and rough water outside. They were open to visitors throughout the day, and several hundred persons braved the weather and the wet launches to get a glimpse of the big vessels.

During the morning the Connecticut was open only to school children, and big parties of eager-eyed school girls and boys were guided to all the points of interest. At one time there were 300 of the children on board. They gathered on the forward deck and, accompanied by the ship's band, sang "America." The sailors gave them three cheers when they were taken off on an excursion steamer.

Three-fourths of the fleet entertainment fund raised in this city has been spent on the enlisted men. They have shown their appreciation of attention devoted to them by making their conduct almost unexceptionable.

The officers and men of the fleet are much impressed with the lavishness of the entertainment here. Rear Admiral Sperry, in commenting on the subject to-day, said:

"It is a revelation to me to find such generous welcome and such continuous hospitality as has been shown us. It is the first time in the history of the navy that the men seem to lack absolutely nothing to make their time ashore both pleasant and profitable. The strength of the navy rests on the respect and confidence of the people, and the best men of the Nation will not serve unless their uniform is respected. This is the first time in my experience that the men have met with universal consideration and respect."

Big Kelly

Alfred Henry Lewis reports a conversation, in substance and almost in phrase, that passed between a Tammany district leader, celebrated in his own circle for a philosophic depth, and certain of his followers.

It relates to the tactics of the Anti-Roosevelt forces and their lack of good strategy.

Here are some extracts:

"Say, if you've got a ship to launch you don't sand th' ways; you slush 'em down with soft soap. An' that goes when it's a case of gettin' rid of a man."

"Diplomacy is any move that lands th' trick—see?"

"Also, it's exactly what them Wall Streeters ain't got."

"Diplomacy does it; diplomacy, an' payin' strict attention to Teddy's blind side."

"What's th' use of kickin' in the gate, when you know where a board is off th' fence?"

'TELL-TALE' TO GUARD VOTES.

Watcher Says Hidden String He Fixed for Boxes Protected Them.

The trial of the recount case, the outcome of which may cause all of the ballots cast in the Mayoralty election of 1905 to be recounted, continued yesterday before Justice Lambert, and as on the previous days the attorneys for Mr. Hearst and Mayor McClellan questioned witnesses to determine whether or not the ballot boxes are in exactly the same condition to-day as at the close of the polls on election night.

George F. England, a clerk in the Brooklyn office of the Bureau of Elections, was the first witness. Mr. Dolson of counsel for the people questioned him regarding the removal of the Brooklyn ballot boxes to the Eagle Warehouse. Mr. England said when the boxes were stored he found some of the seals that are pasted over them loose. These seals were not loose in such a way as to permit anything being dropped through the slots, he said. None of the ballot boxes was broken, but some with glass fronts had the glass cracked.

John A. Smith, who was a policeman in 1905, and who at the time of the election was attached to the Queens Bureau office of the Bureau of Elections, said that when the boxes were removed to the warehouse they were in the same condition that they were in when the polls closed.

"You do not know whether the boxes were disturbed or not?" asked ex-Justice Hasbrouck, one of the Mayor's lawyers.

"Oh, yes I do. I had a way of telling. I arranged a tell-tale in regard to that."

"What is a tell-tale?"

"A tell-tale is a string through the clasps and locks on the top tier of boxes, which is so arranged as not to attract any attention, but which will make any interference with the boxes noticeable. My tell-tale was a thin string." It was, he explained, an old police idea.

"Then another policeman could have arranged it the same way that you did?" he was asked.

"I don't guess he would fix it exactly my way. I may say we mark these telltales with chalk, so that you couldn't notice it, but if they are disturbed you'd notice it all right."

Alexander M. Ross of the Richmond office of the Bureau of Elections said that in a number of cases the outside wrappers on the packages of stubs and unvoted ballots had been broken. Mr. Richards then put in evidence a letter that Ross had written to ex-President Voorhis of the Bureau of Elections, in which he stated that the lock on one of the ballot boxes was missing when it was received.

BANKERS FIGHT EXPRESS COS.

Ask Inter-State Commission to Stop Them from Selling Money Orders.

Inter-State Commerce Commissioner Clark and several lawyers were busy yesterday in the office of the Law Reporting Company, 67 Wall Street, investigating a complaint made by the American Bankers' Association against the principal express companies. The companies are charged with selling travelers' checks, letters of credit, and money orders at low prices in opposition to the banks, and the bankers want it stopped.

The express companies deny the charge and say that the Inter-State Commerce Commission has no jurisdiction in the case. Fred I. Kent, the prime mover in the case for the bankers, who comes from Chicago, contended that the express companies, as common carriers, go beyond their chartered province when they sell letters of credit and issue express money orders, and that it amounts to a discrimination against the banks of the country.

John S. Miller of Chicago, who represented the Standard Oil Company in its celebrated $29,000,000-fine suit, with George Packard, also of Chicago, was counsel for the bankers. Frank H. Platt and George W. Field appeared for the United States Express Company, John G. Milburn and T. B. Harrison, Jr., for the American Express Company, A. B. De Gersdorff and Mr. Harrison for the Adams Express Company, C. W. Stockton for the Pacific and Wells Fargo Company, and George L. Shearer for the Southern Express Company.

The hearing will continue to-day.

STAMP MACHINES' SUCCESS.

Government Will Soon Let Contracts for Penny-in-the-Slot Kind.

The penny-in-the-slot stamp machines in the south corridor of the Post Office are doing a rushing business. Last Friday 2,000 one-cent stamps were sold automatically, and one-half of that number were sold by the one-cent stamp machine in two hours. The machine was kept busy all day and the roll of stamps inside had to be replenished frequently.

There are three of these machines in the Post Office, participating in a competition between six slot-machine companies. This competition will decide which of the companies will receive the contract to furnish slot-stamp machines to the Government for Post Offices and drug stores throughout the country. Five of the competing companies have their machines working in other cities. They have been in operation three weeks, and the result of the competition will probably be made known in a week or two.

OLD BRIBE MONEY FOUND.

$10 Discovered in the Controller's Safe After Thirty Years.

Evidence of graft in the Finance Department was unearthed yesterday, but it was more than thirty years old. An old safe which has been unused for a very long time was opened, and in a sealed drawer was found this letter:

> Feb. 4, 1876.
>
> Hon. A. H. Green, Controller:
>
> Sir: Inclosed please find $10, which is bribe money received from J. R. Wright. There is a drive in it, I think, and should be kept a secret at present. Yours truly,
>
> A. D. FORD.

Two five-dollar bills were attached to the note. The writer, according to the records, was once an employe of the department. He died not very long ago. The safe was in the Chief Clerk's office. The drawer where the letter was found had been locked for thirty-two years, and it took a locksmith to open it. The money goes into the "conscience fund."

Betting Book Made in a Wagon.

Edward Dunn of 260 West Seventeenth Street and Thomas Murphy of 316 East Twelfth Street, with a bankroll of $250, openly made book on the races from a wagon in Union Square yesterday, according to Detectives Finan and Nugent, who arrested them. The detectives said they placed a bet themselves. Magistrate Butts in the Yorkville Police Court held the men in $1,000 bail each for examination to-day.

SCHOOLGIRL MATCH CAN'T BE ANNULLED

Stern Grandpa Runs Foul of the Law and So a Compromise Is Arranged.

RUNAWAYS AGREE TO WAIT

When Cruel Circumstance Has Taken Flight the Girl and the Boy May Rewed, If—

Under the conventionalizing pressure of elder-minded authority, Mrs. Florence Farwell McGibbon, 19 years old, and her husband, Roy Hosmer McGibbon, 21, decided yesterday that they had done a very foolish thing in slipping away on Tuesday afternoon from the Fifth Avenue finishing school where young Mrs. McGibbon has been for the last two years, and getting married. Having recovered from the first impulse and the determination "Stern parents shall never part us," they were tearfully compliant yesterday.

"I have known him for six whole weeks, and I love him very dearly, but if you think that I have done wrong I am willing that the marriage shall be annulled," the bride said yesterday. Then she added, with a blush of pride:

"Because I know that Roy will come back to claim me even if the marriage is annulled, when he can."

Young Mr. McGibbon, while stoutly asserting to reporters that he was perfectly able to support a wife, admitted to his elders yesterday that he had got himself into a scrape.

"I've only taken one year of the medical course at McGill University, at Montreal, and I've taken that twice," he admitted to those who pointed out to him the conventions usually resorted to after a Gretna Green flitting, "and I have three years more in the university before I could support a wife—that is, I have three more years if I pass the examinations this term."

And then young Mr. McGibbon thought sadly of the three or four weeks' absence from lectures and laboratories entailed by his Springtime romance. So finally he came to the determination to go back to McGill to-day and resume his studies in the hope of ultimately getting a practice and the support of Florence Farwell that was.

Grandpa's Trump Card.

This satisfactory state of affairs—satisfactory from the before-mentioned elderly point of view—was attained only after the girl's grandfather, William Farwell, had hurried here from Sherbrooke, Canada. Her father, a Canadian with a string of banks, is traveling in Egypt with her mother.

Mr. Farwell, the head of the finishing school, and Edward Wells, Jr., a lawyer at 2 Rector Street, met young Mr. McGibbon in solemn conference in the afternoon at the school. At first young Mr. McGibbon was inclined to filibuster a bit, being, as sometimes happens in Washington, a dissatisfied minority.

But they pointed out to him the conventions; they showed him that he had brought unpleasant publicity to the girl whom he professed to love so devotedly, and then, as a last delicate stroke, they let him see his bride of the day before—now conventionally ill—in the presence of a nurse.

"It was too beautiful for anything," said one of the younger girls of the school to another; "just like Laura Jean Libbey. They promised to wait and wait, years and years, for each other if need be, since they are kept apart by a Cruel Circumstance. Then she cried a little, and he told her to be a brave little woman and not to fear for him; he'd pass his examinations all right and be back and claim her when the Cruel Circumstance no longer oppressed them. Then she told him how foolish they had been, and how her teachers and her relatives thought it best that the marriage be annulled.

"Then she swore she wouldn't change her mind, and he went away. The Cruel Circumstance in the form of the nurse wouldn't let him kiss her good-bye."

Annulment Side-Tracked.

So young Mr. McGibbon went down to the conference willing that the marriage should be annulled. However, the lawyer member of the conference advised against the attempt. He told them that the marriage could not be annulled in fact, since Mrs. McGibbon was 19 years old. Had she been younger there would have been hope in that direction.

So young Mr. McGibbon came out of the conference better than he had expected to do. It was decided:

(a) That young Mr. McGibbon was to return to McGill.

(b) That young Mrs. McGibbon should remain in the school until she is graduated in June.

(c) That they should see one another occasionally, "under proper safeguards and circumstances."

(d) That ultimately, after he has passed many examinations and she has studied some more they shall be married in regulation form.

Young Mrs. McGibbon did not seem as surprised as might have been expected when it was made known to her that the conference had decided that the marriage should not be annulled since it couldn't be.

Among the little girls in the school who creep on tiptoe to her door and regard even the knob of it with the deepest admiration there is a saying that young Mrs. McGibbon told the maid that she had read a little bit—just a little bit of law—about marriages herself, which, if true, accounts for her willingness to have the marriage annulled.

Object of adoration as young Mrs. McGibbon now undoubtedly is among the younger girls, and stimulus as she is to the consumption of Laura Jean Libbey, there was one person about the school who didn't have much regard for the terrible conventions.

"Sure," said the janitor, "it's beyant me to see why they're makin' all of this fuss. Sure he's 21 and she's 19. Why, when I married Bridget I was 20 and she a slip of 16, and divil a bit of fuss was there."

But the janitor wasn't young in modern times.

Which makes a difference.

TAVSHANJIAN RUG SALE.

First Lot in Collection Fetches $16,758—$1,500 for a Carpet.

The sale of the collection of rugs of the late H. S. Tavshanjian, the murdered Armenian rug merchant, at the Fifth Avenue Art Galleries, began yesterday afternoon, and the first lot of rugs brought $16,758. A royal Serapi Ghorovan carpet, 19.6 by 13.5, went to P. Henderson for $700. Robert Collier paid $250 for an Ispahan silk palace carpet with a red ground and medallion centre. J. C. Conover gave $500 for a large Herat rug in soft colors. S. D. Emerson paid $202 for a Kherassan carpet.

H. A. Smith gave $800 for a Persian silk palace rug, said to be a pet piece of the collector, a close weave with over 400 knots in a square inch.

A Hereke rug with a dark wine ground, small old-rose medallion in the centre and seven borders of olive green, dark blue, and red, went to P. F. Carroll for $360. H. C. Chapman paid $165 for a rare Persian silk rug inlaid with silver; an antique Meshed carpet with a Herati design, considered a collector's piece, 11.10 by 7.8, went to F. A. Franklin for $80. Another interesting rug, bought by the collector on his last trip to Persia, representing in the design the mosque of St. Sophia, sold for $52.50. Judge Prescott paid $100 for a royal Tabriz palace rug of fine quality. A royal Tabriz silk carpet, 14.6 by 10.2, brought $1,500.

The sale continues every afternoon this week.

SIX YEARS FOR LAW CLERK.

Delaney Began Thieving by Playing the Races—He Stole $50,000.

In spite of many letters asking for clemency or a sentence to the Elmira Reformatory, Judge Malone, in General Sessions, yesterday sentenced Daniel R. Delaney, who stole $50,000 from Henry E. Coe, a lawyer of 69 Wall Street, for whom he was confidential clerk, to not less than six years and six months in Sing Sing.

Delaney admitted that his first theft was committed about a year ago, when he received a "sure tip" on the races. He lost $50 then, and forged checks for some months after, in the hope of making up his losses.

LOW BIDS AT ACTRESS'S SALE.

Mrs. Leslie Carter-Payne's Effects Bring Small Prices at Auction.

A coat-of-arms, which had had the distinction of being bought at the Stanford White sale by Mrs. Leslie Carter-Payne, was one of the interesting pieces among the actress's effects at the bankruptcy sale in the Fifth Avenue Auction Rooms, at Fourth Avenue and Twenty-eighth Street, yesterday afternoon, and sold for $6.50.

There was a crowd out to see what kind of furniture Mrs. Carter-Payne had used, but they were not all buyers. Among the higher prices $90 was paid for a pair of silver wine coolers of Empire design; a Carara marble group, "Love Wounded," by Romanelli, brought $200; a Vernis-Martin curio cabinet, $60, and a Louis XV. screen, $41. The average prices were low. The sale will continue every afternoon this week.

PRISON FOR LAWYER MILES.

Ex-Assistant District Attorney Must Go to the Island To-day.

Ex-Assistant District Attorney William O. Miles of Kings County, whose conviction for conspiracy to defraud the city by fraudulent damage claims was upheld by the Court of Appeals on Tuesday, was arrested and arraigned before County Judge Dike in Brooklyn yesterday, and will be taken to Blackwell's Island today, there to serve the sentence of one year imposed on him.

Miles for several years had maintained a mill in his office for the manufacture of suits against the city arising from the overflow of sewers. Charles M. Wells and Frank M. Wandell, Jr., two clerks in his office, were convicted with him. Wells received a similar sentence, but Wandell turned State's evidence, and got off with a sentence of three months. Three clerks in the Controller's office were indicted for complicity with Miles, but were not convicted.

SUMMER GARDEN FOR PLAZA.

Two Dining Rooms Will Be Transformed Into a Rose Garden.

Fred Sterry, managing director of the Plaza, sent to Paris for L. Allavoine, the celebrated decorator, to arrange for a Summer garden for the ground floor of the hotel. The Allavoine plans were accepted yesterday, and work on the garden will be started on June 1.

The two Fifth Avenue dining rooms will be redecorated for the purpose. All the wall space in the rooms will be covered with a green lattice, which will have a foundation of boxes. In these boxes crimson ramblers will be planted and an expert gardener retained to keep them flourishing. The ceiling will be hidden by canopies of vines, which will be suspended over the tables. At the apex of these canopies there will be orange-colored globes containing incandescent bulbs.

The rose-colored tapestried chairs will give way to more appropriate furniture, and there will be fountains which will play under colored lights. The Fifth Avenue terrace will have a pergola covered with vines. The rose-trimmed garden of the Plaza will suggest to visitors the Café de Madrid and Armenonville in Paris.

SECRECY OUR GREAT EVIL.

President Eliot Says It Characterizes All Our Public Affairs.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 22.—"The great evil in American governmental affairs, from Washington down to the small cities and towns, is secrecy," said President Eliot to-night while addressing a large audience.

"It characterizes the determining action in all formal action. The trouble lies in the fact that, while there may be a semblance of publicity, the real determination is made out of sight."

COLLEGE GIRL SUFFRAGISTS.

Barnard Students Listen to Arguments by Mrs. Florence Kelley.

The Barnard College girls held a well-attended Woman's Suffrage meeting in the little theatre of the college yesterday afternoon. It was given under the auspices of the Collegiate Equal Suffrage League of New York State, of which Miss Carolin Lexow is President. The audience was composed largely of members of the new Barnard Woman Suffrage Association, of which Miss Juliet Stuart Points is President. Apparently there was not an "anti" in the audience. The college girl antis are to start an organization of their own this week.

Miss Florence Wolf, a Barnard girl, presided, and Mrs. Florence Kelley of the Consumers' League made the speech of the afternoon. She was introduced by Mrs. Mary K. Simkhovitch.

"Why is it," one of the girls asked Mrs. Kelley, "that college girls, as a rule, are opposed to woman suffrage?"

"I think it is the vanity of a little malice," said Mrs. Kelley. "I had something of that spirit when I was in Cornell twenty-five years ago."

"What are the arguments of the antisuffragists?" asked a Barnard student.

"One seems to be," said Mrs. Kelley, "that men are afraid that married women with children would be tempted to neglect their children if they had the suffrage."

WHISKY SCANDAL AT A CHARITY BALL

All Trenton Indignant Over the Conduct of the Crack Essex Troop.

SOLDIERS QUIT THE ARMORY

Governor Fort Incensed and Threatens Court-Martial Proceedings Against Their Commander.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, April 22.—The State Capitol is ringing with indignation over the withdrawal of the crack Essex Troop of Newark from the Charity Ball in the State Armory here last night, because the men could not have whisky as an accompaniment to dancing. The affair has reached the stage of a public scandal. Gov. Fort as Commander in Chief of the National Guard is disgusted.

Shortly after the troop arrived at the armory it was learned by Frederick W. Donnelly, a member of the General Committee, that the men had half a dozen bottles of whisky in the room assigned to them. Mr. Donnelly went to the quarters, and found some of the troopers "oiling up." He informed Capt. Bryant that such practice was in violation of the rules of the ball, and asked him to see that it was stopped.

Capt. Bryant became ruffled, and asked Mr. Donnelly whom he might be, anyway. The latter replied that he would soon prove his authority, whereupon he hunted up Wilbur F. Sadler, Chairman of the General Committee. Mr. Sadler went to the quarters of the troop, and politely repeated the request which Mr. Donnelly had made.

Capt. Bryant promised the drinking would be stopped forthwith. But another attack was made on the refreshments a little later. That the drinking bout had resumed was reported to Mr. Sadler. He then went to Adjt. Timothy Hurley of the Trenton Battalion, and Hurley detailed Lieut. William J. Walsh to put an end to it.

Lieut. Walsh went to the quarters of the troop, and informed Capt. Bryant that the whisky drinking would have to cease. He asked the Captain how much whisky was left, and was informed that one bottle remained.

"If I leave that one bottle here," asked Lieut. Walsh, "will you give me your word of honor that you and your men will not drink it in the hall?"

"No!" thundered Capt. Bryant.

"All right," responded Lieut. Walsh. "Then I'll have to take it away from you. My orders are to prevent this drinking, and I shall do it."

The Lieutenant called half a dozen men to his aid, and the last bottle was confiscated. This made the Captain wroth, and he went to Col. Dungan, commandant of the armory, for an explanation of the treatment. Col. Dungan informed him that the anti-drinking order would have to be obeyed.

Capt. Bryant replied that, under such treatment, he would not allow his troopers to remain in the hall. He thereupon called his men from the dancing-floor, and all marched out of the hall. For this order the Captain was roundly condemned by those members of the troop who had not tapped the bottles.

Capt. William A. Bryant was seen at Newark yesterday and asked about the trouble in the Armory at Trenton.

"Why, the whole thing was just a piece of silly tommyrot," said the Captain. "When we got to the armory we were told that a room had been assigned to us, and that it had a sign on the door designating it as ours. It was a general smoking room, and when we got there there were a whole lot of other people, many of them Trenton citizens.

"Soon after we arrived a friend from Trenton sent in two bottles of whisky for us. I had fifty troopers along, and some of them opened a bottle and drank it in a jiffy. Before they got at the other bottle, however, Mr. Sadler came in and said it was the wish of the committee that no whisky be drunk and asked me to have the other bottle put away. I told him I would do so and that there would be no more whisky consumed. The full bottle was put in a corner back of a desk and wasn't touched.

"Some time afterward a Lieutenant came to me and said Col. Dungan had told him to confiscate the whisky. I told him he was welcome to it.

"As for my ordering the troop away from the dance on that account, it was not so. The only reason I did order them out was because we were hungry and had had nothing to eat. It was then 12:30 o'clock, and I had arranged a little supper for my men."

RACING CAR TURNS TURTLE OFF BRIDGE

Arthur Campbell and His Assistant Duplicate Ryall Accident in Briarcliff Practice.

BOTH HURT, AUTO SMASHED

Campbell Hopes to be Able to Start To-morrow—Robertson in Panhard Jumps the Road.

Arthur Campbell in the Allen Kingston racing car which was entered in the stock car race at Briarcliff to-morrow duplicated exactly the accident to James B. Ryall in his Mathewson car yesterday morning, and turned turtle off an embanked bridge on the Briarcliff circuit into a stream on the eastern side of the course. The car was disabled, and both Campbell and his mechanician, Ralph De Palma, were hurt. That both were not killed was considered a wonder by those who saw the fall.

Early in the morning practice George Robertson in his Panhard racer was spinning around the course, and attempted to take at speed the rough road leading to Mount Kisco on the northern end of the circuit. The car swerved as it bumped over the crest of a hill and the left rear wheel went off in the ditch at one side of the road. The car went on, and each yard imbedded the wheel deeper until it stuck and held fast. The road is so narrow at this point that it was impossible for any other car to pass, and Robertson sent his mechanician back quickly to flag any other racer approaching.

Within a few minutes there was a line of a dozen cars held up at that point, and all of the men came forward to help pull the Panhard out of the mire. After much labor they managed to get the machine back on the road, and Robertson started away to complete the circuit.

The remaining cars, which were bunched together behind him, all set out at the same time, without allowing any time between them. After passing the control at Mount Kisco all of them set off at a swift pace down the eastern side of the course, around Wampus Lake, and into Armonk. The road is very smooth there, and good speed is possible, so that all the cars kept well together to Armonk.

At Armonk, however, the road, though still good, becomes very sinuous and winds in and out down to Lake Kensico, with some very abrupt curves. To make matters worse, there are several narrow bridges on the way, and it is extremely dangerous to speed over them. The leaders, however, got by all right, but Campbell, in the Allen Kingston, was evidently deceived by the pace of those ahead of him or else failed to see the turning ahead quickly enough. At all events, he struck the railing that protects one side of the bridge and was hurtled into the air with his mechanician, while the car turned a complete somersault into the brook on one side.

Campbell fell on his face and smashed the goggles he was wearing into his forehead, cutting his face severely, while the blow stunned him completely. De Palma landed on his shoulder beside him and sprained his arm rather badly. Neither man, however, broke any bones, and both after a few minutes were able to drag themselves to their feet and leave in another car.

Campbell was rather weak from loss of blood, and it was feared that his jaw was broken, but subsequent examination revealed no serious injury of any character. The two men were hurried to the home of Dr. George B. Clark near Armonk, and both went to bed until the effect of the shock was spent. Then both were thoroughly examined and they left together in a touring car for their quarters at White Plains.

The machine, after its somersault, lay in the stream upside down, a complete counterpart of the Matheson after the accident of the previous day. The steering wheel was broken and the steering post and gear damaged beyond repair. The seats were smashed and other minor damages sustained. The car was hauled out of the brook later in the day and taken to the garage, where it was thought it could be repaired in time to start in the race. Another car was immediately shipped from the factory and will be ready to susstitute in event of the racing car not being repaired when the time to start comes. Campbell insists that he will drive the machine when it goes to the line to-morrow.

James B. Ryall, who was hurt on Tuesday, rested comfortably yesterday at his home, with no complications in his condition aside from a fever induced by the double fracture to his ankle. Edward Murray's condition was much improved. It was said at the almshouse hospital at East View that he would remain there for another twenty-four hours.

WHERE TO SEE THE RACE.

The Danger Points on the Circuit and Where They Are Located.

There are various grand stands around the course which afford good views of the racing, but the best points for those on foot to see are along the road on either side of East View, or on the stretch from Mount Kisco all the way to Kensico and Valhalla. Along these stretches there is elevated ground, and the machines can be watched from points of absolute safety. The road between Valhalla and East View is the worst of any part of the course, hilly, sinuous, and rough. There are danger points on the east side from Armonk to Kisco and one or two on the west side. The north end is hilly and rough. The best speed will be made from East View to Millwood and from Mount Kisco to Wampus Lake.

Monte Roberts yesterday drove over the course in his Thomas racer to point out the especially dangerous places in the road, in which a great deal of public interest is always displayed. From start to finish the places are located as follows:

BRIARCLIFF TO MILLWOOD, 3½ MILES.

Hill, abrupt left turn. Winding narrow road down hill, easy turns. Abrupt dip, followed by rolling road. Bad S turn crossing bridge at Echo Lake. Bad S turn over second bridge. Surface of the road generally good all the way.

MILLWOOD TO KITCHAWAN, 2½ MILES.

Railroad grade crossing. Many turns following Croton Lake. Road narrow, with ditch on either side. Surface of road generally good most of the way.

KITCHAWAN TO PINES BRIDGE, 1 MILE.

Winding, very narrow road following lake, guarded only by frail wooden fence. Surface of road, dirt and generally rough.

PINES BRIDGE TO MOUNT KISCO, 8 MILES.

Narrow, winding road. Bad S turn, abrupt right angle, guarded only by a frail fence beside lake. S turn beside lake, but wide roadway. Nasty dip, with tree at exact turning. Short ascent and rough. S turn with fence guarding embankment to lake. Bridge with L turn at end, very narrow. Ascent full of ruts. Abrupt dip with turn and waterfall. Control through Mount Kisco. Road rough surface all the way to control.

MT. KISCO TO WAMPUS LAKE, 4 MILES.

Winding road. Steep hill, requiring change of gears. Bridge over ditch raised, obstacle to speed. Surface of road good all the way, and road sufficiently wide to pass.

WAMPUS LAKE TO ARMONK, 1½ MILES.

Winding road around lake, with one very bad L curve at end. Second L curve followed by wide sweeping curves. Winding ascent. Surface of road fair all the way.

ARMONK TO VALHALLA, 5 MILES.

Abrupt curve over bridge, where Allen-Kingston turned turtle. Winding around lake with two S turns together and bridge on each. Very abrupt L turn, necessitating practical stop. Winding road following Kensico Lake. L turn followed immediately by second like turn. Surface of road good all the way.

VALHALLA TO EAST VIEW, 3¾ MILES.

Rough road through Valhalla; narrow. Railroad crossing and abrupt curve. Steep ascent; very rough. Steadily winding road; very rough, very sharp turns, and abrupt dips and steady rolls. Surface of road very bad all the way; cut up and rough and very muddy if wet.

EAST VIEW TO HAWTHORNE, 2 MILES.

Fine road, though winding. Sharp turn, where Matheson turned turtle over bridge. Sharp turn where Maja turned turtle. Bad tree at abrupt turn. Surface of road excellent for speed.

HAWTHORNE TO BRIARCLIFF, 3¾ MILES.

Fine road, two bridges, easy curves. Railroad crossing and abrupt L curve. Winding road, but abrupt turn where Thomas ran into ditch. Narrow past grandstand. Surface excellent for good speed.

BRIARCLIFF RACERS READY TO START

Legal Matters Which Menaced Event Have Been Straightened Out.

CASH FOR ROAD DAMAGES

Mr. Morrell Meets Demands of State Engineer—Course in Fairly Good Condition—Start at 4:45 A. M.

In spite of threatened injunctions, police interference and other legal entanglements the Briarcliff race will take place to-morrow according to schedule, if the positive assertions of the race officials may be accredited. After State Engineer Skene had hurled his bomb into the racing headquarters' camp, and other local authorities had taken their shy at the Manufacturers' Committee, the men who have been working for the past three months to bring the race about were absolutely certain that the event would be run as arranged.

State Engineer Skene's demands were met yesterday morning by Chairman Robert Lee Morrell, and this morning the guarantee against accidents required by various towns along the course, will be forthcoming. When these preliminaries are arranged there is no reason to expect further complications, although the rumors of injunctions and other difficulties continue to be circulated freely. The gist of the matter is that public sentiment in Westchester County is strongly in favor of the race, and the officials in the neighborhood have their fingers closely pressed against the public pulse.

The difficulty with the State Engineer was the first thing taken up in the morning. Mr. Skene, upon advice from the Attorney General's office, refused to accept the bond which had been prepared to cover damage to the road. It was necessary to put up the cash, and Mr. Morrell gave his personal check for $3,000, which he will supplement this morning with $1,500 more. Mr. Skene expressed himself as entirely satisfied with this arrangement.

When this was out of the way the village of Greensburg came along with a new demand. It wanted a $100,000 deposit against accident in the village. Insurance to this amount had already been secured from Lloyds, and the papers will be shown to the Greensburg officials this morning. Then there were rumors of trouble at various other towns, but no definite developments appeared that promised actual trouble. There was talk of controls being enforced at points other than at Mount Kisco, but as far as the race officials are concerned there will be only the one ten-minute control. Every car that goes through Mount Kisco will be forced to take ten minutes to cover the distance, so that 1 hour and 40 minutes will be spent of the racing time in this two-mile stretch.

The road arrangements have been perfected. The road is in better shape than it has been at any time since the preparations for the race began. In spite of the fact that the racing cars and other simply swarmed over the circuit all day yesterday there was no great damage done to the surface of the road. If rain holds off for thirty-six hours there ought to be much less trouble than was anticipated.

This does not mean that the course is not dangerous or that fast time can be made. This was demonstrated yesterday, when two more cars met with mishaps. The Panhard, on its early morning trial, went off the crown of the road and stuck in the ditch near Mount Kisco. It absolutely blocked the road, and the other cars that were following it around the circuit were flagged and held up until the machine could be extricated. Neither Robertson nor his mechanician was hurt by the accident, and the machine was not damaged.

The tie-up in the road, however, was responsible for the second accident. When the Panhard was cleared and the machines able to go ahead, the lot were speeding together on the eastern circuit and the Allen Kingston car took a header into a ditch off a bridge below Armonk. The car was disabled and Campbell and his mechanician hurt. It looked as though they would be out of the race, but a new car was shipped from the factory and will be ready to start. The wrecked car was hauled out of the stream later and it may be fixed up in time to go to the line. Campbell will drive one or the other.

Route to Reach Course.

Via Yonkers.—Up Broadway to 230th Street, (Spuyten Duyvil,) turn to west to Riverdale Avenue and north into Yonkers, straight ahead via Warburton Avenue through Hastings, Dobbs Ferry, and Irvington to Tarrytown. From Tarrytown go due north to Scarborough and thence eastward, turning at Stephen Memorial, to Briarcliff.

Via White Plains.—Across Central Bridge to Jerome Avenue, past Empire City track to Central Park Avenue, to Tarrytown Road, to White Plains; turn west to Elmsford and follow trolley line to Tarrytown, and then through Scarborough to Briarcliff.

Roads from north shore of Long Island Sound go through White Plains, while from Upper Connecticut road through Danbury leads to Bedford and Newcastle Corners on northern end of course. From the upper State road leads through Lake Mahopac.

Twenty-two cars will start in the race. The twenty-third entry, the Pope-Hartford, failed to materialize. For some reason those interested in the car failed to qualify, and it will not be a competitor. The report of the Technical Committee was still sealed in the hands of Chairman Morrell yesterday while the legal difficulties were discussed, and will not be opened until to-day.

It is intended to shut off the course at 3 o'clock A. M. or earlier, and motorists going to see the race are expected to co-operate with the committee by entering the circuit only from Scarborough, thereby avoiding congestion on the roads leading to other points and the necessity of cars running on the course in opposite directions.

There will be thousands of cars going to the course, and it is desirable that these should make a very early start. The race starts at 4:45 o'clock, which is earlier than the Vanderbilt Cup races have been accustomed to start. Chairman Morrell insists that the start will be made promptly on time.

Those who will go by train will be provided with ample special trains in addition to the regular schedules. The specials on all three divisions start from Grand Central Station, the first one at 1 o'clock A. M. The schedule of these to the various points is as follows:

Harlem Division.—For Valhalla, Hawthorne, Pleasantville, and Mount Kisco, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 A. M. Regular trains additional.

Hudson Division.—For Tarrytown, Scarborough, and Ossining, 1:15, 2:15, 2:45, 3:30, 4:30, 5:45 A. M. Regular trains additional.

Putnam Division.—For Eastview, Briarcliff Manor, Millwood, and Kitchawan, 1, 1:45, 2:30, 3:15, 3:45, 4:15, 4:30 A. M. Regular trains additional.

Inter-City Tennis for Women.

Vigorous performances with the racquet characterized the beginning of the inter-city lawn tennis matches, with women of National ranking competing, yesterday, on the court of the St. Nicholas Rink. Miss Edna Wildey of New York and Mrs. Barger-Wallach of Newport reached the finals of the singles, Miss Phyllis Green, Philadelphia, and Miss Eleanor Sears, Boston, meeting with defeat. The match which Miss Wildey won over Miss Green was prolonged through thirty-four games, ending with a score of 11—9, 8—6. The points were 71—68, 49—44. The match in which Mrs. Wallach defeated Miss Sears was in contrast to the other. It lasted but thirty-five minutes, Mrs. Wallach winning at 6—3, 6—1.

The deciding set of the women's doubles, left over from last Saturday, resulted in favor of Mrs. Barger-Wallach and Miss Juliet Ades, who defeated Miss Edna Wildey and Miss Natalie Wildey by the complete score of 9—7, 4—6, and 6—4. The semi-final of the women's inter-city doubles will hold the court to-day, the Misses Wildey, New York, meeting Miss Eleanor Sears and Miss Marion Fenno, Boston; and the Misses Green, Philadelphia, meeting Mrs. Barger-Wallach and Miss Margaret Busk, Newport.

HARVARD BRAWN BEATS NAVY CREW

RACE ON THE SEVERN RIVER

Greater Weight and Strength and Faster Stroke Bring Cambridge Eight Their Victory.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 22.—By hardly a half length of her shell the Navy this afternoon lost to Harvard's eight-oared crew one of the most interesting and spectacular races ever rowed over the two-mile course on the Severn River. The time was: Harvard, 10 minutes 30 seconds; Navy, 10 minutes 32 seconds. The record for the course over which the race was rowed is about one minute faster than the time made to-day, but while the contest was slow in time and for the first mile a waiting race, it was nevertheless a beautiful one from the standpoint of the spectators.

On account of the tide and wind Harvard preferred to row up the Severn instead of against the whitecaps. This the Navy agreed to. It was a few seconds after 4:45 o'clock when sixteen oars answered the referee's command to go. The Navy caught the water at the rate of 42 strokes to the minute, while her opponents' rate was 40. The difference in strokes told, and the Midshipmen jumped to the front. Their lead was about a quarter of a length, and they held this advantage until the half-mile mark was passed, when their stroke was reduced to 36. Harvard held to her pace of 40 strokes, while Roberts, the Navy coxswain, did not call on his men for a faster clip until the mile post was reached. Here the Navy stroke was raised a notch or two, and the boats went neck and neck for a quarter of a mile, after which the "beef" in the Cambridge shell began to tell. Gradually the visitors' shell crept ahead, while the Navy lost.

Harvard, whose stroke was so utterly different from the Navy's form as to make a comparison of the work in the two shells almost impossible, clearly showed herself the most worthy opponent the sailor lads have met in many seasons. Navy did so well against this crew, which carries a victory back from this its first appearance on the Severn, that neither Coach Glendon nor Capt. Rockwell has any need to feel discouraged over the result. The Navy crew is the lightest by many pounds that has been put out for several seasons, and rowed against the strongest eight that has rowed on the Severn in years.

The crews boated as follows:

Harvard—Faulkner, bow; Fish, 2; Severance, 3; Lunt, 4; Waid, 5; Bacon, 6; Richardson, (C.,) 7; Sargent, stroke; Blagden, coxswain. Average weight, 176¼ pounds.

Naval Academy—Davis, bow; Ainsworth, 2; Leighton, 3; Bagg, 4; McKee, 5; Rockwell, (C.,) 6; Richardson, 7; Kinkaid, stroke; Roberts, coxswain. Average weight, 164¼ pounds.

The officials were: Referee—Curtis Gould of Harvard. Judges at the finish—Midshipman Turner, Mr. Blagden, Harvard, and Mr. Alden Brooks. Timers—Midshipmen Donavan and Munroe and Mr. Morgan, Harvard.

JUMPING HORSES BALK.

Jumping furnished the most amusement to another brilliant assemblage at the second night's horse show of the Durland Company last night, among those present being Col. Daniel Appleton of the Seventh Regiment, Count and Countess Fasso, Mr. and Mrs. John Gerken, Miss Emily H. Bedford, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gerken, Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Chapin, Dr. and Mrs. J. Robeson, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Herbert, Miss Tillie Whiting, and Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Kerr.

At least a dozen horses elected to go over the regulation jump and twice over the water jump. The latter, a new feature of indoor horse shows, was a stumbling block to many of the contestants, and incidentally kept the spectators intensely interested. Julep, a big bay gelding, owned by E. J. Curley, 2d, ridden by Frederick Lee, an attaché of the Durland Academy, was unusually fractious and carvorted around the ring at a lively rate. He kept everything in the ring moving all the time to escape his heels, and finally threw his rider at one of the jumps. Remounting, Lee conquered the bucking animal amid the greatest enthusiasm. Cracker-jack, handled by Dick Donnelly, carried off the honors in the class, with William Caw's Perfection a close second. Much sympathy was expressed for James Butler, Jr., whose Black Bess, by Direct, 2:05½, out of a thoroughbred mare, absolutely refused to take any of the jumps.

A fine collection of horses appeared in the combination class, to be driven first to an appropriate vehicle, and then changed to saddle and ridden. So close was the competition that the judges were unable to make the awards until the horses were shown to saddle. Harvey S. Ladew's Reliance proved himself the best at this way of going, and received the blue ribbon, with Mrs. Edwin C. Kirkland's Colleen second.

Charles Halloway's pony Cardiff, ridden by Cyril Carr, defeated a splendid collection of ponies under saddle, the special feature of this class being that Miss Louise Bisbee, riding astride, got third place with W. C. Bain's skewbald mare May Queen, while her own pony, Pennies, had to be contented with fourth place.

Harvard Player Injured.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 22.—R. H. Aronson, a member of the Harvard baseball team, is at the Naval Hospital with a fractured skull, sustained during the game played with the Midshipmen this afternoon. The injury was received while sliding to a base.

Mr. Crawford's favorite touch of mystery is felt from the very beginning of its plot; New York, an ocean steamer, and different parts of London supply a brilliant background.

BY W. J. LAMPTON.

The grand opening of the baseball season at the Polo Grounds yesterday was grand indeed, and the doors were thrown open two hours ahead of the game in order to accommodate the rush. The rush needed accommodations all right, and if any of it wasn't there nobody could say where else it was. The weather, after making a frappée bluff earlier in the day, showed sunny side up later, and Old Sol handed out the warm goods to all comers. The grounds looked fresh as a meadow in Spring, the advertisements on the fences glittered in new paint, the grand stand was a dazzling display of ladies and gents with the price, the bleachers were chock-a-block with rooters, the press gallery was so full that the workingmen who belonged there had to scrap for desk room, the hill-billies lined Coogan's Bluff, the railbirds roosted along the viaduct, and every other available space had as much in it as it could stand without ripping down the front. The figures say there were 25,000 people inside, and they say that figures won't lie, but information from several reliable grayback watchmen who tried to shove the infringing crowd off the turf back to where they belonged is to the effect that there couldn't have been less than twenty-five million, and every one of them was trying to push past the dead line and get a strangle hold of the home plate.

There were flags flying from various poles, and one big one down near Eighth Avenue bore this inscription: "The New York Baseball Club, 1905, Champions of the World." Of course, as long as you didn't see the date line, you didn't know the difference, but this year is not 1905. What?

There was a band somewhere in sound, but not in sight, and the sound was not enough to keep anybody awake unless he was suffering with insomnia. The usual annual parade of megaterian attractions and wonderful wielders of the willow was not pulled off, owing to the modesty of Mr. McGraw, who is studying for the simple life. There were bouquets, however, set out for the admiring gaze of thousands—a big one, harp shaped, with "Success" in pale-white letters of the valley in relief upon vari-colored bloomers, from Terry McGovern to McGraw and his boys as a token of his Texas esteem, and another one less demonstrative from the Brooklyn rooters to Tim Jordan. Those two comprised the floral exhibition of the occasion. A great many bouquets were thrown to all the players, but they were vocal merely.

Terry McGovern sat in the front row of the press gallery in a soft brown hat, not Merry Widow size; a brown necktie, and a brown study, watching the proceedings. Louis Mann was also down in front and up behind. No ball game is complete without Louis, nor is Louis complete without a ball game. Frank McKee was another one of the fan-tans. Joe Humphreys, the charming and accomplished athletic announcer, had a seat next to the footlights, and what he announced to the crowd when it swarmed down and shut off the view was a-plenty, but not enough to drive anybody back to the woods. Joe never let up either through the entire nine innings, but the crowd would have stood anything except losing a chance to keep in close touch with the stage.

The new ground seats around the edges, put in this year to accommodate the overflow, came in handy for the crowd to drag out to stand on. The snap-shooters were no more modest than they usually are, and cameras were clicking faster than pistols in a Texas peace conference. Just before the game was called a husky band of brave graybacks marched in, and tried to coax the rooters to retire to their own bailiwick, but the rooters gave them the lemon squelch, and did not do a thing but stay where they were. One of Bingham's best could have done more in a minute than the whole bunch of grays, but the Bingham brand is not used for that kind of business. At the same time it may be remarked without fear of successful contradiction that the management of the Polo Grounds in the matter of proper policing is not what it should be. "Rotten" is the word, but it is not polite to use it in public.

The game got under way at last, with Umpire Emslie on the throne and the Suberbas at the bat between Mathewson and Bresnahan. Nothing doing for Brooklyn in the run line, and Pattee, Burch, and Maloney got out as quick as they could. The Giants did not do any better with McIntyre and Bergen, pitcher and catcher, and the first inning was a nought apiece. But the rooters were having the time of their lives filling in and getting close up. Old-timers who have been looking at ball games since Father Chadwick was a boy said they had never seen anything like it. Managers McGraw and Donovan held a council for a minute or two to decide what to do with the overflow, but nothing was done. The people in the seats damned it up and down also, but they had no effect, either.

The next two innings showed the same results. Lewis hit the atmosphere instead of the other sphere and said things to the umpire in a real peevish manner, but the umpire didn't mind it much. He's used to family jars like that. The batteries on both sides were doing bully work. Spike Shannon's negligee shirt concealed his heaving bosom when he came to the stick, and he slapped the ball, but Hummel got it and Spike went out with the rest of them.

By the time the fourth inning was reached the crowd hadn't improved any in manners, and the Suburbas didn't make the New Yorkers any happier by getting the first run. Jordan got to second on a knock to Seymour at centre, who fumbled it. Hummel hit it for a home run, but the ground rules don't allow for a ball in the crowd, and he went back to second, but Jordan went home. It was Tim's turn to be happy.

The Giants celebrated the Jordan run by not taking any in their half of the fourth. The fifth, sixth, and seventh were a string of zeroes, both sides playing right up to the handle, the Suburbas doing smoother work than the Giants and playing better ball generally, though the results seemed to be the same—that is, nothing to count on. When everybody had had a stretch after the seventh the eighth naturally followed, and both sides got a run each. Maloney counted for the Suburbas and Tenney for the Giants. Bresnahan got first on a hit, but it was the same kind, only not so bad, that laid him up last season. This one was at the other end of him. He didn't suffer much.

Excitement began to run high now, and the throngs on the green were away past control. McGraw and the players had rushed them back once, the graybacks were helpless, and the Suburbas were kicking, as well they might. Indeed, if it hadn't been for that rushing business the result of the game would have been different, for there were two or three balls that the Giants sent afield which would have settled them if the way had been clear. However, that is not the point at issue.

It was the ninth inning, with the score 2 to 1 in favor of the visitors. As before stated, there was warmth among the people, and when the Suburbas finished their half and added nothing New York began to heave and roar and pound the air. Merkle came to the bat for Mathewson and punched a two-bagger amid wild applause. Shannon sacrificed to first, and Merkle went to third. More applause and intense interest. Tenney forced Merkle out at third. Two out now and one on the bag. Then came Donlin. Donlin done it. With a keen cut he banged the ball clean over the bleacher fence to right just where he wanted it, and made a home run, bringing in Tenney, giving the Giants two runs, a score of 3 to 2, and winning the game for the Giants.

There was nothing now but the shouting. All was over, and Donlin was grabbed up by the enthusiastic rooters and carried off in glory. It was Donlin's day, all the rest being forgotten, and nothing worth talking about but that home run of Donlin.

Donlin, Donlin, he is It;
Donlin, Donlin made THE hit;
Though some others made a run,
Donlin's was the only one.

That's how the rooters and all the rest of New York thought about the game, and if Donlin had asked for the vote of 25,000 people at the Polo Grounds he would have got all of it except that small portion which had come over from Brooklyn to witness the defeat of the Suburbas.

Just the same, the Giants did not win the game by superior play, for the Suburbas put up a better show than the winners, though the luck didn't roost upon their banners at the close. Such is life in baseball circles.

Pirates Win First Home Game.

PITTSBURG, Penn., April 22.—With ideal weather a crowd of more than 13,000 baseball enthusiasts saw Pittsburg defeat St. Louis in the opening game of the local season by a score of 5 to 1. Wagner received a great ovation when he came on the field, and justified the confidence in him by knocking a two-base hit in the fifth inning, with two men on bases. Abbaticchio followed with a three-base hit, netting Pittsburg three runs in this inning. Both pitchers were strong, and succeeded in keeping the hits well scattered. The score:

CHICAGO, April 22.—The champions won their first home game in easy fashion. Coakley was wild, and was hit freely in the five innings he pitched. BERRY MAID WINS ARVERNE STAKES

Western Filly Defeats Cohort and Besom in Hard-Fought Race at Aqueduct.

FIVE CHOICES ARE BEATEN

Madrileno, First by a Neck in a Whipping Finish, Is the Only Successful Favorite.

The best weather of the Aqueduct meeting, a fast track, and fields that included about the most notable horses of the Spring's racing made alluring promises at the Queens County Jockey Club's course yesterday, and then produced about the most disappointing series of results of the season.

Popular favorites were beaten with such regularity that the crowd had about ceased to hope for any break in the luck before the single post favorite that won in the course of the afternoon squeezed home first in the fifth race. About the greatest disappointment of the day, however, was furnished in the contest for the stake feature of the card, the Arverne, six furlongs, for three-year-olds. In prospect the fixture looked like an easy race for James R. Keene's Besom, a winner earlier at the meeting, and a gelding that last year was one of the best-tried horses in the Keene stable. The Oneck stable added Cohort, one of the smart two-year-olds of 1907 and a stake winner over high-class horses, and opinion took a decided shift, Cohort being installed favorite, with Besom second choice, though it seemed to be the public conviction that the contest would be between the two.

The horses broke together to a fair start, Besom at once going out to the front, while Cohort lagged back in the crowd, Besom slipping out clear of his field in the first furlong in commanding style. As the horses settled down to racing, the Western filly Berry Maid moved into second place, and on the first turn began to close on Besom, and on the bend at the head of the stretch drew up alongside of him. From that point both were racing their best, and carrying a pace that caused both horses to tire when they straightened out in the stretch, where Cohort, in third place, loomed up as a contender. For a furlong Cohort closed on the two in front, but, tired as were Besom and Berry Maid, Cohort stopped before either of the leaders did, and Besom gave it up next, Berry Maid then drawing out and winning by a length and a half, with Besom second, while Cohort stopped so badly at the end that Halket beat him out for third place.

Road Drivers Plan Matinees.

The Road Drivers' Association last night held a meeting at the Hotel Cadillac. There was considerable discussion among the members over the award of the regular matinee prizes, and it was decided to award them equally this year for trotting horses and pacers. Hitherto the cups have been given according to the number of points won, irrespective of the trotting or pacing events. The Horse Show Committee reported that 151 entries had been received for the show, which is to follow the annual parade on May 2. The series of Speedway matinees will begin May 13. In reply to a request from the association that upper Seventh Avenue be put in better condition for driving, a letter was received from the Commissioner of Public Works stating that work would begin at once.

Women as Honorary Racing Judges.

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 22.—For the first time in history, women to-day occupied the judges' stand at Lexington. Mrs. John Ten Eyck of New York, granddaughter of Gen. John C. Breckenridge, and Mrs. Henry Oliver, daughter of Gen. J. F. Robison, by installation of the Board of Directors, acted as honorary associate judges. This was out of courtesy to the memory of these two men, who half a century ago were prominently connected with the Kentucky Racing Association. Poolroom service was missing at the track, and even all press reports were held up twenty minutes.

De Witt Clinton Wins Dual Meet.

De Witt Clinton High School defeated the New York University freshmen in a track meet yesterday at Ohio Field, by a score of 61 to 38. The ease with which Murphy, New York University, 1911, won the sprints, and Morrell the distance runs, took all interest from these events. The Freshman entries in the high jump and high hurdles were all baseball men and prevented them from entering, so these events were forfeited to De Witt Clinton.

GOV. FORT STARTS GAME.

New Jersey Executive Opens Eastern League Season at Newark.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., April 22.—Gov. J. Franklin Fort of New Jersey proved a mascot to the Newarks in their opening game of the Eastern League season against the Buffalos this afternoon. The Governor not only graced the event by his presence, but he further honored it by pitching the first ball—a beauty—straight across the plate. He was wildly cheered for his accuracy. Before tossing the sphere the Governor shook hands with each player of the teams, who formed a semicircle around the plate when he started for the box. Previous to that the teams had paraded across the field headed by the First Regiment Band, while the 10,000 persons present, many of whom had megaphones, rent the air with the din they made.

The Newarks won the game, 2 to 1, in the tenth inning, when they bunched three hits, those by Pardee, Bell, and Mahling, and scored the winning run. It was a banner day for Pitcher Al Pardee, as he had the heavy-hitting Bisons at his mercy throughout the game, and scored the winning run himself.

President Pat Powers of the Eastern League, who was with Gov. Fort, was radiant with smiles over the outlook of the season. The score:

Fancy overcoats are starred this Spring—indeed much of our stock would have been startling five Springs ago.

Light grays and browns, and all sorts of fancy weaves—there's plenty of variety of fabric, while the "buttoned through" coats are a new note in style.

Archbishop at Xavier A. C. Games.

National and metropolitan A. A. U. champions will compete at the indoor carnival of the Xavier Athletic Club, to be held Saturday evening in connection with the Centennial celebration of the founding of the Catholic diocese of New York. It is planned to have Archbishop Farley and his guests attend the meeting. Among the entries are Paul Pilgrim, Melvin Sheppard, L. B. Dorland, W. J. Keating, and Lawson Robertson. One of the features of the games will be a special relay for the Twenty-second Regiment team, which will attempt to break the indoor mile relay record.

C. C. N. Y. Relay Team for Carnival.

The relay team that will represent the College of the City of New York at the University of Pennsylvania relay carnival on Saturday was chosen yesterday afternoon, after Coach MacKenzie had the six contestants run a quarter-mile race on the Macomb's Dam Park track. The men finished in the following order: Harry Larkin, '08; Edward Coyle, '09; Frank Mullen, '08, and Lawrence Weisman, '08. Of the four men, Mullen, Larkin, and Weisman represented the college last year at Philadelphia.

Monument for Henry Chadwick.

Baseball players and followers of the game throughout the country are to be asked to contribute to a fund to be used for the erection in Greenwood Cemetery of a monument to Henry Chadwick, the "father of baseball," who recently died in this city. The matter has been taken in hand by Patrick Powers, President of the National Association of Baseball Clubs, and he will ask each club in organized baseball to devote a suitable sum to the fund, and also that every professional player in the country contribute $1 to the fund. It is Mr. Powers's idea that $1 should be the maximum individual contribution. President Powers to-day issued an order that the flags at all baseball parks in America be hung at half staff to-day, the day of Mr. Chadwick's funeral.

Latonia Track Saved by Court.

FRANKFORT, Ky., April 22.—The Latonia Agricultural Association, which operates the Latonia race track, won in its fight with the City of Latonia, the Court of Appeals deciding to-day that the city cannot fence streets through the race track. The case has been in court for several years. The city claimed that years ago the property occupied by the race track had been dedicated to the city, but the court holds that as it had never followed up the dedication with any act indicating its purpose to build streets, it cannot now claim the right.

THE NOMINATION IS THE THING.

Mr. Bryan made it plain beyond the possibility of mistake Tuesday evening that he is willing to throw away the election if he can only get the nomination. Delegates he must have. As to the voters, he showed himself to be indifferent.

At the Cooper Union meeting, where he spoke, he was asked by one of the audience if the policy of the white Democrats in disfranchising the negro in the South was in accord with his idea of universal brotherhood. This was his answer:

> The white man in the South has disfranchised the negro in self-protection; and there is not a Republican in the North who would not have done the same thing under the same circumstances. * * * I want to say right now that the white men in the South are giving the negroes better laws than the negroes would give to the white men if they were making the laws. Why, right in Washington they disfranchised every negro, even if they had to disfranchise some white men to do it. The white men of the South are determined that the negro will and shall be disfranchised everywhere it is necessary to prevent the recurrence of the horrors of carpet bag rule.

Mr. Bryan's justification of the disfranchisement of the negro may win for him delegates from Southern States. The South has been disaffected ever since he made his speech favoring the Government ownership of railroads, a policy that would necessarily abolish the "Jim Crow" car. His approval of disfranchisement will tend powerfully to overcome this disaffection. It is so evidently a bid for Southern support in the Convention that no other motive need be sought for. It will tend to diminish opposition to him in the South, and so to increase his chances of securing the nomination.

That it impairs whatever chance he may have had of being elected must be apparent to the merest tyro in politics. The Republicans are in a state of alarm about the negro vote in Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois, as well as in New York. The Brownsville injustice rankles, and the colored voters have shown hostility to Mr. Taft, who accepted and acted on the President's resolve to punish the negro soldiers before their guilt had been proved. A candidate who honestly hopes and sincerely desires to be elected is pretty apt to take advantage of the mistakes of the enemy. At least he does not repel such advantages by counteracting mistakes of his own.

Whatever the negroes may do, it is impossible that they should now vote for Mr. Bryan after he has approved the policy of robbing them of their vote in the Southern States. The probability of Mr. Bryan's success at the polls is so remote that it was quite unnecessary for him to repel promised support in any State. His indifference to the thousands of negro votes which he might have had confirms the belief already entertained that if he can get the nomination, which will confirm his leadership of the party and enable him to coin his political prominence into money upon the lecture platform, he will be quite content to see his opponent elected. That is to say, he is willing to wreck his party if only his own selfish ends can be attained.

WORK FOR THE BLIND.

One of the striking things about the report of the New York Association for the Blind, which covers the two years of its existence, is the frontispiece. This exhibits "the blind Secretary taking the shorthand notes for this report—which she wrote entirely, with the exception of the financial statement, and transcribed on the typewriter. Back of her the youngest home teacher of the association, who is also totally blind, is reading her stenography from the Staynesby-Wane machine.

Here are two employments which it might be assumed are practically unattainable without eyesight, and good eyesight, actually pursued with success by the blind. Other illustrations show the work of blind persons in dressing dolls, caning chairs, mattressmaking, massage, operating a telephonic switchboard, broommaking, carpentering, shaving and haircutting, and blind youth engaged in athletic sports. The report gives full and very interesting information of what the association is doing in securing instruction and employment for the blind," which is its main and admirable aim, in promoting the prevention of blindness so often caused by neglect of children, and in providing recreation for the blind. It is a most useful work, carried on with good judgment and untiring assiduity. The report can be obtained at the offices of the association, 118 East Fifty-ninth Street.

THE CITIZENSHIP LAW.

For many years I have felt that it was not only a shame but a disgrace that citizenship in this country, which should be highly prized, should be so carelessly given, and often improperly given by our Government.—Secretary Straus at a conference with the Department of Justice Tuesday.

Secretary Straus realizes our debt to foreign immigrants. But for the 25,000,000 willing workers who have come to the United States to co-operate in our industries during the last century, he said recently, these industries "would to-day be in their infant stage." But American citizenship involves responsibilities and high privileges, which Judges empowered to confer it upon applicants in the year of a Presidential election will do well to weigh. In Chicago the Superior and Circuit Courts of Cook County have within a week revoked the naturalization papers of 154 Anarchists. The conference at which Secretary Straus uttered his admonition was gathered to consider the bearing of the new citizenship law upon the coming Federal election. For the three months preceding Nov. 3 next all naturalizations must cease; moreover, for each pending naturalization the Government at Washington must have at least three months' advance notice. An unnaturalized foreigner, therefore, who has resided here five years, who shall be able to speak and understand our language, and can show an elementary knowledge of our Constitution and form of Government, may not become a voting citizen next Fall if he shall fail to apply for the privilege before May 3.

This is a new feature of the citizenship law, designed to forestall the extensive fraudulent naturalizations of a Presidential campaign. By his speech Secretary Straus puts foreigners and the courts on notice that the quadriennial trafficking in American citizenship, which has long debased the electorate, will be no longer tolerated.

PRIVATE CAPITAL FOR SUBWAYS.

The Assembly has shown its respect for the wishes and for the welfare of the people of New York in passing, by a vote of 99 to 16, the Robinson bill, once more opening the way for the use of private capital in the construction of rapid transit routes in New York, thus undoing the mischief wrought by the ill-considered Elsberg act, which had the effect of excluding private bidders, creating a condition in which subways could be built only by the city at a time when the city has no money for the work.

The bill introduced by Assemblyman Beverly R. Robinson provides that the Public Service Commission may sell at public auction "the right, privilege, and franchise to construct, maintain, and operate such railway or railways." Any existing railway corporation owning or actually operating a railway wholly or in part within the city limits may bid at the sale and enter into a contract for construction, maintenance, and operation. The terms of sale are to contain a reservation to the city of the privilege to purchase the rights, privileges, franchises, plant, and property of the grantee "at any time after the expiration of a period of not more than fifty years" from the date when operation begins. The price paid is to be determined by valuation of the property, which "shall not be greater than the actual cost of such plant and property." The city may then resell the right to operate the road, and may utilize the proceeds of such resale in making payment to the original grantee.

The bill extends from twenty years, the present limit, to thirty-five years the term of the lease or contract for the operation of a subway constructed by the city. Any new subway which is determined to be a connection or extension of the existing Subway may be constructed as extra work under the terms of the contract covering the building of the Subway already in operation; or it may be built with public money and leased to the company operating the present Subway for a term not extending beyond the term of the existing contract.

The passage of this bill makes it possible at length for New York City to secure an extension of its underground railway system. The rapid transit situation has been muddled by a perfect Babel of incompetent counsel, and by the putting forward of impossible schemes of construction. Behind all these things, the cause of the deadlock that has for two years postponed the beginning of this much-needed work is the Elsberg act, which was notoriously intended to commit the city to municipal ownership and operation. Under that act no private corporation could enter the field with any hope of profit, as was explained when bids were last invited. That act was the source of incalculable injury to the people of the City of New York, since, while private capital was rebuffed, the city's debt limit forbade municipal building. All the important civic associations of the city are on record in support of the Robinson bill. It is to be hoped, and may confidently be expected, that the Senate will promptly pass the measure. As the allied real estate interests have declared in their argument for the bill, "the pending rapid transit bill must be passed this week, unless straphanging is to become a permanent New York institution."

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AT WORK.

The Times will publish next Sunday an article of considerable length picturing the President of the United States as he appears at his daily official tasks, an article which we believe to be quite without precedent in the personal history of our Chief Magistrates and in American journalism.

It is an intimate picture. The writer sat for days in the President's office carefully observing the operation of the Executive machinery of the Government. He studied the President's method of dispatching business, of receiving visitors, of conferring with Cabinet officers, Senators, and Congressmen. The President talked much with him and frankly. Most interesting of all, he gave his own estimate of himself, and the passages of The Times's article in which this appreciation is set forth will, we are sure, possess the deepest interest for every American citizen.

The public is well-nigh insatiable in its desire to know about Mr. Roosevelt. He is the most conspicuous, the most interesting, figure in the country and in our recent history. At no time, from the beginning of his career to the present day, has such an opportunity been afforded to bring the people into such an immediate relation with their President, where they practically touch elbows with him, watch him in the performance of his duties, and listen to his conversation with others, and his talk about himself and his methods. This picture of the President at work is of transcendent interest, and its value to the reader will be enhanced by his knowledge of the fact that its publication is authorized by Mr. Roosevelt himself.

THE RAILWAY RATE ADVANCE.

Much ridicule is bestowed upon the policy of advancing railway rates at a time of business depression. It would be absurd were not an advance justifiable upon the merits, and were it not according to precedent to advance rates at a time like this by way of remedying the harm done by bad legislation.

That the advance is justified on the merits is shown by the fact that railway rates are disproportionately low, owing to the fact that they were not advanced with other services for which a price is taken. Throughout all this anti-railway campaign nothing has been more remarkable than the neglect of the fact that railway rates were the exception among countless advancing prices. If there is anything which has been more consistently cheapened to the consumer during a term of years it has escaped attention. The reason is that the reduction has not been passed along to the consumer of the transported commodities. The reductions have been absorbed into the profits of the shippers. The proposed advances would be equally unapparent to the retail buyer for the same reason. A man's hat, or even a Merry Widow's, is transported a thousand miles for a fraction of a cent. A suit of clothes is shipped c. i. f. at a difference of perhaps three cents between a lower or higher rate. On edibles the difference in freight cost per pound is expressible only in mills and decimals.

There is nothing in the proposed advance to make an outrage of from the buyer's point of view, and the shipper would be only too glad to find a market for his goods if the advanced rate would quicken the currents of trade. Doubtless the lower rates would be preferred. But even shippers are not entitled to have their goods carried below cost, and it is demonstrable that recently freight rates have been below the cost of the service. American transportation rates are less than one-half the rates upon the Government railways of Germany. They are a trifle more than one-third the French rates, where ownership is Government, private, and mixed. They are slightly in excess of one-fourth of the English rates, which, it must be admitted, give a better service, somewhat in proportion to the larger cost. It is true that these larger costs of freight service abroad do not prove that our rates are below cost here—that proof is unnecessary with a half billion of railway investments in receiverships—but the comparison is made to show that there is room for considerable advance before an unreasonable level is reached.

Railway rates were last advanced anything to speak of in 1899. It will be remembered that the railways were then in the midst of unreasonable competition, due to the statutory prohibition of agreements regarding rates. The statute was evaded under President Cassatt's leadership by the interchange of ownerships, which fortified the community of interest idea. The fact is worth recalling because within a few days the Inter-State Commerce Commission has made a report tracing out this commingling of ownership as something reprehensible, due to original sin, instead of to the compulsion of destructive legislation. A similar motive is beneath the proposed advance of rates. If the railways had been allowed to make money enough they would still further have improved their facilities so that they might have continued the reductions which through many years they had shared with the shippers. But the shippers, or their officious advocates, appealed to Congress for a law to hasten what was going on apace. The result, with the fact that rates are out of line with other commodities, makes the proposed advance less humorous than otherwise it might be.

The policy of letting snow removal contracts was changed by Dr. Bensel during his brilliant interregnum last Fall as emergency Street Cleaning Commissioner. Last Winter's snowfall—62 per cent. of the previous season's—cost the city $551,304, as against $2,470,500 for the year preceding. That is, the policy of paying for snow actually carted off, instead of for the inches that fell, by this comparison netted New York City a saving of $980,406. Had Dr. Bensel given the city a million dollars outright while he was reshaping a disorganized department he would have accomplished hardly more than this saving represents. Yet the incidental economy required only a high degree of courage.

We welcome this centralization of power, because when the time comes for the triumph of Socialism it will be easier to make the transfer of property to the people if it has to be made from only a few owners. We members of the Christian Socialist Fellowship plead for the Golden Rule, instead of the rule of gold.—The Rev. J. D. Long.

And the reverend gentleman would prefer that it ignore the Eighth Commandment.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Government and the Unemployed.

Mr. Bryan's ideas as to a Government's duty toward the unemployed seem to have pleased the Cooper Union audience, before which he presented them, but the applause could hardly have been unanimous, as Cooper Union audiences usually contain more than a few people who are well read in the newer and better sort of sociology, and all such persons must have seen that the amiable Nebraskan didn't know quite everything about the large subject he disposed of so gayly.

"There are," he said, "two kinds of relief in a case of this kind—permanent and temporary. It is the duty of the Government to see to it that no man suffers without his fault. No humane Government will allow a human being to die if it can possibly help it. It should itself provide work as long as there is any to give, and if the people are suffering from lack of work it should give aid directly." Further along in his speech Mr. Bryan said that "the Government should see to it that every man's reward is commensurate with his service."

These are fine-sounding phrases, as phrases go, but the resonance, as so often happens, is due to hollowness. Under an ideally perfect Government, no doubt, the highly desirable things mentioned by Mr. Bryan would be attained, but "under" is not "by," nor is "Government" an abstraction to be considered apart from the men who administer it. Where would even he find the army of subordinate officials that would be required for determining in each individual case that suffering was not due in whole or in part to the sufferer's own fault, and who could always allot reward commensurate with service? They would have to possess omniscience, omnipotence, and half a dozen other qualifications beginning with "omni" to tackle those large jobs with the slightest hope of success.

The ideal Government would prevent, rather than relieve, suffering, and, while the existence of large numbers of the unemployed is often the result of something wrong in Governmental methods, it is in just those cases that the Government would use its time to better purpose in remedying its own mistakes than in "making" work for those whom its mistakes have deprived of it. Economic ills need economic cures, and nothing could be less sound economy than work offered as a charity—than work done for any other reason than that it needs doing and can be afforded. The Government that doesn't rob any man of work has done about its full duty in that line. Governmental "relief" is a thing legitimate only in emergencies like those created by fire or flood, and it is apt to have, even then, some most deplorable incidental results in the way of pauperizing the beneficiaries.

Elopement Well Conducted.

Romance of the old-fashioned kind doesn't have half a chance to develop properly in these days of swift and wide publicity for everything even a little out of the common, but the Farwell-McGibbon elopement was quite in the best style of the early Victorian era, even if the newspapers did condense the first two volumes into a single brief chapter and make the third volume altogether impossible.

The young man and the maiden evidently tried hard to live up to the best of the old traditions. Rash, but not too rash, and with their impulsiveness controlled by a pretty regard for the proprieties, their adventure can be read by the Young Person in all its details with perfect safety, and, though rich but honest parents will not consider the example set a commendable one, or one to be viewed otherwise than with a stern frown, still it is obvious and inevitable that in the end the best will have to be made of a matter far from desperately bad.

They shouldn't have done it; that's granted, just for the sake of the argument, but, having done it, why not admit that it was well done; that the stars can continue in their courses without noticeable disturbance, and that this marriage, despite its haste and simplicity, promises more of happiness—and less of future work for the courts—than many another that crowds a church and makes the fortune of half a dozen florists and twenty dressmakers?

Only one feature of the case do we entirely fail to understand. The bride says: "I married Roy because I loved him," which is a good reason, and adequate, at least, as an explanation, but then she adds, "and because I was afraid I would change my mind," which is about the worst reason ever. So bad is it, indeed, and so utterly does it violate all the rules of romance, that one much suspects and more hopes that she didn't say it. Afraid she would change her mind, forsooth! But that was about the best of reasons for not marrying him, an argument con, not pro. Marriage will not have any tendency to prevent a change of mind, and how much more inconvenient to have it come after than before!

The Olive Colored Uniform.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter regarding the National Guard is timely, and should be followed. Have the Decoration Day parade on Fifth Avenue from Fifty-ninth Street to the Washington Arch, and have all the regiments in full dress, but leave the olive-colored uniforms in the armories on the pegs where they belong. A more disfiguring dress was never placed on the human form. An ordinary man in an olive-colored uniform looks uncomfortable and ridiculous.

EAST SIDE BANKING.

An Immigrant Bureau Could Prevent Certain Frauds.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me to impart to your readers the following, in relation to your editorial, "A Needed Investigation":

Some east side bankers do impose upon immigrants. Such bankers delude their customers into the belief that the bond of $15,000, as provided by law, guarantees savings deposited with them. Your editorial recognizes the fact that such bankers evade the law and that no one is charged with the enforcement of the observance of the law, and dishonest bankers are continually absconding with the savings of immigrants.

All the above are facts. Investigations conducted by individuals, voluntary organizations, our Federal Government, and our own State Department of Agriculture have conclusively proved the existence of this evil. Further investigation can only result in more details of such material, which has been secured in sufficient quality and quantity. "The plank that has lain * * *" is lifted. "The unpleasant creatures of the insect underworld" are seen. The methods of the east side bankers and the condition of the immigrants are known.

Action is needed to correct conditions, not delay. Reinvestigation of thoroughly known affairs is delay. Investigation can result in proposals for legislation. Any new law—if no one will enforce its observance—will not better conditions. All new laws and immigrants' affairs will have to be given in charge of an office to be attended to. If such an office is established at some other time, not at present, it is certain that during the space of time thus furnished more impositions will be committed. Legislation is needful now to establish an office to enforce the observance of our laws. This office should: First—Collect and disseminate information. Second—Direct and distribute immigrants. Third—Supervise east side bankers and immigration. Fourth—Prosecute impositions. Fifth—Keep a record of immigration.

The Merritt bill, establishing a State Bureau of Immigration, provides for this. It should be enacted at this session of the Legislature.

MARRIAGES METEMPSYCHOSED

Mr. Crane Asks Mr. Guiterman If It Is Not So.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Numerous letters on the subject of matrimony have appeared in The Times. Does love enter into matrimony nowadays?

A feeling so mysterious, so little in appearance connected with the practical business of life, yet bearing so powerfully upon it, must necessarily give rise to numerous myths and theories. One of the most curious refers to a sort of poetical metempsychosis.

A man, in the presence of a certain woman, is struck by the sudden fascination under which he has fallen. Confused memories come thick upon him as he looks—the tone of her voice, the character of her smile; nay, her individual features seem familiar to him. He loses himself in the idea that he has surely seen her, known her, loved her before, and at length he thinks, half with a smile, half with a pleasing dread, that as the thing is an impossibility as regards this life, it must have occurred in some former state of existence.

The Indian Buddhists account on the principle of the metempsychosis for the numerous unlucky marriages that set the world by the ears. The man and wife, they suppose, were enemies in a former state of existence, and they have instinctively come into union in this in order to have the satisfaction of glutting themselves with the pleasure of mutual torment.

Am I not right, Mr. Arthur Guiterman?

Sir Launfal to Date.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In riding daily in the cars one is forcibly reminded of Lowell's lines—

"And every girl feels a stir of might,
An instinct within her that reaches and towers,
And groping wildly about for height
Piles up her head with feathers and flowers."

Perhaps I have not quoted quite correctly.

The Happy Home Problem.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If "Fair Play" will look a little deeper into the happy-home problem he will find in most cases the man's own choice is at fault. It is the wise man that finds one of the many Mary Harts in which this city abounds.

MISS SHARP.

New York, April 21, 1908.

AN ORDER.

Prof. Flexner intimates that as a result of experimental surgery in transplanting the tissues and arteries of animals, man may hope some day to have surgeons who will fit him out with a new heart.—Daily Paper.

Dear Doctor Flexner, is it true that you can take a heart
And fix it up as good as new in each and every part?

Or, if perchance it's weak and cold as is the Arctic snow,
That you can make it strong and bold, and full of youthful glow?

I ask, for I've a battered thing that does me for the same.
For years I've worn it in a sling, and found it pretty tame.

It had a knock when it was young that cracked it near the top—
The time when Susan's charms I sung, who wed Bill Vanderpop.

Along the base a fracture lies that's pretty deep and wide—
I don't exactly know its size, I seldom look inside.

It happened back in eighty-nine, when Kitty Brown, the minx,
Who'd promised that she would be mine, eloped with Tommy Binks.

Around the left hand upper curve you'll note a horrid dent.
It put a puncture in my nerve of horrible extent.

That dimple's all that's left to me of dear Matilda Waggs,
Who won my heart in ninety-three, but married Moneybags.

There's sundry other chips and knicks in sundry other spots,
Reminders of Virginia Hicks and fair Maria Shotts,

Of Prudence, Chloe—oh, a score of maidens full of wit,
Who in the year of ninety-four played basket ball with it.

And if, again, you'll take a glance within this organ scarred,
You'll see a gloomy, bleak expanse of ruin, smoked and charred.

The dancing flames that year by year have had their play all through
Have scorched and burnt it till 'tis sere in damper, grate, and flue.

Now I know not if you can fix, or place in good repair,
A heart subjected to such tricks, and so much heated air.

If not a new one send—your best, sure proof against the wiles
Of modern maids—I would suggest steel-clad, and lined with tiles.

GALLERY NOTES.

The Second Annual Exhibition of the Guild of Book Workers.

The second annual exhibition of the Guild of Book Workers opened to-day with a small but distinguished showing of work in the various departments connected with the making of a book. Mr. Cobden-Sanderson exhibits two books, "Paradise Lost" and "Emerson's Essays." The first is an especially fine example of his work. The binding is red seal, and the tooling is in gold with tools of Mr. Sanderson's own designing. In the same case, which is one of the two devoted to professional work, is an amazing piece of technical facility by Otto Zahn, a binding of white and pinkish red mosaic on a background of dull blue. The edges of the book are painted and goffered. The execution is as near perfection as the hand of the bookbinder can come, although artistically the design and the color combination leave much to be desired. A simpler and more agreeable binding is that which Mr. Zahn has placed upon his own book on the art of binding. Here all the exquisite qualities of his workmanship are displayed within strict limitations and gain thereby. Miss Euphemia Bakewell of Pittsburg shows an admirable binding with a design of large diamonds outlined in gold and inclosing a flower pattern in blind tooling. Miss L. Averill Cole of San Francisco, who has studied with M. Jacobs of Brussels, the most accomplished of the Belgian binders, shows a couple of books as excellent in their forwarding as in their finishing and attaining a remarkably high standard in both. A copy of Marcus Aurelius is bound in olive with a mosaic of gray, making a formal pattern of interlaced bands. A gray doublure is elaborately ornamented with brown mosaic and gold tooling. A copy of Thomas à Kempis is ornamented with a severe design of interlaced bands in gold tooling. The tooling in this example is particularly fine, the edges clean-cut, the bands perfectly straight, and the gold thick and brilliant. Miss Helen G. Haskell shows a binding for Hewlett's "Earthworks Out of Tuscany," deeply tooled in a beautiful design, and Miss Preston exhibits an old copy of the English Poets in a binding that is in charming harmony with the book; the design consists of small diamond ornaments, the alternate diamonds filled with a little flower pattern in blind tooling, and the plain surfaces dotted with a smaller inner diamond in red mosaic outlined with gold. The execution is admirable. Mr. Harvey Chatfield shows two books with very interesting designs, but of somewhat cursory workmanship. Miss Octavia Holden of San Francisco shows a copy of "The Cathedral Cities of England" bound with carved wood sides, the design that of a Gothic window, and Miss Adeline Gaylord Wykes exhibits a handsome Guest Book.

Among the books designated as "First Year Work" are two by Mrs. H. Wade Ransom of unusual merit for a student's work. One was bound in Italian calf, stuffed and modeled, with metal clasps; the other was a French binding executed under M. Dumont, and carried out with the fine attention to detail characteristic of the French work. Other exhibitors whose bindings will repay examination are Miss Weir, who shows two bindings attractive in color and in the simplicity of their appearance; the Misses Kendall, and Miss McQuade, whose doublure in blue, ornamented with a mosaic of a paler shade, is charming.

Other features of the exhibition are an exhibit of the work of the Doves Press, with its delicate clear type designed by Mr. Cobden-Sanderson and Emery Walker on the lines of the Jansen type; a small number of pages from the Village Press, which was burned out last Winter at the time of the Parker Building fire; a case of illuminated manuscripts by Mrs. Gotthold, and a case containing the principal tools used in forwarding and finishing a hand-bound book.

The guild has been in existence since November, 1906, and draws its members from fourteen or fifteen different States in this country and from France, England, and Russia. The aim of its annual exhibition is to stimulate interest in book crafts and to give its members a representative showing without admission by jury.

WHY A COW IN THE NAVY?

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—"Why is a cow in the navy?"

This question, asked in the debate on the Naval Appropriation bill in the Senate to-day, stirred up an oratorical clash, but when it was over no one was wiser than before. The item for appropriation for live stock provided for the "purchase of and feed for horses and cows other than for hospitals." Senator Heyburn got to his feet.

"What is the navy going to do with a cow?" he demanded. "It isn't to be used in connection with the hospital ashore, evidently. Is it going to sea?"

Senator Hale sought to explain, but Senator Warner interrupted.

"I never knew before that cows were part of the equipment of a modern battleship," he said, "but if they are, for Heaven's sake, let's feed 'em."

"If the Senators will permit me," said Senator Bacon at this point, "I believe the matter could be settled by amending the bill to make it read seacows."

"In that case," retorted Senator Hale, "I would accept an amendment striking out the letter 's' in 'horses' and adding the word 'marines.'"

By this time the laughter was general. Senator Heyburn also had discovered that automobiles were provided for in the clause, and insisted that they should be designated as "water automobiles." Senator Perkins called attention to the fact that there were no provisions made for the purchase or maintenance of dog watches, sea dogs, or hatchways. Senator Foster insisted that if the dogs were to have their day, he would insist upon some notice being taken of the cat-o'-nine-tails. Senator Hale brought the humorous debate to a close, however, and the country is no wiser than it was before as to the uses of a cow on the briny deep.

HELP THE TEACHERS, ADVISES R. C. OGDEN

Tells Conference for Education in the South Its Work Is Vastly Important.

GREAT ISSUES TO BE MET

Coming Days Full of Experiences Which Will Make Our Present Lives Appear Simple.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 22.—The Eleventh Conference for Education in the South began here to-day. Robert C. Ogden, President of the conference, in opening the conference, spoke in part as follows:

"The convening of the Eleventh Conference for Education in the South marks the completion of ten years of organic life. These ten years have witnessed an educational renascence throughout these Southern States. The past is secure. The future commands us. The conference does not concern itself to any great extent with professional methods, with questions of pedagogy.

"Its first appeal is to the people as a whole, to men and women of every grade, on behalf of the public school. To promote that purpose, the conference deals with principles more than with methods. The conference devotes itself more to spirit than form, that thus may be created the public opinion that will become mandatory upon the body politic for school improvement. By this we mean school terms everywhere prolonged to the proper full school year, the introduction of all approved school methods, and taxation to support the resulting progressive plans.

"But we look beyond these conditions to the creation of a public opinion so interested and so alert as to form an intelligent educational public conscience, as will see to it that the schools everywhere are maintained upon a continually rising and ever forward movement.

"Under all the forms of organization that command this conference are two vital, inspiring forces; one of them humane, the other political—in the best sense. The humane force is the American child. The child of to-day must answer the questions of to-morrow.

"The days that are coming will surely fill the world with experiences that will make our present lives appear simple and easy, much as the lives of our grandparents appear now to us.

"To meet these conditions more thoroughly, educated and better trained minds, controlled by hearts that beat in unison with the noblest ideals of humanity, will be required. If it be true that great characters of any period are the best product of the best thinking of the period in which they live, how vastly important it is to raise the level of intelligence that the human stuff may be produced with which to meet the great issues of the future.

"The second force that calls this conference is the voice of democracy. It comes with an imperial command that we pause and consider our National place in the congress of the world, that we think somewhat of our institutions, the principle that underlies them, the vast experiment upon which we are engaged.

"Democracy requires very large intelligence and very exemplary character that it may clearly perceive the fundamental principle of our Government, carefully guard the attempts to abridge its power or encroach upon its rights. It also demands a clear, conscientious exercise of the elective franchise that the great American experiment may win its way to permanent triumph.

"If, therefore, the child in our homes and the best interests of our country unite in a single appeal for popular education, very surely the case for this conference is completely established.

"Let each one be thoroughly informed as to the kind of teaching that is done in his or her own city, town, or school district. Is the teaching poor? Encourage and help the teacher and keep on trying to lift the grade of the instruction. Is the school term short? Raise the needed money to lengthen it. Are your neighbors careless and indifferent? Hold meetings for their arousement and instruction.

"There is in this crusade a place for the work and helpful service of every one."

BARON ROSEN GOES HOME.

Off to Russia on a Two Months' Visit—Charles Lanier Booms Taft.

Among those of note who sailed yesterday on the Cunard liner Mauretania was Baron M. de Rosen, the Russian Ambassador. This is the first time in three years that Baron Rosen will visit his native country. He will be away two months.

Charles Lanier of the banking firm of Winslow, Lanier & Co., before sailing on the steamer Adriatic predicted a continued improvement in the financial situation, and said that the Wall Street interests believe that the election of Secretary Taft will best serve the business interests of the country.

John A. Drake, the racing man, also sailed on the Adriatic. He said he did not believe any check would be placed on racing for at least a year or two, but that the agitation against track betting is doing much to injure the trotting and breeding business.

Others on the Adriatic were Mrs. Collis P. Huntington, Mrs. Morris K. Jesup, Miss Helen Phelps Stokes, Hattie Williams, the actress; Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Martin, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. W. Atlee Burpee, and Lady Chetwode.

On the Mauretania departed Humphry Ward, Mrs. Lawrence d'Orsay, Lord Fairfax, Lord and Lady Powerscourt, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jay, Sir William White, and the Count and Countess Wachmeister.

DEBUTANTES RAISE $3,000 FOR INVALIDS

Girls in Costume Sell Chocolate at Plaza Entertainment for Consumptive Children.

SIX APRIL WEDDINGS

Robbins-Welles Nuptials Celebrated in Grace Church—Miss King Weds C. A. Richards.

Forty-one débutantes attired like "La Belle Chocolatiere," which hangs in the Dresden Gallery, took part in an entertainment in the ballroom of the Plaza yesterday afternoon. The girls sold chocolate, hot and in cake form, and a vaudeville entertainment was provided by amateurs. More than $3,000 was cleared, it was said, which is to go toward the support of free beds for consumptive children in the Loomis Sanitarium.

About 800 persons attended the entertainment, and in the audience were Mesdames J. Pierpont Morgan, Charles B. Alexander, Richard Irvin, William Woodward, Colgate Hoyt, Henry C. Potter, Buchanan Winthrop, William P. Hamilton, John H. Coster, Lloyd Aspinwall, and the Misses Anne Morgan and Harriot Alexander.

The girls were picturesque in uniforms, with quaint caps, tan fichus, and blue aprons, and were reinforced by another group of young women gowned like the flower girls of Paris. Little Wendell Davis and Hendrick Duryea were heralds in costumes of red and white satin, and carrying huge tin horns.

The charitably inclined guests took chocolate in great quantities and various forms, such as caramels, chocolate creams, and cakes. Many went away afterward in search of pepsin and bicarbonate of soda.

The vaudeville programme consisted of a farce, dances, recitations, and imitations. Miss Charlotte Smart, who imitated Ethel Barrymore and Mme. Nazimova, won rounds of applause. Her impersonation of the Russian actress in "The Doll's House" was particularly clever.

Mrs. Francis L. Pruyn danced a "bolero" with artistic skill, and Charles L. Safford was a delight to the children in "The Jabberwock" from "Alice in Wonderland." The Brander Matthews farce, "Frank Wilde," was played by four amateurs, and there was clog dancing by Lathrop Barlow. Six boys did a clever stunt called "Dixie Land," and a chorus of girls sang French folksongs.

The Misses Ina Kissell, Ruth Davis, Anzonella Kane, and Agnes Gayley did a "butterfly dance" with excellent electric effects, and the chocolate girls posed for tableaus in costume.

The young women who sold chocolate and flowers were compelled to use the checking system which obtains in all the hotels, and many of them had their first glimpse of real business. The formality of having their orders entered by an expert on a giant pad caused much confusion and amusement.

The chocolatieres and flower girls were:

Chocolatieres—The Misses Ruth Ashmore, Margaret Slade, Eleanor Townsend, Dorothy Ruxton, Lucia Burton, Mary Martin, Lois Martin, Margaret Roosevelt, Katharine Auerbach, Helen Auerbach, Helen Trotter, Dorothy Hurry, Abby Morrison, Harriet Ogden, Marion Boyd, Grace Fleischmann, Eleanor Duane, Katherine Duane, Carol Murray, Eleanor Hinton, Mabel Hinton, Mrs. Stevens, (W. MRS. F. L. PRUYN FOR STAGE.

Late Aid of Mrs. Gould in Plaza Theatricals to Play in "The Bandbox."

Mrs. Francis L. Pruyn, who played the French maid in "Mrs. Van Vechten's Divorce Dance" at the Plaza last Winter, in which Mrs. George Gould appeared, signed a contract yesterday to appear soon on Broadway in a new one-act play, "The Bandbox," by Mrs. Marie B. Schraeder, the magazine writer. In this Mrs. Pruyn is again to play the part of a French maid.

Mrs. Pruyn's engagement resulted from her recital of French and Spanish folksongs at the Garden Theatre on Tuesday afternoon. John J. Donnelly, who is to manage Mrs. Schraeder's play, has been at a loss for an actress suitable for the principal woman's part. After seeing Mrs. Pruyn in the Garden Theatre, he arranged an appointment for yesterday afternoon, with the result that Mrs. Pruyn agreed to appear under his management.

Besides Mrs. Pruyn, who before her marriage was Miss Marianna B. Thurber, the cast for Mrs. Schraeder's play will include Richard Sterling, who appeared with Mansfield and Robert Edeson and more recently with William Collier in "Caught in the Rain," and Miss Estha Evans. Rehearsals will begin to-day, and it is expected that the play will have its initial performance in about two weeks.

BRITISH EX-PREMIER IS DEAD IN LONDON

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal Leader, Has Passed Away.

MAN OF GREAT POPULARITY

Sympathetic Messages from All Parts of the World—Funeral in Westminster Abbey April 27.

LONDON, April 22.—Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, ex-Premier of Great Britain, died at 9:15 o'clock this morning at his residence in Downing Street.

The ex-Premier was unconscious most of the time for the last two or three days of his life, and his sinking was gradual. A few hours before his death telegrams announcing that his end was near were dispatched to King Edward who, with Queen Alexandra, is visiting the Danish royal family at Copenhagen; the Prince of Wales, and the Cabinet Ministers.

Sir Henry's final illness dates from Feb. 12, when he last appeared in the House of Commons and moved the closure of the Scottish Land bills, although he had been ailing since Nov. 14, 1907, when, after addressing a political meeting at Bristol, he was seriously stricken with an affection of the heart. Later influenza was added to the heart trouble. Sir Henry was aware of his serious condition and offered to give up the Premiership some time before he formally resigned early this month.

The funeral arrangements were completed this evening. There will be a funeral service in Westminster Abbey at noon on April 27, attended by representatives of King Edward and Queen Alexandra, diplomats and members of Parliament, and the following day the body will be taken to Meigle, Perthshire, and placed beside the body of Sir Henry's wife.

Messages of sympathy were arriving all day from every part of the world, and hundreds called to leave their cards of regret. Among the callers was the American Ambassador, Whitelaw Reid.

"He was the faithful servant of his country, and I am truly sorry he has gone," King Edward remarked on hearing of the death of Sir Henry.

The Right Hon. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, G. C. B., late Prime Minister of his Brittanic Majesty's Government, and First Lord of the Treasury, was born on Sept. 7, 1836. He was the youngest son of the late Sir James Campbell of Stracathro, Forfarshire, Scotland, at one time a merchant in Glasgow. His mother was Janet, daughter of Mr. Bannerman of Manchester. It was under the will of his maternal uncle, Henry Bannerman of Hudson Court, Kent, that in 1872 Sir Henry assumed the additional surname of Bannerman.

Sir Henry entered Parliament when he was 32 years old, after having been educated at Glasgow University and Trinity College, Cambridge. He represented the Stirling Division of Scotland. His official career began in 1871, during Mr. Gladstone's first administration, when he was appointed Financial Secretary of the War Office. He resigned three years later, to be reappointed to the same post in 1880. In 1882 he became Secretary to the Admiralty. Two years later he received his first really important office in the Secretaryship for Ireland.

In 1886 for a few months he held the office of Secretary of State for War and held a similar Cabinet place while the Liberals were in power, between 1892 and 1895. In the latter year he received his G. C. B. (Grand Commander of the Bath) when the Rosebery administration went out. In 1889 he became Liberal leader of the House of Commons, succeeding the late Sir William Harcourt.

The fortunes of the Liberal Party were never at a lower ebb than when "C. B.," as he was affectionately known in England, strolled, as it were, into the leadership. The war, which had just ended, had split both parties into factions, which opposed each other more bitterly than they did the Government. Sir Henry was looked on as a stop-gap, a nominal leader, who would follow up the glorious traditions of English politics and "muddle through" somehow.

But once having taken office he never looked back. Ridiculed and denounced by his opponents and rejected by many of his own party, he plodded steadily along until at the last general election he found himself and his party swept into office by an enormous majority.

YES, THEY DISAGREED.

But Mme. Gadski's Disagreement with Her Husband Was Not as the Gossips Had It.

Herr Tauscher and his wife, Mme. Johanna Gadski, the dramatic soprano, disagreed. It was not caused by the butterfly life or any of the other modern causes for conjugal quarrels. But it was quite a disagreement.

All the guests who had supper at the Hotel St. Regis on Tuesday night knew by Mme. Gadski's dramatic eyes that there was a rift in the Tauscher lute, and one grand little gossip went away with the certain knowledge that a woman named "Louise" figured considerably. As every one knows, Mme. Gadski has a charming daughter, and that is why the disagreement appeared so sad.

Reporters carried the news to Herr Tauscher, and the soprano's stalwart, amiable husband roared with laughter when he heard it.

"This is too funny," he chuckled. "You must see Mme. Gadski and she must enjoy the joke as well."

And, shaking with laughter, Herr Tauscher led the way to their apartment, where Mme. Gadski was practicing.

"You see," began Mme. Gadski, "I am going to sing at the Metropolitan Opera House next Sunday night for the benefit of the United Hebrew Charities. I have been asked to sing an aria and thereby popularize the concert.

"In Chicago I sang the third act aria from Charpentier's 'Louise,' and I wanted to sing it next Sunday night. Herr Tauscher has so keen an appreciation of the artistic side, that he tried to persuade me against singing this aria without the orchestra. We discussed it the other night at supper. I became fearfully excited, and was unaware that my intensity had been misconstrued.

"Mr. La Forge was with us, and we talked 'Louise' until the other guests went away. I dare say they heard snatches of the conversation and naturally the name 'Louise' caused people to suspect things. It is so droll, and Mr. Tauscher has always warned me against these intense discussionsin public."

TRIUMPH FOR FANNY WARD.

Wins Great Applause in London in "The Marriage of William Ashe."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, April 23.—Fanny Ward triumphed decisively at Terry's Theatre last night in "The Marriage of William Ashe," an adaptation of Mrs. Humphry Ward's novel by Mary M. Ward and Margaret Mayo.

The critics in this morning's papers compare Miss Ward's acting to that of Marie Tempest. The play itself is too long, containing five acts, but it furnishes opportunities of a wide range for the talent of Miss Ward and those associated with her.

The play was produced under the management of Marc Klaw.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Henry W. Savage's production of "The Merry Widow" will celebrate its two hundred and twenty-fifth consecutive performance at the New Amsterdam Theatre next Thursday evening.

The press agent of the Friars sends out an announcement that James K. Hackett will appear at their festival in the role of a fancy dancer, assisted by Bessie Clayton of Weber's Music Hall.

J. Schwenk announces that he has leased the theatre in Third Street formerly known as Orlonef's Lyceum. The house will be named the Third Street Theatre, and will be the home of an English-speaking stock company, opening on Saturday afternoon, May 2, and offering a weekly change of bill.

AUTHOR SUES WEBER ON BROKEN CONTRACT

Herbert Winslow Says the Comedian Illegally Rejected His Burlesque of "The Merry Widow."

DEMANDS $30,000 DAMAGES

"He's Clever, but Not Suited to Music Hall Work," Says the Defendant's Representative in Reply.

Papers have been drawn by William P. Dewey of the law firm of Dewey & Taylor in a suit brought by Herbert Hall Winslow, the dramatic author, against Joe Weber, demanding $30,000 for breach of contract and damages. The litigation is relative to the complicated authorship of the "Burlesque of the Merry Widow," now running at Joe Weber's Music Hall.

Mr. Winslow alleges that he entered into a written contract with Mr. Weber on Dec. 16, by which he agreed to write the libretto of a musical comedy before Dec. 23; that he was to receive from Mr. Weber $100 per week for each week that this piece should be produced during the seasons of 1907-8 and 1908-9 and $500 on the signing of the contract as advance royalty for the first five weeks, and that he should also supply for Weber's Music Hall such skits or burlesques on current plays as Mr. Weber might require. Mr. Winslow declares that Mr. Weber asked him to supply the libretto for a "Burlesque of The Merry Widow," and that he caried out all the stipulations of the agreement.

In his complaint Mr. Winslow says that, owing to Henry W. Savage's objections to the use of the music for the burlesque and before he was engaged for the writing of the libretto, the librettist already employed by Weber had declined to do the work; that when Mr. Savage and Mr. Weber reached an agreement Mr. Savage insisted that this former librettist, Edgar Smith, should be re-engaged by Mr. Weber, and that Mr. Smith did the work with the assistance of George V. Hobart.

Fifteen thousand dollars for breach of contract by Weber, and $15,000 more for injury done his reputation as a dramatic author by the manner in which his work was put aside and the announcements and explanations made by Mr. Weber, is demanded by Mr. Winslow.

Mr. Weber's representative said last night: "Mr. Weber could not use the piece. Mr. Hobart was called in at the last moment because Mr. Winslow's material was impossible."

To Transfer "The Wolf" to the Lyric.

By an arrangement between L. S. Sire and the Shuberts, "The Wolf," the new melodrama by Eugene Walter, will leave the Bijou Theatre on Saturday and continue its New York run at the Lyric. Henry E. Dixey in "Papa Lebonnard" will succeed "The Wolf" at the Bijou, opening on Tuesday evening, April 28.

THE personality of THEODORE ROOSEVELT has been the subject of heated controversy. Visitors to the White House have brought away conflicting reports of the President. ¶ It is, therefore, a matter of much public interest that The Times is able to announce an article giving an authoritative picture of the President as he is to-day. ¶ The author, Mr. William Bayard Hale, has spent a number of days observing the President at his work in the White House. As a result of this unique opportunity, Mr. Hale in the first place gives a realistic, first-hand description of the actual transaction of the high business of Government such as has never before in the whole history of our country been given; and in the second place presents a study of the personality of Mr. Roosevelt the most intimate and vivid ever published. ¶ The article will appear next Sunday.

HEAVY GOLD ENGAGEMENTS

Over $5,000,000 Taken for Paris—Pennsylvania Bonds Already In Demand.

Prices in yesterday's stock market session appeared to be seeking a level which might reflect at the same time the uncertainty which the day's heavy gold exports created in the minds of the speculative element, and the success already attaching to the Pennsylvania bond issue, which was quoted at a two-point advance, although not yet formally offered to the public. Around mid-day a vigorous rise brought the average price of the majority of active stocks to the highest figure touched by them during the present year, but later heaviness developed, and there were recessions which left the list irregular at the close of the day. The undertone of the trading was strong, and there is little question of the beneficial effect which has been exerted by the circumstances surrounding the Pennsylvania's offering. Why there should be any anxiety over the outflow of gold it is difficult to see. The day's engagement brought the total taken for shipment to Paris up to some $7,500,000, and the outlook is for exports of at least $25,000,000. To meet these withdrawals there is already on hand here surplus reserves of $53,000,000, and this amount is undergoing daily increases as a result of the business contraction which is forcing money here from the interior. The recall of Government deposits on a large scale is also likely, but the holdings of the local banks will prove more than equal to this drain. In fact, experience shows that the banks have reported record surplus holdings in former business depressions after gold shipments and Treasury takings were out of the way. Just what effect the sale of half of the Pennsylvania's $40,000,000 of bonds to foreign bankers will have upon the gold movement remains to be seen, but the disparity in interest rates here and at foreign money centres is still so great as to indicate heavy exports in any event.

While the stock market has naturally been taking a fairly narrow view of the Pennsylvania flotation, amply satisfied with the rate of interest paid and the high standing of the bankers at home and abroad who have undertaken to place it, the event possesses significance much beyond this. Actually, the successful disposition of these bonds means nothing less than the lifting of the blockade of credit under which the railroads have been suffering for many months. It is impossible, of course, to make even a rough estimate of the amounts of money owed by the roads of the country to the various corporations engaged in the manufacture of railway supplies of all kinds, but such obligations run far into the millions. If the Pennsylvania's financing proves the opening wedge in this respect, much of this debt will soon be liquidated, new work will be undertaken, and the railroads will again be busy transporting the great tonnage of railroad material. General merchandise traffic will spring up in the wake of returning confidence everywhere. Good crops are, of course, an essential to this outcome, and of these there is fair promise, in spite of such sharp advances as occurred in the grain market yesterday. The cotton market was again unsettled, and the lower level of prices here is explained by the position of the cotton goods trade here and in Europe.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 22.—Early trading in the local market was dull, with prices irregular. Later in the day, however, a stronger tone developed. Fluctuations in the copper stocks were confined within comparatively narrow limits, with the exception of the United States Smelting issues, the common advancing about 1 point, while the preferred gained two points. The general market closed steady, with no pressure to sell stocks.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—Sufficient rains at last having visited the Pacific Coast and Nebraska, the crop of both sides of the Rockies promises an exceptional yield. The congested May situation in Chicago, Minneapolis, and New York dominated yesterday's market. May contracts outadvanced all others and dictated higher prices soon after the opening. A rapid advance in May at Chicago, extending the difference over July to 8⅝c, started an active covering movement here, and May advanced to a premium of 7⅝c on July. Later the advance was partly lost under further fine weather reports. The market was finally irregular. Cash wheat in New York closed steady; No. 2 red, $1.03¼ elevator, and $1.04¼ free on board afloat; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.15, and No. 2 hard Winter $1.11¼, free on board afloat.

CORN.—With every indication of a protracted big movement, the market acquired a downward tendency, except as to May. Sales for export were two loads, and cash corn closed 75½c nominal in elevator for No. 2, and 73c free on board afloat; No. 2 white, 73c, free on board afloat.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Standard Oil Active and Strong in an Otherwise Dull and Weak Market.

UP 50 POINTS SINCE APRIL 1

Transactions Yesterday Reported at 200 Shares, Leaving Price at 580—Mining Shares Neglected and Lower.

Curb stocks were again weak yesterday, with trading narrowly limited. The mining shares sold off fractionally under the light offerings, but recessions were confined to the small fractions. In contrast to the general tone of the market, the activity of Standard Oil was marked. Transactions of 200 shares were reported, which is the broadest market for a considerable period. The opening at 580 was 5 points above Tuesday's close, and the trading was between that point and 573, the close being at the opening figure. In the last few moments of trading there were some bids in the market for the new Pennsylvania 4s when issued. The bids were at 97¾, with none offered.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Good Weather Ends Early Advance—Closes 1 to 9 Points Down.

Cotton had quite a sharp advance during yesterday's early session, but became very weak late in the day, with new crop months making new low records. The close was easy at a net decline of 1@9 points. Sales were estimated at 250,000 bales.

The market opened steady at an advance of 7@9 points, and the advance was due to buying by Liverpool and German houses, and during the late session became very unsettled under what seemed to some to be liquidation of old long accounts. The close was at the lowest point of the day.

The weather map was considered more favorable, only scattering and light precipitation with normal temperatures being noted. Wires were received from New Orleans reporting a better demand for spot cotton, but it is said that good cotton is being offered in Texas under a parity with the Eastern belt.

THE COFFEE MARKET.

Coffee made a fairly steady showing yesterday, with the close steady net unchanged to 5 points higher. Sales were reported of 64,750 bags, including further exchanges from May to the later months.

The market opened unchanged to 5 points higher, and the main feature during the day was the continued evening up for May, largely through the medium of exchanges, 20 points being paid to exchange May for September, 30 points for December, and 40 points for March. Owing to Tuesday's holiday there were no cables from the Brazilian markets. European markets were fairly steady, with Havre closing ¼ franc higher and Hamburg unchanged to ¼ pfennig lower, only one month being lower.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Influence of Bond Sale.

Whatever other influences there were would be difficult to determine, but there was no question whatever that the Pennsylvania bond sole was a factor of importance in yesterday's market. That it was utilized speculatively goes without saying, and some of the higher prices for the important stocks were attributed to professional ability in using the bullish suggestions which the success of the loan inspired. Those who oppose any further advance in prices in the market contended that as the closing prices showed practically no improvement over the preceding day any campaign based on the Pennsylvania incident was not successful. Bullish traders were perfectly content, however, and their point was that the real significance of this successful loan would be appreciated more fully later on, inasmuch as it at least showed that the railroads would be able to finance their needs in conservative fashion. Naturally more or less exaggeration was given to the bullish significance of the event, as well as to the pessimism with which the bears professed to be imbued, but generally, in the customers' rooms and among the brokers, this Pennsylvania loan was very acceptable.

⁂

Comparison of Influences.

For days and weeks the market has been satisfactory only to scalpers, but the apathy has induced some activity among those who are watching the market in the way of tabulating the factors that exist at present, and which either now or a little later on may influence prices. It is surprising how many favorable influences or supposed influences may be suggested. On the other hand, there is no limit to the list of things which give comfort to the soul of a bear. Naturally two of the items on the favorable list are the plentitude of money and the prospect of big crops. The fact that this is a Presidential year and the depression in business head the list on the other side. Both sides have something to say about the bond market just at present. Those who are bearish on stocks insist that there is no betterment in the bond market, while those who are bullish take the position that there is improvement and that it will continue until genuine activity prevails throughout the investment markets.

⁂

The Real Bond Situation.

Perhaps it is a hopeful sign in the bond business that a difference of opinion is becoming more manifest among the dealers and the men in the Street. There is an undertone of cheerfulness in quarters where little could be found for months, but it is qualified by extreme conservatism in the matter of predictions as to the immediate future. Some bond houses report that their men on the road seem to be a little more encouraged, and that they indicate a resumption of interest by out-of-town dealers, which would be presumed to reflect better inquiry from individual investors. One of the salesmen of a well-known house spent two weeks in Pennsylvania and arrived home on Monday of this week. His experience was mixed. In the first week it was entirely unsatisfactory. The first two days of the second week were fairly good, but all his expectations were exceeded in the closing days of his stay. He could not determine whether it was a mere spasm of activity or whether it indicated substantial progress toward greater optimism on the part of investment purchasers.

⁂

Steel Trade Gossip.

Advices from Pittsburg yesterday were catalogued by the speculative crowd as extremely interesting, if true. That meant that there is a disposition to accept these unofficial advices with a grain of salt, due primarily to the fact that for the last three months contradictory dispatches have been the order each day, and the most positive assertions were subsequently found to be more or less imaginative. Nevertheless there was a disposition to accept as a fact the statement that men were returning to work in many of the steel mills which had been closed down, and that the outlook from the point of view of labor, at least, was more cheerful. The strength of Steel common, however, was not supposed to reflect the accuracy of any of these reports, but to be due largely to professional operations, or in other words, to manipulation. Those not in sympathy with the advance in Steel common point to the dividend return, which, at the present price, is less than 5% per cent., and insist that in view of trade conditions the stock is selling too high. But the stock advances in spite of argument or assumed logic.

Doubts of Traders.

This is a difficult market for the man who is out of it to decide what he is going to do, particularly if he is anxious to take a position for the long pull. There are many such traders who have no commitments, who are not influenced by gossip or the day to day position of professionals, and who cannot make up their mind from the tape indications just what ought to be done. They say that there is nothing convincing, so far as a definite trend is concerned, and they do not care to buy stocks and pay interest charges, nor to sell stocks and be tied up speculatively with no prospect of anything more than a price fluctuation within a range of two or three points. So far gold exports have had very little influence on the market, and brokers feel that they are not likely to have much because of the obvious increase in available surplus funds. There seems to be a disposition among some traders to indulge in the privilege habit, and buy puts and calls, according to one's attitude.

THE FOREIGN MARKET.

Not Much Business on European Bourses—Stocks Generally Heavy.

LONDON, April 22.—Money was in good demand and dearer on the market to-day. Discounts were quiet.

On the Stock Exchange business was confined to narrow limits. New issues continued to weigh down gilt-edged securities and consols drooped 3-16, but hardened near the close. Grand Trunk and Mexican rails yielded to bear pressure on the disappointing traffic returns.

Foreign shares eased owing to the absence of Continental support, but copper shares were firmer.

American securities were fairly firm during the forenoon, but drooped fractionally later. Business was of a purely professional character. New York, however, bought favorite stocks in the afternoon and the market finished firm.

Bar silver was steady, 25 3-16d per ounce.

Money, 2¼@2¾ per cent.

PARIS, April 22.—The tone on the Bourse to-day was dull and heavy.

BERLIN, April 22.—Prices on the Boerse to-day were rather stronger. American securities improved upon the advices from New York, but became weaker later upon reports from London.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

W. F. Newell, assignee of Watson & Co., having filed his financial report to the satisfaction of creditors, has terminated his trusteeship, and will hereafter be associated with the firm of H. L. Horton & Co., 66 Broadway.

At a special meeting of the stockholders of the Alabama Consolidated Coal and Iron Company, held in Jersey City yesterday, the issue of $5,000,000 of first mortgage bonds for the immediate improvement of the property was authorized.

A pamphlet containing information regarding the new weekly bank statement and the workings of the New York Clearing House has just been issued by the Stock Exchange firm of Sig H. Rosenblatt & Co. of 42 Broadway, and will be sent free upon application.

In dealing with the increase in the dividend of the National City Bank from 8 to 10 per cent. per annum, THE TIMES's story yesterday mentioned the high money rates of 1906 and 1907 as a source of increased profit to the bank. No reference was intended to the call money market. It is well known that the National City Bank has always refused to put out money at more than 6 per cent., no matter how high was the market rate for call money.

FOUNDRY IRON MEN RESTIVE.

Prices Reaffirmed with Difficulty, but Big Steel Interests Stand Firm.

That the iron foundry producers at least are becoming restive under the policy adopted by the leading iron and steel makers of a rigid adherence to prices, is indicated in the statement made in to-day's issue of The Iron Age that at the meeting last week prices were reaffirmed with difficulty. The Iron Age says:

> At the meeting a somewhat radical course was at first adopted, but on reconsideration the action proposed was kept in abeyance for two weeks, and former prices were reaffirmed. The ranks were kept intact, but there were no accessions, particularly from the South, which are most important. For the present, therefore, the associated furnaces are in the same position as before, accumulating the greater part of their much reduced make, while the outsiders are taking what little business is being done.

A leading producer said yesterday that the foundry iron men who have joined the Steel Corporation and other iron and steel interests are becoming divided on the question of maintaining prices.

Commenting on trade conditions, The Iron Trade Review says:

> The demand for some kinds of finished products continues active, and it is noteworthy that for tinplate and wire goods, on which prices have been absolutely maintained, there is a good sale, while the pig iron market is very much depressed, and mill activity has increased in some places. The leading producers are not yet ready to return to the ruinous warfare methods which followed the panic of 1893. During the past week a sale of 1,000 tons of No. 1 Foundry was made to a Cleveland concern at $14.95, Valley, equivalent to $14.45 for No. 2.
>
> Among the machine tool manufacturers of New England, there is a general feeling that conditions are improving.

$5,000,000 MORE GOLD GOES.

One Engagement of $500,000 Canceled —Exchange Drops 25 Points.

The outward movement of gold was increased by $5,000,000 yesterday by takings announced by Lazard Frères, the National City Bank, Heidelbach, Ickelheimer & Co., and Goldman, Sachs & Co. The total of gold engaged for shipment to Paris since the export movement began on April 15 has now reached $7,500,000.

The effect of yesterday's engagements was seen in a drop of 25 points in exchange rates from the closing quotations of Tuesday. Demand sterling closed at 4.8725. One engagement for $500,000 by the National Bank of Commerce was canceled.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

Copper metal in the London market yesterday made no changes in price from the last quotations of Tuesday. The closing prices were: Spot, £58; futures, £58 10s. Pig tin closed weak at £143 17s 6d for spot; futures were unchanged at £142 15s. Lead was weak at £13 7s 6d. Spelter was unchanged at £21 5s. Iron warrants were unchanged at 50s 6d for standard foundry and 51s 9d for Middlesboro.

The closing bid and asked prices of copper and other metals, for spot delivery, on the New York Metal Exchange yesterday compare as follows with those of the previous day:

Ridgely Not in Mexican Iron Project.

W. B. Ridgely, who resigned as Controller of the Currency to become President of the National Bank of Commerce of Kansas City, was in town yesterday and formally denied that he had any connection with a company which projects the development of the Cerro de Mercado iron regions at Durango, Mexico. Mr. Ridgely said that the only excuse for connecting his name with the Mexican iron district was that some years ago he had looked into the property for some friends.

W. E. D. STOKES BUYS A VIRGINIA RAILROAD

Pays Only $25,000 at Auction for Chesapeake Western Capitalized for Millions.

PREPARED TO BID $500,000

Purchase Made to Clear Road's Title—Expects to Extend to Pittsburg and Chesapeake Bay.

W. E. D. Stokes, proprietor of the Ansonia Hotel, became a railroad magnate yesterday by purchasing the entire capital stock and all the bonds outstanding of the Chesapeake Western Railway Company. It cost him $25,000 to buy in $1,419,000 of the road's first mortgage bonds, $811,200 common and $608,400 preferred stock.

These securities are all that the property has standing against it, and they were put up at auction in the Exchange Salesroom yesterday, together with $500,000 first mortgage bonds of the Pocahontas Company, which were included in the $25,000 purchase price. The securities had been hypothecated, and the sale was nothing more than a legal precaution to establish a clear title, but it makes Mr. Stokes the sole owner of a Virginia railroad, which, though only 13.96 miles in length, at present has projected ambitious extensions, which will carry it from Chesapeake Bay to Pittsburg and tap a rich coal country in Virginia.

A representative of Mr. Stokes said yesterday that the road had cost something like $1,400,000 to build, and Mr. Stokes was prepared to bid up to $400,000 or $500,000 to obtain the property. Thomas Stokes, a brother of W. E. D. Stokes, has been interested in the road since it was incorporated eight years ago, and R. McM. Gillespie, who is President, is Thomas Stokes's son-in-law. Besides its own length of nearly fourteen miles, the Chesapeake Western Railway leases the Chesapeake & Western Railroad, giving a total of 40.96 miles of track operated, which runs from Elkton Junction to North River Gap, Va.

Included in the railroad's assets are some 40,000 acres of forest land with promising coal indications. Mr. Stokes is prepared to push the road to completion along the original route, and will start drill work on the coal lands. His decision as to the advisability of completing the road to tidewater and to Pittsburg will be largely influenced by the developments of the coal land exploration.

GREAT FULTON CARNIVAL.

Trustees Announce Programme for the Event to be Held Next Year.

The Trustees of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission yesterday reported a full programme for the celebration to be held in the week beginning Monday, Sept. 27, 1909. The feature will be a carnival parade which, one speaker said, would make the best Mardi Gras ever held look like a fake.

On Monday evening, Sept. 27, is to be held the musical festival. The official literary exercises are to be on Tuesday evening at the Metropolitan Opera House, Carnegie Hall, and the Academy of Music, Brooklyn. The land parade on Wednesday is to be restricted to the United States Army, Navy, Marine Corps, National Guard, and the Naval Militia.

Thursday night has been selected for the official dinner, and Saturday for the carnival.

The question as to where the official dinner was to be held was left to the Dinner Committee.

Dr. Draper, State Commissioner of Education, was added to the list of Trustees. It was decided to have prepared a manual giving a short history of Hudson and Fulton, which, it is hoped, with Dr. Draper's assistance, will be circulated among all the school children in the State.

John E. Parsons, Chairman of the Inwood Park Committee, reported great difficulty with property owners in securing the necessary site. He said ridiculous prices were being asked for the land, and that in consequence condemnation proceedings would have to be begun.

Francis Lynde Stetson, for the Law and Legislative Committee, reported that the Legislature had given them an appropriation of only $12,500 unexpended balance, $100,000 for immediate use and $50,000 on Jan. 1, 1909, which, he said, was just half what they asked. It was suggested that an additional appropriation be asked for next year.

For the Memorials Committee, Tunis G. Bergen said they recommended that proper souvenir programmes, apart from the medals, be struck off, and that memorial tablets also be erected at various points historically associated with Hudson and Fulton. He said there was a movement in the Netherlands for the presentation of a model of the Half Moon.

Rear Admiral Coghlan, retired, reported that the Naval Parade Committee was ready to get out specifications for the building of an exact fac simile of the Clermont in its original form.

Gen. J. G. Wilson, as Chairman of the Official Literary Exercises Committee, announced that the Metropolitan Opera House and the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, had been given free for the exercises, and that the rental for Carnegie Hall would be $400. He raised a laugh when, in describing the programme to be carried out at the exercises, he said it was the intention to invite the "two ex-Presidents and the then President as speakers."

W. K. Vanderbilt Gives $1,000 to Firemen's Fund.

The Firemen's Memorial Fund has received a check for $1,000 from William K. Vanderbilt. This together with other contributions, including $100 from Jacob H. Schiff, brings the fund to nearly $35,000. It is expected that a large sum will be raised at the auction sale to-morrow of boxes for the benefit entertainment to be given at the Metropolitan Opera House on May 1.

Identifier Caldwell a Mental Wreck.

The physicians at the Manhattan State Asylum have reported that Robert Caldwell, the aged Staten Islander, wanted in England for perjury alleged to have been committed as a witness in the famous Druce case, is a mental and physical wreck. In view of this it is likely that he will never be sent to England for trial.

PHILADELPHIA, April 22.—A solemn pontifical mass of thanksgiving was celebrated in the Roman Catholic Cathedral here to-day in commemoration of the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the diocese of Philadelphia.

The sermon was preached by Bishop Garvey of Altoona, Penn. More than 500 priests of the Philadelphia diocese led the procession.

PEACE IN U. S. SMELTING.

Ex-President Evans to be Allowed to Choose Six New Directors.

Stockholders of the United States Smelting, Refining and Mining Company, in which Boston copper interests are dominant, received a circular yesterday from Robert D. Evans requesting them to defer sending in their proxies for the annual meeting until they had received a statement from him regarding the company's affairs. Mr. Evans, who was formerly President of the company, and is still the largest individual stockholder, has been fighting for larger representation on the board than the one Directorship which he holds.

Friends of the management said yesterday that a compromise was effected Tuesday afternoon at which it was agreed to increase the Directorate from fifteen to twenty-one and allow Mr. Evans to choose six new Directors.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

INVITATION TO CONTRACTORS.

(Fourth Avenue from Twenty-seventh Street to Forty-third Street.)

The City of New York, acting by the Public Service Commission for the First District by this advertisement invites proposals to construct that part of the proposed Fourth Avenue Subway in the Borough of Brooklyn between points on Fourth Avenue 15 feet south of the south line of Twenty-seventh Street and 150 feet south of the south line of Forty-second Street.

The general plan of construction calls for a four-track sub-surface Railroad, but the Contractor will not be required under the contract proposed to provide or lay tracks, ties or ballast. A station at Thirty-sixth Street will be constructed; and suitable cross-overs, turnouts and sidings are also to be provided, all as indicated on the detailed plans of construction. The tunnels are to have a height of not less than thirteen (13) feet in the clear, and a maximum width of fifteen (15) feet for each track, except at curves, etc., where the width may be increased. The roof of the tunnels is generally to be as near the surface of the street as street conditions and grades will permit. The roof and sides of the tunnels will be of iron or steel and masonry. Entrances to the station are intended to be placed within private property, rights in which will be acquired for the purpose, or on the streets or on the sidewalks adjacent to private property, as indicated on the plans.

The manner of construction shall be by excavation in open trench, unless otherwise provided in the contract or directed by the Commission.

In the detailed plans for construction, provisions for pipe galleries along the line of the railroad are included. Bids for the construction of the railroad must be accompanied by a separate bid for the construction of the pipe galleries above referred to, as it is essential for the City to separate the cost of the railroad from the cost of the pipe galleries. The Commission reserves the right to accept a bid for construction of the railroad and at the same time to reject the accompanying bid for pipe galleries.

Bidders must visit the location of the railroad and stations to be built under this contract and note the present conditions along the line of the proposed railroad.

A fuller description of the work to be done is set forth, and other requirements, provisions, details and specifications are stated in the printed form of contract now on file in the office of the Commission, No. 154 Nassau Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, and in the detailed drawings therein referred to, at which office copies of the contract and of the form of bond and contractor's proposal may be had on application. The contract drawings may be inspected at the same office. The printed form of contract and the detailed drawings are to be deemed a part of this Invitation.

Partial payments to the contractor will be made monthly as the work proceeds, as provided in the form of contract.

The work of construction (including pipe galleries) is to be completed as soon as practicable, and within twenty-four months from the date of delivery of the contract.

Sealed bids or proposals will be received at the said office of the Commission, at No. 154 Nassau Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, The City of New York, until Friday, the 8th day of May, 1908, at twelve o'clock noon, at which time or at a later date to be fixed by the Commission the proposals will be publicly opened.

Proposals must be in the form prescribed by the Commission, copies of which may be obtained at the office of the Commission.

The proposal must contain a statement, in the form prescribed, of the quantities and unit values upon which the bid is based. Such statement shall be merely for the information of the Commission, to enable it to determine upon what basis the proposal is made and for no other purpose whatsoever, and the Commission shall not be bound in any way to make payments or value work done, upon the basis of such quantities and unit values contained in such statement.

No proposal will be allowed to be withdrawn for any reason whatever after it shall have been deposited with the Commission.

The award of the contract or contracts (if awarded) will be made by the Commission within twenty days after the opening of the proposals. The bidder whose proposal shall be accepted shall in person or by duly authorized representative attend at the said office of the Commission within ten days after the delivery of a notice by the Commission that his proposal is accepted and that the contract is approved by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment; and such bidder shall then deliver a contract in the form referred to, duly executed and with its execution duly proved.

At the time of the delivery of the contract, the contractor will be required to furnish security to the City by giving a bond in the penalty of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. At the option of the successful bidder cash or approved securities may be deposited instead of giving a bond. If securities are deposited in place of a bond under this contract they must be of the character of securities in which Savings Banks may invest their funds and must be approved by the Commission. The Contractor's bond must be in the form annexed to the form of contract.

In addition and as further security to the City, ten per cent. of each amount certified from time to time to be due to the contractor will be retained until the work is fully completed.

Bidders whose proposals are otherwise satisfactory to the Commission may, in case the sureties or securities named by them are not approved by the Commission, substitute in their proposals the names of new sureties or a different schedule of securities approved by the Commission, but such substitution must be made within five days after notice of disapproval by the Commission, unless this period is extended by the Commission.

In case of failure or neglect to execute and deliver the contract or to make the required deposit or to execute and deliver the required bond, such bidder will, at the option of the Commission, be deemed either to have made the contract or to have abandoned the contract. In the latter case the Commission will give notice thereof to the defaulting bidder. And the Commission may thereupon proceed to make another contract with such, if any, of the original bidders as, in the opinion of the Commission, it will be to the best interest of the City to contract with, or may by new advertisement invite further proposals. The defaulting bidder shall thereupon be liable to the City for all loss and damage by it sustained, including the excess, if any, of the amount it shall pay any other contractor over the amount of the bid of such defaulting bidder.

Every proposal must, when submitted, be enclosed in a sealed envelope endorsed "PROPOSAL FOR CONSTRUCTING RAPID TRANSIT RAILROAD—(FOURTH AVENUE, TWENTY-SEVENTH STREET TO FORTY-THIRD STREET)" and must be delivered to the Commission or to its Secretary; and in the presence of the person offering the proposal it will be deposited in a sealed box in which all proposals will be deposited. No proposal will be received or deposited unless accompanied by a certified check drawn upon a National or State bank or Trust Company within The City of New York and satisfactory to the Commission, payable to the order of the Comptroller of The City of New York, for the sum of twelve thousand five hundred dollars.

If the Commission shall give notice to any bidder that his or its proposal is accepted and that the contract is approved by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and if the bidder shall fail within ten days thereafter or within such further period, if any, as may be prescribed by the Commission, to execute and deliver the contract and to execute and deliver the bond with sureties, or make a deposit in cash or securities, then this Invitation to Contractors and proposal accepted as aforesaid shall be a contract binding the bidder to pay to the City the damages by it sustained by reason of such failure; and in such case the bidder shall, by the terms of the proposal, absolutely assign to the City the ownership of the check accompanying his or its proposal as a payment on account of such damages.

All such deposits made by bidders whose proposals shall not be accepted by the Commission will be returned to the person or persons making the same within five days after the contract shall be executed and delivered. The deposit of the successful bidder will be returned when the contract is executed and its provisions as to security are complied with.

(Fourth Avenue and Ashland Place—Fulton Street to Sackett Street.)

The City of New York, acting by the Public Service Commission for the First District, by this advertisement invites proposals to construct that part of the proposed Fourth Avenue Subway in the Borough of Brooklyn which begins at a point under Ashland Place about forty (40) feet south of the south line of Fulton Street and runs through and under Ashland Place and private property on the West side of Ashland Place, under the present Subway structure in Flatbush Avenue, and along and under Fourth Avenue and private property on the Easterly side thereof to Pacific Street; thence continuing Southerly along and under Fourth Avenue to a point about sixty (60) feet North of the North line of Sackett Street.

No proposal will be allowed to be withdrawn for any reason whatever after it shall have been deposited with the Commission.

The award of the contract or contracts (if awarded) will be made by the Commission within twenty days after the opening of the proposals. The bidder whose proposal shall be accepted shall in person or by duly authorized representative attend at the said office of the Commission within ten days after the delivery of a notice by the Commission that his proposal is accepted and that the contract is approved by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment; and such bidder shall then deliver a contract in the form referred to, duly executed and with its execution duly proved.

At the time of the delivery of the contract, the contractor will be required to furnish security to the City by giving a bond in the penalty of two hundred thousand dollars. At the option of the successful bidder, cash or approved securities may be deposited instead of giving a bond. If securities are deposited in place of a bond under this contract, they must be of the character of securities in which Savings Banks may invest their funds and must be approved by the Commission. The Contractor's bond must be in the form annexed to the form of contract.

In addition and as further security to the City, ten per cent. of each amount certified from time to time to be due to the contractor will be retained until the work is fully completed.

Bidders whose proposals are otherwise satisfactory to the Commission may, in case the sureties or securities named by them are not approved by the Commission, substitute in their proposals the names of new sureties or a different schedule of securities approved by the Commission; but such substitution must be made within five days after notice of disapproval by the Commission, unless this period is extended by the Commission.

In case of failure or neglect to execute and deliver the contract or to make the required deposit or to execute and deliver the required bond, such bidder will, at the option of the Commission, be deemed either to have made the contract or to have abandoned the contract. In the latter case the Commission will give notice thereof to the defaulting bidder. And the Commission may thereupon proceed to make another contract with such, if any, of the original bidders, as, in the opinion of the Commission, it will be to the best interest of the City to contract with, or may by new advertisement invite further proposals. The defaulting bidder shall thereupon be liable to the City for all loss and damage by it sustained, including the excess, if any, of the amount it shall pay any other contractor over the amount of the bid of such defaulting bidder.

Every proposal must, when submitted, be enclosed in a sealed envelope endorsed "PROPOSAL FOR CONSTRUCTING RAPID TRANSIT RAILROAD—FOURTH AVENUE AND ASHLAND PLACE FROM FULTON STREET TO SACKETT STREET," and must be delivered to the Commission or to its Secretary; and in the presence of the person offering the proposal it will be deposited in a sealed box in which all proposals will be deposited. No proposal will be received or deposited unless accompanied by a certified check drawn upon a National or State Bank or Trust Company within The City of New York and satisfactory to the Commission, payable to the order of the Comptroller of The City of New York, for the sum of fifteen thousand dollars.

If the Commission shall give notice to any bidder that his or its proposal is accepted and that the contract is approved by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and if the bidder shall fail within ten days thereafter or within such further period, if any, as may be prescribed by the Commission, to execute and deliver the contract and to execute and deliver the bond with sureties, or make a deposit in cash or securities, then this Invitation to Contractors and proposal accepted as aforesaid shall be a contract binding the bidder to pay to the City the damages by it sustained by reason of such failure; and in such case the bidder shall, by the terms of the proposal, absolutely assign to the City the ownership of the check accompanying his or its proposal as a payment on account of such damages.

All such deposits made by bidders whose proposals shall not be accepted by the Commission will be returned to the person or persons making the same within five days after the contract shall be executed and delivered. The deposit of the successful bidder will be returned when the contract is executed and its provisions as to security are complied with.

A Period of Sober Reflection

It is conceded that the greatest protection to the public in dealing with corporations is publicity. If a company has nothing to conceal it should not object to giving the public full information as to its affairs. The Lawyers Mortgage Company is the only Mortgage Company that tells all about its business—the amount of Guaranteed Mortgages outstanding, the amount of delinquent interest, the number of foreclosures during the year, and every item from which the public can judge for itself the uniform solidity and strength of its mortgage investments.

SUBWAY EXPRESSES ARE 'LEMON TRAINS'

General Manager Hedley Tells Utilities Commissioner That Is Their Proper Name.

TROUBLE ON BROADWAY LINE

Washington Heights Residents Complain of Congestion and Long Waits and Want Changes.

"Lemon trains" is what the Kingsbridge expresses which skip stations from Ninety-sixth Street to 137th Street on Broadway in rush hours are termed by the Subway officials and employes. This and some other pertinent facts were brought out yesterday at a hearing before Public Service Commissioner Eustis on the question of whether all Broadway expresses in the Subway should run to Kingsbridge and all the Broadway locals to Dyckman Street.

A complaint asking that the change be made was put in some time ago by the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association. Yesterday R. P. Bolton, Secretary of the association, and others put in evidence showing the extent to which the trains running to and from Washington Heights were crowded. They said the platforms at the 137th Street Station were overcrowded owing to the necessity for passengers changing there. The average wait in rush hours at 137th Street, they asserted, was three minutes, and evidence to the effect that trains were crowded nearly all the time was obtained by the Commissioner.

General Manager Frank Hedley, for the company, said he thought the complaint was not justified. The other witnesses, he said, had testified that they generally had seats, particularly if they took the trouble to walk through a couple of cars. The Broadway service, he said, was better than that on Lenox Avenue, and the loss to the company on long-haul traffic was greater.

Then Mr. Hedley spoke of the "lemon trains," which, he said, do more to interfere with regular traffic than anything else. They cause confusion and accomplish no good purpose, hence the name "lemon trains."

"Is it because the people in them are all squeezed up like a lemon out of a squeezer?" asked Commissioner Eustis.

"Oh, I think we could get more people in if we took all the seats out," said Mr. Hedley.

"Ah, and make them cattle cars," retorted Mr. Eustis.

"Well, I notice your engineer recommends something of the sort," snapped Mr. Hedley.

Mr. Bolton asked Mr. Hedley whether local trains could not be run on a one-minute headway up Broadway. Mr. Hedley said that if Mr. Bolton knew anything of practical railroading he would be aware that such a thing was an impossibility.

"What would become of the Lenox Avenue locals then?" asked the Commissioner.

"Oh, shut down the Lenox Avenue trains to accommodate the Broadway people," said Mr. Hedley sarcastically.

SHIFTS BLAME ON CROKER.

Mr. Hayes Says Chief Recommended Purchase of Hose Which Failed.

Commissioners of Accounts Mitchell and Gallaher began an investigation yesterday of the affairs of the Fire Department, supplementary to the inquiry held shortly after the Parker Building fire.

Fire Commissioner Nicholas Hayes testified that during his former administration Fire Chief Croker made the recommendations on which hose was purchased, and John H. Leonard, late chief of the repair shops, drew the specifications.

FAVORS THE ROBINSON BILL.

Recommendation Governing New Subways Pleases Service Board.

Chairman Willcox of the Public Service Commission was asked yesterday if he favored the Robinson bill, which has the effect of amending the Elsberg law with regard to the building of new subways. The bill was passed by the Assembly on Tuesday.

"I have said repeatedly," said Mr. Willcox, "that the commission, in its annual report, suggested certain changes in the rapid transit law. As I understand it, the Robinson bill embraces most of the recommendations of the commission and therefore is favored by the commission. Our recommendation on the length of the franchises, however, was for only twenty-five years."

Mr. Willcox was asked whether or not the commission would have power to act in the matter of compelling the surface car companies to grant transfers where the practice has recently been discontinued.

"That is a matter I do not care to discuss at present," he replied. All I will say is that the question will come up as to the precise status of the properties while in the hands of receivers. The question is: Are they wholly in the power and possession of the court or are they taken over subject to such restrictions and regulations as may be legally imposed by competent authority, other than the Federal courts?

As to the Reform Club's expressed fear that additional train service might endanger the safety of the Brooklyn Bridge, Mr. Willcox said that the Bridge itself was under the control of the Bridge Department and not the Public Service Commission, but that if the latter body thought the B. R. T. or any other company was operating over a piece of track that might become dangerous, it would certainly make an investigation.

METZ AND SUBWAY LOOP.

Controller to Try to Hasten Brooklyn End of the Project.

Controller Metz intends to again bring up the Brooklyn subway loop matter at the meeting of the Board of Estimate to-morrow.

The Controller believes that the Brooklyn end of the loop should be built before the Fourth Avenue end of the Broadway-Lexington Avenue line in Manhattan. He will submit a report to that effect, as a result of which it is highly probable that the loop project will be put on an equal basis with the other proposals.

SUFFRAGETTES IN AUTOS.

Procession Makes a Vigorous Demonstration for Equal Voting.

The New York Suffragettes gave an automobile procession yesterday, and made the most conspicuous appearance they have yet made in New York. Four large automobiles gathered up the Suffragettes at their headquarters on East Twenty-third Street at 1 o'clock, and from there the procession moved slowly through Madison Square up Fifth Avenue to Forty-second Street, turning at Times Square, where a stop was made. Short speeches were made from the automobiles, and the procession moved on to Columbus Circle and then down to Daly's Theatre, which was the goal for which the Suffragettes had started.

Never since their organization have the Suffragettes attracted so much attention. The big automobiles were draped with great yellow banners bearing in large black letters the words: "Votes for Women," and the Suffragettes themselves being en route for a theatre party, were dressed in their smartest theatre clothes and jewels.

WORK OF DAY NURSERIES.

Institutions Make for the Country's Salvation, Says Speaker at Meeting.

Mrs. Arthur Dodge and many other well-known New York women attended the annual meeting of the Day Nursery of the People's Home Church, 545 East Eleventh Street, yesterday afternoon. They represented in their connection with this work for the poorer people of the city the union of rich and poor which will make the Day Nursery the salvation of the country.

"There are sixty-nine kindergartens in New York City," said Mrs. Dodge, who is President of the Federation of Day Nurseries, "and 4,000 children attend them. The greatest value of the day nursery is that it keeps the children from institutions where the mothers would otherwise be obliged to send them, and keeps mother and little ones in touch with each other."

OLD GUARD 88 YEARS OLD.

Celebrates with Installation of Officers, Memorial Service, and a Dinner.

The Old Guard celebrated its eighty-second anniversary yesterday with an installation of officers at the armory, a memorial service at St. Thomas's Church in Fifth Avenue, and a dinner at the Hotel Astor in the evening.

At the dinner many other military organizations were present. Major Charles A. Stadler presided and Capt. Rastus S. Ransom was toastmaster. Covers were laid for about 300.

Gov. Hughes had promised to come in late, but at the last moment sent a telegram of regret. Among the speakers were Gen. Frederick D. Grant, Charles A. Towne, John B. Stanchfield, Edward Lauterbach, Gen. James R. O'Beirne, Commodore P. Vedder, and Controller Metz.

HOPE STAYS

In Stewart Building

For the Present.

Just two years ago the New York papers published the news that a certain Philadelphia syndicate had purchased the old Stewart Building. The items stated at length what the new owner proposed to do with the old landmark. Those proposed changes meant the "wiping out" of the present Hope Corner.

Believing that the new owner would take possession on or before May 1, we decided to retire from the Stewart Building on April 30 and move to a store ready for that emergency, but—something happened last week!

It seems that the Philadelphia syndicate has not taken the Stewart Building, as expected. We are still paying rent to the same owners as heretofore—New Issues cause us to halt—and for the present we shall remain at the Corner of Broadway and Chambers street.

Any misleading impressions created by our announcements of retiring or selling out are due to the peculiar and mysterious transactions in the sale (?) of the Stewart Building, causing us great harm in many ways. This is as much as we care to say to-day.
